LBJ Flays Reds' World Ambitions

Sees Peril To Africa, Americas

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — President Johnson warned today that if Communist guerrilla warfare succeeded in South Viet Nam, the same stealthy, aggressive technique might spread to Africa and Latin America.

Opening an intensive, one-day road tour involving Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky, the Chief Executive's remarks were prepared for an outdoor audience at the Soldiers and Sailors Monument, on a large circle dominating midtown Indianapolis.

Johnson said if the Communists won in Viet Nam, they would be encouraged to pursue "new ambitions in Asia."

"The Communists have taught us that aggression is like hunger—it obeys no law but its own appetite," he said. "For this reason, they have gambled heavily on success in the South (Viet Nam)."

Warning that "a Communist victory in South Viet Nam would inspire new aggression in the rest of the world," the President cited a boast by the top military commander of North Viet Nam to the effect that if the United States could be overcome in the south "it can be defeated anywhere in the world."

Johnson said: "What he really means in this: If guerrilla warfare succeeds in Asia it can also succeed in Africa and Latin America as well."

"North Viet Nam's effort to

Viet War Flares On Many Fronts

SAIGON (AP) — Striking between two widely separated battle sectors, Communist mortarmen rained 30 shells tonight on a U.S. Marine heliport, Seabee compound and Navy hospital at Da Nang East.

A Marine spokesman said no one was killed, but four helicopters were damaged and seven men, including three at the Navy hospital, were wounded.

Helicopter - borne U.S. infantrymen pounced on entrenched Viet Cong only 25 miles from Saigon and overran the enemy bunkers in what a spokesman called "fast and furious action."

To the north, U.S. Marines fighting in mountain jungles just south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam reported killing 55 more North Vietnamese regulars to raise the number of enemy dead to 576 in eight days of hard fighting.

Over North Viet Nam, U.S. Air Force Thunderchiefs tangled with Communist MIG-17s in a fruitless one-minute exchange of fire during renewed raids on oil depots, railroads, barges and bridges.

NEW DRIVE

The U.S. command announced that Australian troops had kicked off on a new clearing operation 38 miles southeast of Saigon and that the first small contingent of Thailand servicemen has arrived in the country.

The U.S. command also reported that a Navy A4 Skyhawk fighter-bomber from the carrier Oriskany was shot down over North Viet Nam today, the 306th plane lost in the air war over the north. The pilot bailed out at miles north of Vinh.

U.S. spokesmen disclosed the loss in South Viet Nam of an L-19 light observation plane about 100 miles southwest of Saigon and said both members of the two-man crew were killed.

Another light observation plane and a U.S. Army helicopter collided during Operation Hastings near the demilitarized zone. Three crew members of the helicopters were injured. The fate of the two fliers in the observation plane was not known.

FLIER ESCAPES

The U. S. command also announced today that a Navy lieutenant who was captured by the Communists after his plane was shot down more than six months ago escaped from prison and was spotted in the jungle and rescued after 23 days of fleeing through difficult terrain. He was reported suffering severe malnutrition and shock, but his condition is described as satisfactory. For security reasons, his name was not disclosed.

In Saigon, Thich (Venerable) Hue Hong, a 24-year-old Buddhist monk whose gasoline-soaked robes caught fire at a political meeting of anti-government groups, died last night.

On the surface it seemed to be another case of self-immolation, but police said the monk told them he thought someone had tried to kill him. Militant Buddhist leaders said, however, that Hue Hong had planned his self-immolation for several days

Plan For Tideland Draws Heavy Fire

By PAUL PETERZELL

A proposed 97.5-acre light industrial and recreational development on tideland at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek was opposed yesterday by a host of critics at a public hearing in San Francisco before the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

Lined up against the proposal, posed by Frank M. Burke of San Anselmo, were the Marin Conservation League, Marin County Board of Supervisors, Greenbrae Boardwalk Improvement Club and Save the Bay Assn.

Urging the commission to grant the permit were Burke and the Corte Madera Town Council.

The commission deferred a vote to its next regular meeting set for Aug. 4 in Oakland.

The $2.5 million project would be developed by Burke, who holds an option on the parcel, which is now owned by W. J. Heerdt of San Francisco. The land is south of the creek and east of Highway 101. Most of it is in Corte Madera, but some is in unincorporated area.

Burke plans to dredge a channel 80 to 100 feet wide around the entire site, build a levee around it with the dredged mud and fill the area inside the levee. Half the 650,000 cubic yards of fill, Burke told the commission, would be dry debris, and the rest would be refuse.

"But no wet garbage," he assured the commission.

Burke said his project would give contractors in Marin a place to dump material excavated for large construction jobs.

"I know Marin needed a place to put garbage," said Commissioner Michael Wornum of Mill Valley, "but I didn't know it needed a place to dump fill."

The fill project would also give Marin residents a place to dump their rubbish, Burke said. The only existing dump in central or southern Marin, he said, is near Point San Quentin, "which will be filled up in eight to 12 months."

Burke would use the filled marshland for light industry, a nine-hole golf course, waterways and commercial recreation.

Eighteen acres of the parcel were used as a dump until Corte Madera revoked the operator's permit last September.

Burke estimated the project would take four years to complete, starting next month.

He claimed the project would have no effect on fish and wildlife, but Commissioner Joel Gustafson, biology professor at San Francisco State College and resident of Mill Valley, disagreed sharply.

Another opponent of the project was Mrs. Ann H. McCorry, secretary of the Greenbrae Boardwalk Improvement Club. She declared that state fish and game experts have listed the

Patrol Enjoys Two Days Of No Accidents

By ROBERT M. STREBEIGH

For the first time in a period as long as veterans of the force could recall, the Marin office of the California Highway Patrol had no automobile accidents to report during a 48-hour period which ran through this morning.

Patrol Sgt. James C. Dukes, who has served in Marin for 11 years, today said that he could not recall there ever being a 24-hour period that had been accident free, let alone more than two full days.

The patrol does not investigate accidents in the incorporated cities.

The last accident reported by the patrol was a minor one at 8 a.m. Thursday on Lucas Valley Road. It was the 146th in the county in July.

The patrol's monthly accident count in Marin this year has ranged from a low of 101 in February to a high of 210 in April.

The remarkable record of the past two days came to light during the Independent-Journal's regular morning check of accident reports.

FOURTH STREET TO GET QUICK-DRY PAINT JOB

San Rafael's Fourth Street—looking twice as wide with its new parallel parking—will start getting its crosswalks striped in tomorrow.

The street will not be closed to traffic, however.

An almost instant-drying liquid plastic is to be used instead of the old-fashioned paint.

Applicators will start at Lincoln Avenue and work west to E Street. The job is expected to take two or three days, according to Norris Rawles, director of public works.

Garbage Crisis Eased By Emergency Pickup

Emergency garbage pickup started today in Tamalpais Valley following the abrupt cut-off of service yesterday by Mill Valley Refuse Service.

Homes missed yesterday will have garbage collected by Henry's Service of Stinson Beach, according to Leonard Mitchell, Tamalpais Valley Sanitary District inspector.

"It will be a hassle as to who needs it picked up and who does not, however," Mitchell added. "We have no records." Mitchell said he is attempting to get them, but in the meantime, "we might have to knock on doors."

Mitchell said Mill Valley Refuse Service refused to supply him with a list of its customers. Lewis Figone, vice president of the company, said it is against company policy to release such a list unless requested in writing by customers, Mitchell said.

Refuse service was discontinued to 500 customers after it was announced by the sanitary district that it had agreed to a contract starting Oct. 1 with Henry's Service and would not be continuning its agreement with Mill Valley Refuse Service.

About 400 customers are to receive service through September. The 500 represent those who have not paid bills, billing being made in advance for three months. Apartments and commercial establishments will lose service Aug. 1.

"We received a flood of calls yesterday," said Mitchell.

"Most people are thoroughly confused over the whole thing."

Mitchell said Deputy County Counsel Thomas G. Hendricks was dubious over whether an injunction could be obtained against Mill Valley Refuse Service unless the situation involved a health hazard or public nuisance. "This is still up in the air," Mitchell said.

Space Walker Photos Don't Work Out

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The The federal space agency reported today that Gemini 10 astronauts John Young and Michael Collins apparently failed to bring back pictures of Collins' spectacular spacewalk to another satellite.

"We have no EVA (extra vehicular activity) pictures," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman reported at the manned spacecraft center in Houston. "I don't know why."

He said the astronauts did return with some pictures of Gemini 10's rendezvous with the Agena 10 satellite and some terrain photographs. "What we do have is pretty good quality. Except the subject is not what we are looking for."

Young and Collins remained in seclusion at the launch site undergoing a weekend of debriefings and were not available for comment.

The proud space pilots were quartered in the special astronaut apartments at the Merritt Island moonport to report on the successes, disappointments and puzzles of their three days in space.

Women Entitled To Equal Wage, Court Orders

RENO (AP)—A federal judge ruled yesterday that women must receive equal pay if they performed the same jobs as men.

The precedent-setting decision by U.S. District Court Judge Bruce R. Thompson was made in what federal court clerks said was the first case brought to trial under the equal pay amendment to the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act of 1963.

Judge Thompson ruled that Mrs. Ann Jones and Mrs. Joann Barredo, of Gabbs, Nev., should receive the same pay as a male co-worker at Basic Inc., a mining and smelting company where all three work as metallurgical analysts.

The women had received 40 cents less an hour than the man.

Basic Inc. contended the man had additional supervisory tasks.

The women were represented by a female attorney from the U.S. Labor Department, Mildred Y.K. Lau of San Francisco.

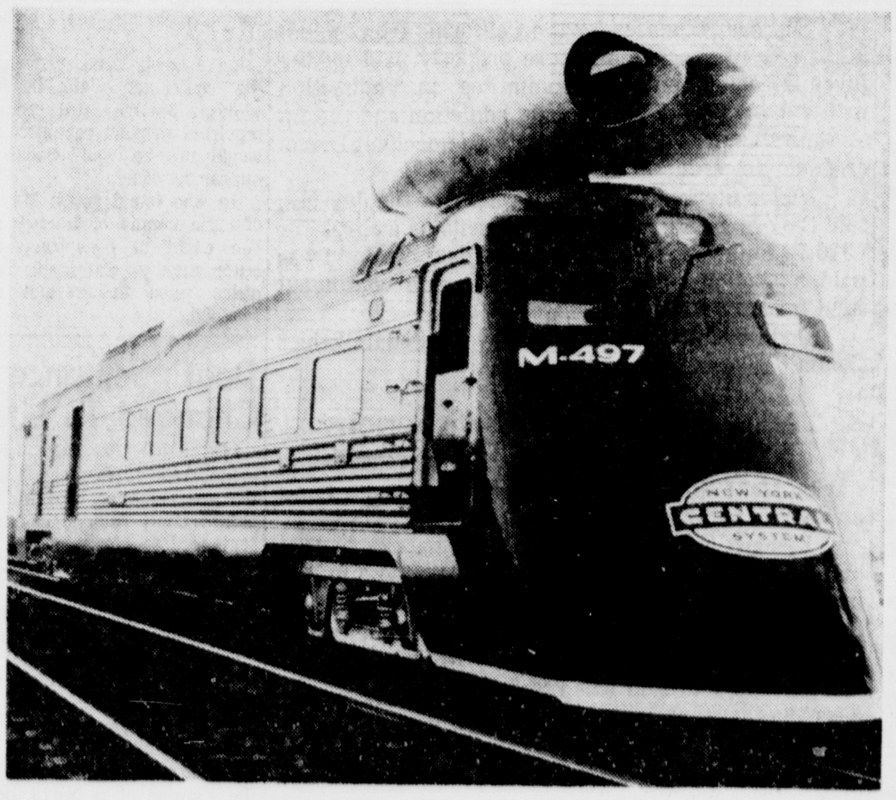
Charter Plane For Guide Dog School Graduate

The airline strike has made it necessary for Giude Dogs for the Blind to charter a private plane to fly one of its graduates, a 17-year-old Vancouver, B.C., girl, home with her new guide dog.

Miss Gail Brewer and Sheba, a black Labrador retriever, were flown home in a six-seater Cessna from Marin County Airport at Novato after graduation at the guide dog school in San Rafael.

Executive Director William F. Johnson said graduates take their dogs home as soon as possible after the one-month training so the dog can become accustomed to its new environment.

The San Francisco-Vancouver route is flown by United, one of five struck airlines.



WHERE'S ITS WHISTLE?

Bay Area rapid transit planners no doubt are watching tests which began today in Indiana of this jet locomotive, believed capable of speeds up to 300 miles per hour. Test runs were scheduled today between Butler, Ind. and Bryan, Ohio. (AP Wirephoto)

Congress Move Enrages Union

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mediators today sought to calm airline machinists enraged by rare congressional move to break their 16-day walkout with a virtual federal takeover of five struck airlines, Eastern, TWA, United, Northwest and National.

Assistant Labor Secretary James P. Reynolds, who was to meet with both sides today took airline and union men into private talks last night to try to calm the situation.

Seimiller

Sen. Wayne L. Morse, D-Ore., introduced the joint resolution which would permit the President and a federal court to hand over the lines to a receivership with all profits going to the U.S. Treasury. The resolution would not apply to any other labor dispute

President P. L. (Roy) Seimiller of the striking International Association of Machinists said the Morse resolution was prompted more by "vanity" than concern. He said it gave the airlines an excuse "to lay in the weeds and hide behind Congress."

He said the union thought Morse "was wrong," and that the five carriers were "totally irresponsible in their labor relations."

The strike is costing the carriers $7 million a day in revenue. In addition to 34,500 strikers, 66,000 other airline employees have been laid off. Service to 150,000 passengers a day has stopped.

Under the Morse resolution, Congress would declare the strike threatened essential transportation and in effect imperiled the health, safety and national defense of the United States.

Dodd Denies Double Fare Deal

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Thomas J. Dodd has denied that the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce paid his air fare to California in 1964 during an investigation for which he was reimbursed by the Senate.

He said the Jaycees' $320.78 check was for his wife's expenses.

"My own expenses for the California trip, including by air transportation, were properly paid by the juvenile delinquency subcommittee in connection with our investigation into drug addiction and the interstate shipment of firearms," the Connecticut Democrat said yesterday in a statement.

Victor Stark, executive secretary of the Jaycees, said the organization also sent the senator a check for $320.78 for his air fare. Senate records show Dodd was paid a similar amount from the Senate contingent fund for his roundtrip fare.

Dodd is under investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee on misconduct charges.

Speck's Heart Said Not Serious

CHICAGO (AP)—Doctors say the man accused of slaying eight student nurses has not suffered a heart attack and will be able to go on trial.

Richard Speck, 24, has pericarditis—an inflammation of the sac surrounding the heart—and "is doing quite well," Dr. Sheldon Slodki, cardiologist at the Cermak Memorial (Bridwell) Hospital in the city jail, told a news conference yesterday.

Doctors had said when Speck became ill several days ago that there was an 80 per cent chance he had suffered a heart attack.

Slodki said Speck's temperature was normal and his condition was "fine."

He said Speck would not be allowed on his feet until he has been free of fever for several days.

ABORTION TRIALS DELAY IS GRANTED

Prosecution 'Stunned' By Court Ruling Over Revelations Of State Evidence

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two doctors accused by the State Board of Medical Examiners of performing illegal abortions have been granted a delay in presenting their cases.

The State Supreme Court ruled yesterday that Dr. J. Paul Shively and Dr. Seymour Smith need not appear before the board Monday.

Hearings before the board have been halted until the court decides whether the physicians' attorneys should see prosecution evidence.

The court directed the board's hearing officer to show cause why the evidence should not be made available by July 29.

San Francisco Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh had ruled earlier that the evidence could be withheld because the hearing is administrative, not judicial. In judicial proceedings, the right of "discovery" requires that evidence be available to the defense.

Both doctors are charged with performing illegal therapeutic abortions. The doctors say they operated on women who risked bearing deformed children because they contracted German measles during their pregnancies.

State law allows abortion only to preserve the life of the mother.

The Supreme Court is expected to rule on the "discovery" issue in August or September.

Attorneys for the accused doctors, who could lose their licenses, called the Supreme Court's intervention an important victory.

Gerald F. Carreras, deputy attorney general and counsel to the medical board, said he was stunned by the action.

Seven other doctors have also been accused of performing illegal abortions as the result of an attorney general's office probe into abortion practices.

Drs. Shively and Smith were the first to be called before the board.

Lawmaker Hits Crime Quiz Rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. has introduced a constitutional amendment designed to remove the handcuffs he said were placed on police by the Supreme Court's recent ruling on interrogation of persons suspected of committing crimes.

The North Carolina Democrat said yesterday the court had "moved, through logic-shattering sentiment and stifling procedures, to favor the individual to such an extent that the administration of criminal justice is defeated."

Ervin's proposed amendment would make voluntary confessions admissible in evidence and prevent an appeals court from throwing them out if the trial court determination of voluntariness was "supported by competent proof" submitted in that court.

Wolden Again Granted Delay

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—At the request of his doctor, former City Assessor Russell L. Wolden will appear in Superior court Aug. 3 instead of Monday for sentencing on bribery charges.

Judge Lewis Drucker changed the sentencing date because Wolden, 56, was still recovering from a heart condition and would not be well enough to appear in court.

He was found guilty May 28 of eight counts of bribery and one count of conspiracy and automatically dismissed from office when the verdict was reached.

Death Sentence Changed To Life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Raymond Treloar, twice saved from the gas chamber by State Supreme Court rulings, has been sentenced to life in prison.

"No presumption of rehabilitation should ever run in his favor," Superior Judge Joseph A. Sprankle Jr. said yesterday.

He sentenced Treloar to five years to life for each of 15 robbery and kidnaping counts and ordered the sentences served consecutively.

Treloar, 35, was convicted of the murder of a North Hollywood bar patron in 1962.

Pension Fight Over, Ships To Sail Again

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A labor dispute that could have tied up 123 West Coast ships was over today.

The Pacific Maritime Association, which represents shipowners, and the Marine Engineers Union late yesterday settled their differences over contributions to the engineers' pension program.

The agreement permitted the American President Lines' President Roosevelt to sail from Pier 50 with 350 passengers on a 42-day cruise in the Orient.

The passenger ship had been scheduled to leave Thursday but it lay idle because engineers refused to board it. Two other ships, the cargo vessels President Polk and Hawaiian Queen, were kept at their piers because of a lack of engineers.

The union had claimed that the ship owners were not making contributions to its pension fund as required by the contract.

Details of the settlement were not immediately available.

Hotels Agree On Race Hiring Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The Hotel Employers Assn. of San Francisco and three civil rights groups have signed a 10-year "equal opportunity" pact guaranteeing fair hiring and ending hotel picketing.

The agreement includes approximate goals for the percentages of Negroes to be hired in various jobs.

Under the new agreement there are no mandatory "quotas" for the number of Negro or other minoriey group employees, but there are "goals" for the numbers hired in variouts job categories.

Hitchhiking Soldier Steps In Road, Dies

WASCO (AP)—A Fort Ord soldier, apparently hitchhiking home to Bakersfield, stepped in front of a car and was killed last night on Highway 46 about 13 miles west of Wasco.

Highway patrolmen identified him as Pvt. David Ramirez, 19.

Racial Violence Flares In New York, Ohio, Bay Area

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Race trouble flared overnight in New York, Ohio and on the San Francisco Peninsula.

A Negro was shot and wounded by white men in front of police early today after a relatively calm night in the racial strife in Cleveland, Ohio.

The shots were fired from an automobile at a car driven by Benoris Toney, 29, father of five, as the two vehicles entered a parking lot where police were investigating reports of a sniper shooting.

Police took the six men in custody. But keenly aware of Supreme Court decisions protecting the rights of suspects, the police gave absolutely no details of the shooting. They pushed newsmen at the shooting scene away.

The shooting occurred in a lumber yard parking lot, a block from the city's Italian section and several miles from the Hough slum area where racial violence which has plagued the city this week began.

Witnesses said Toney's car and another were driving west on Euclid Avenue when Toney cut into the Dougherty Lumber Co. parking lot, turned and started driving toward police there investigating the sniper report.

The second car cut into the parking lot and, when it was alongside, opened fire on the Negro man with a shotgun.

Toney's car rolled slowly across the parking lot. A policeman opened the door and Toney dropped to the pavement before the policeman could apply the brake.

Toney was taken to a hospital in critical condition. He may lose his eyes, doctors said.

The police confiscated a rifle and pistol from the suspects' car and found a pistol in Toney's car. They did not find the shotgun.

IN NEW YORK

Incidents of shooting and fire bomb throwing erupted early today to shatter what had been an unexpectedly quiet night in Brooklyn's explosive East New York district. Expected widespread violence failed to materialize.

Police reported two men — one an Italian American and the other Puerto Rican —were wounded shortly after 2 p.m. EDT by gunfire from an automobile containing Negroes. A police patrol car was fired on and more shots were pegged at a streetcorner gathering where City Human Rights Commissioner William Booth was speaking.

Two molotov cocktails and some bottles also were hurled at the gathering where Booth was speaking to a group of Negro youths. Two persons were injured.

Relative peace had prevailed until after midnight in the area wracked by violence the preceding night on which groups of Negro, Puerto Rican and white youths battled and an 11-year-old Negro boy was slain by a sniper.

PEACE CALL

Earlier, police were startled at an unexpected demonstration of harmony among a group of about 200 Negro and Puerto Rican youths. Spontaneously, they embraced and jumped to the tops of parked automobiles to proclaim:

"No more fighting —we want racial peace."

BAY AREA WOES

Trouble flared early today in Negro areas in East Palo Alto and San Francisco.

The disturbance in East Palo Alto and Menlo Park erupted with the arrest of a burglary suspect who complained of brutality when he was handcuffed.

Rocks and bottles were thrown at passing vehicles along Willow Road, an approach to Dumbarton Bridge across San Francisco Bay and sheriff's deputies closed the street for about an hour.

A crude kerosene bomb was pitched at the Oakwood Market but it failed to ignite after crashing through a window.

In San Francisco, crude gasoline bombs were tossed twice from a car racing through the Fillmore District. Neither bomb ignited.

A third bomb was found in an abandoned mansion, but it burned itself out without damage.

In the Menlo Park disturbance, a Negro man was arrested and accused of trying to run down an officer with his auto. two white persons were injured and about 50 police officers were called to the area after Negroes from nearby bars pelted a patrol car and other traffic with bottles.

Pentagon Lists Casualties From Viet Nam War

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Defense Department yesterday identified 10 U.S. servicemen killed in action in Viet Nam.

ARMY:

Chief WO 2 C Ronald J. Kinkead, husband of Mrs. Delores Kinkead, 112 East D St., Tehachapi, Calif.

Platoon Sgt. Bernard A. Green, husband of Mrs. Anneliese S. Green, 17911 Bullock St., Van Nuys, Calif.

MARINE CORPS:

PFC Michael R. Smith, husband of Mrs. Michael R. Smith, 1565 Buckeley Ave., Red Bluff, Calif.

Five Army men were identified as dead from other than hostile action. They included M. Sgt. LeRoy Barnes, husband of Mrs. Ann M. Barnes, 6731 Bright View, Glendora, Calif.

Churchmen Argue Johnson Policy

GENEVA (AP)—The World Conference on Church and Society was asked today to adopt a report containing outspoken criticism of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

At the same time, 72 American lay and religious leaders urged President Johnson not to take reprisals in the question of U. S. prisoners in Viet Nam.

The conference will study the report Monday at its final plenary session.

Soviets Promising Subway For Nasser

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser says the Soviet Union has promised to build a subway system in traffic-clogged Cairo.

Nasser did not disclose details of the proposed subway, but the deal apparently was made during Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's visit here in May.

Californian Steadfast In Hunt For Lost Son

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (UP I)— The father of a boy missing 11 days in Yellowstone National Park said today he would keep searching for his only son at least another two weeks.

William Johnson, 32, a Naval Ordinance Depot employee at Inyokern, Calif., said he would continue to tramp the area west of the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone for his 8-year-old son Dennis.

The boy disappeared in the desolate section of the park July 12 when he helped his father search for a 7-year-old sister. The girl, Mary Marcell Johnson, her mother and two younger sisters plan to remain at Canyon Village in the park's central section. Also still on the search is one of Johnson's brothers, Edmund Johnson of Ridgecrest.

Searchers have found no trace of the youth, not even a sign he might have left or a track, since he disappeared in the dense forest.

Shoulder-to-shoulder searches of a 75 square mile area in the park have turned up nothing and expert climbing teams scanning the steep edges of the canyon have found no leads.

Park officials have limited their search efforts to daily patrols of trails and the canyon.

One ranger said aerial surveillance would continue with the park helicopter during routine fire checks of the park each day.

The youngster disappeared in the north-central region of the park, between Canyon Village and Dunraven Pass.

The area has plenty of water and expert outdoorsmen have said he could survive the exposure if he knew how to glean food from the forest.

But one ranger said he doubted an 8-year-old boy would possess such skill and knowledge.

before the incident Thursday and had left letters of protest proving he had planned the fiery suicide.

South Viet Nam protested to the International Control Commission against infiltration of Communist forces through the demilitarized zone into the south and said the infiltrators had launched large-scale attacks July 15. That was the day the Marines first encountered the Communists in Operation Hastings near the demilitarized zone.

North Viet Nam published a lengthy report that charged the United States with sending its planes against churches, schools, hospitals, dikes, dams and populated areas in the past six months. Hundreds of civilians were killed in the raids, the North Vietnamese report said.

In other developments touching on the Viet Nam war:

— Red China spelled out in tough terms that the only end it saw to the war was total Communist victory. It hinted again at active intervention beside the North Vietnamese. President Liu Shao-chi, speaking at a giant Peking rally Friday, warned the United States "in all seriousness: do not miscalculate and do not misjudge your opponents."

— An Indian spokesman in New Delhi said the United States and India have had talks on the Viet Nam situation. He declined to comment on published reports that the United States had conveyed its displeasure to India over recent statements by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on the war. Indian sources said Friday the United States was particularly unhappy over her call for an immediate end to the bombing of North Viet Nam without any accompanying cutback in the Communist war effort.

— In Paris, French diplomat Jean Sainteny, just back from a visit to Hanoi and Peking for President Charles de Gaulle, said he thought North Viet Nam would carry through with threats to try captured U.S. airmen as war criminals but would not execute them.

Nurses Firm On Deadline For Quitting

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Some 2,000 San Francisco Bay Area nurses are holding firm in their resolve to quit Aug. 3 unless 33 hospitals grant them better working conditions and higher wages.

Representatives of the nurses met Friday night with state conciliators to work on a settlement, but spent most of the meeting arranging for pools of nurses for emergency service if they carry out their resignation plans.

There were no details available of any progress toward a settlement.

There are 3,644 nurses who could resign. Yesterday afternoon over half of them had.

Marin nurses were not involved in negotiations which collapsed early this week in San Francisco. They have agreed to defer their demands for higher pay and improved working conditions pending outcome of Bay Area negotiations.

Mediators will meet with hospital officials Monday. On Tuesday a joint negotiating session with nurses and administrators is scheduled.

Nurses are currently paid $420 to $515 a month in area hospitals. A pay raise to $500 to $570 has been offered, but the nurses want $613 to $782.

Berkeley Group Celebrates New Court Ruling

BERKELEY (UPI) — There was dancing in the streets last night as the Berkeley Viet Nam Day Committee (VDC) an anti-war group, staged a gala victory festival at the site of an April 12 rally that turned into a near-riot.

At the April rally, eight VDC speakers were cited for using sound equipment without city approval. When police attempted to stop the rally, which featured anti-war speakers, sidewalk scuffles ensued and ended with officers swinging nightsticks.

Last Tuesday the ordinance under which the police acted was declared unconstitutional by Municipal Judge George Brunn.

The permit for last night's rally specified it was to be limited to the sidewalks along Telegraph Avenue. But fairly early in the evening spectators spilled into the street and began diverting traffic.

Felon Abuses Helping Hand From His Honor

FRESNO (AP)—A man released recently after a 15-year prison term for forgery went to the sentencing judge for help.

Wayne L. Houser, 48, said he needed a hotel room and a job. Superior Court Judge Milo Popovich said he'd pay for the room and gave Houser the names of three hotels.

Houser went to one, checked in and then went down to the bar.

Yesterday Houser was back in jail. The hotel bartender told police he was ordering drinks for everybody in the house and charging the tab to the judge.

Houser was booked on intoxication.

PATROL

tasks of a newspaperman is the daily checking of these reports, each report accompanied by its meticulously detailed diagram showing where a mangled car ended up, where a victim's body lay on the highway or in a ditch, how far away a shoe, a handbag, or a toy was tossed by the impact.

When no such grisly records could be located today at the patrol's Corte Madera headquarters on Highway 101 a startled Sgt. Dukes phoned the chief dispatcher in San Francisco and said, "The newsman is here and we haven't got any accidents for him. Have you got any late reports for Marin?"

The answer was: "Nothing at all."

"I just can't believe it," said Dukes. "Nothing like that's ever happened before."

Dukes was almost unwilling to discuss what might account for the good news, for fear of breaking the spell.

He wasn't sure whether or not it was the result of the recent beefing up of the patrol on Highway 101 in Marin, currently a test county to see if additional cars on a given stretch will make motorists more cautious. The patrol in Marin has been increased from 38 officers on duty to 63.

"If we're accomplishing something, we're certainly happy about it," Dukes said. He added, "The public ought to get a pat on the back, too."

The reporter knocked on wood as he left the office. Somewhere, it seemed tragically inevitable, Accident No. 147 was getting the family car out of the garage.

Jury Gives Mixed Verdict On Fight With Deputies

A Marin Superior Court jury brought in a mixed verdict last night for two county jail inmates charged with assault and battery as a result of a brawl May 4 at the jail.

Fred Richard Jones, 18, of 251 Drake Avenue, Marin City, was found guilty of assault against Deputy Sheriff Leo Ballard and innocent on another count of assaulting Deputy Sheriff Edwin Koehn.

James Hardy, 20, of San Francisco, was found guilty of battery against Koehn and innocent of any attack on Ballard.

A battery conviction required proof of physical contact. Assault conviction does not require such contact.

Hardy and Jones became involved with other prisoners in a fight at the jail and assaulted the deputies, both jailers, seeking to break up the melee.

Jones faces a maximum sentence of two years in a state prison on the assault conviction. Hardy's battery conviction carries a possible one-to-ten-year prison sentence.

Superior Court Judge Harold J. Haley set Aug. 11 at 10 a.m. for hearing probation reports and sentencing.

In a letter to the commission, the Corte Madera council said Burke's plan "is not inconsistent with the Marin County General Plan," which proposed the area be developed as a golf course. Councilmen insisted that Burke be made to allow public access to the bay and to donate land for a marina green where the creek meets the bay.

Marinite Denies Murder Charge

Gary Rice, 27-year-old San Rafael mechanic, pleaded innocent yesterday in Santa Clara County Superior Court to charges of murder, armed robbery, conspiracy and burglary.

His uncle, Joseph James Tatton, an unemployed San Mateo restaurant worker, entered the same plea to identical charges.

Trial for both men was set for Sept. 26.

Still sought on the same charges is Rice's brother, Byron, 30, formerly of San Anselmo. The three men are accused of killing an armored car guard in Mountain View in February.

Corte Madera Woman In Critical Condition

Mrs. Oscar Witthoft, 70, was in critical condition today at Marin General Hospital, where she was taken after suffering what was thought to be a heart attack yesterday at her home, 173 Summit Drive, Corte Madera.

The Corte Madera Fire Department was called to give her oxygen at 11:15 a.m., and she was taken by ambulance to the hospital.

Hospital Sued By Dead Man's Kin

The wife and two daughters of Leo Redmond San Rafael resident who died last Aug. 30 at the age of 80, have filed a $15,000 wrongful death suit in Marin Superior Court against Fifth Avenue Convalescent Hospital of San Rafael.

Sabine Elizabeth Redmond and the daughters, Mary Jane Ball of San Rafael and Sally Elizabeth O'Brien of San Francisco, claim the hospital at 1601 Fifth Avenue was negligent when Redmond, a patient, fell there on Aug. 26.

They also charge the hospital improperly diagnosed and treated his injuries from the fall, causing his death. Redmond, who lived at Mission Avenue, entered the hospital last July 27.

State Highway Cost Reaches Record High

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Division of Highways reports the cost of building highways in California climbed 1.9 per cent during the second quarter of this year.

The division said Friday its highway construction cost index stood at a record 304.5 during the months of April through June, continuing an upward trend in costs which has been steady since 1964.

School Lunch Plan To Face Picket Lines

OAKLAND (UPI) — A civil rights group planned to picket the business of a member of the Oakland Board of Education today in protest of a new school lunch program.

"We think that free hot lunches are our most important immediate goal," a spokesman for the Ad Hoc Committee for Quality Education told newsmen Friday. "Before a child can learn he has to have a full stomach."

Picketing was scheduled at Cochran and Celli Chevrolet Agency. Melvin Caughell, past president of the school board, is an executive of the business.

The board approved Tuesday a limited free lunch program for 15 schools in Oakland which will give 12,000 children 10 lunches a month and add 3.5 cents to the school tax rate.

The picketing group said the 10-lunch plan is inadequate, discriminatory and humiliating to parents and children.

Scientists Work On Death Rays

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army scientists say they are preparing for production of portable rangefinders using laser or highly concentrated light beams for artillery forward observers.

It would be the first military use of the laser, a device involving the generation of light in a very narrow beam, focused to tremendous energy intensities.

Military scientists also are working on a possible death ray type weapon in the laser family, it was learned. This work is being carried on under supersecret conditions. Laser research also is moving toward the area of field communications, scientists said.

Traffic Incident Leads To Suit

A $250,000 personal injury suit was filed in Marin Superior Court yesterday as the outgrowth of a one-car traffic accident last Oct. 4 on Highway 101.

The plaintiff, Caryl Powers Offenbacker, 22, of 27 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael, alleges negligent and reckless driving by John Harvey Sparrow, 79 Bayo Vista Way, San Rafael, caused the accident and resulted in her suffering head injuries and face cuts.

According to her suit, she was a passenger in the Sparrow car when he engaged in a game of "tag" with another driver. The Sparrow car struck a median barrier near Greenbrae turnoff, she charges. Co-defendants in the suit are occupants of the second vehicle, James J. Burdick and Dawn M. Burdick.

Luci'd Rather Not Have Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Luci Johnson, the President's about-to-be-married daughter, has asked congressmen not to take up a collection to buy her a wedding present.

"I only want as personal a wedding as possible in circumstances in which I find myself," she said in a statement yesterday, after learning that House leaders had started the collection.

House Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., and House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan had sent members a letter inviting them to contribute, if they wish and any sum they wish, to buy the present.

Blast Kills Miner In West Virginia

MOUNT HOPE, W.Va. (AP)—One miner was killed and six others were trapped inside a coal mine near here today in what was described as a "tremendous explosion" deep underground.

An official of the Siltex mine of the New River Co. said 20 to 23 others had been inside, but that they all walked safely to the surface.

U.S. Rejects Russ Bombing Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States rejected today a Soviet protest against U.S. bombing at Haiphong.

It called on Moscow to help persuade North Viet Nam to halt its "aggressive activities" and start peace talks now.

The U.S. note also accused the Russians of "inaccuracies and false allegations" about the Viet Nam situation and said the Soviets have been "supplying petroleum products used by North Viet Nam to pursue its armed attack against South Viet Nam."

King Sister Asks Courtney Divorce

MARTINEZ (UPI)—Singer Yvonne King has filed a divorce suit against her husband, bandleader Del Courtney, after nine years of marriage.

Yvonne, one of the King Sisters, charged Courtney with extreme cruelty. Her suit was filed yesterday in Contra Costa County Superior Court.

The couple was married in North Hollywood on Feb. 10, 1957, and had no children. They have been living in Orinda.

Courtney, musical director for the San Francisco Giants baseball team, was the announcer on the King Family television show.

Mother, Youth Held On Charge Of Murder

YREKA (UPI)—At the conclusion of a preliminary hearing on murder charges, 25-year-old Joyce Helen Baggott and her stepson, Rocky, 16, were bound over to Siskiyou County Superior Court yesterday.

The two were accused of killing the woman's husband, Rocky's father, at a campsite July 1. He was Walter Allen Baggott, 41, of Arcata.

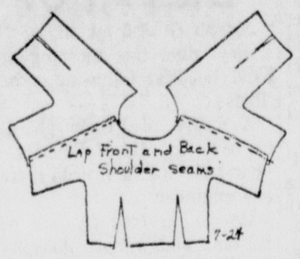
SEW SIMPLE

Takes Real Master To Create Chiffon

I would like some information about a pattern for a chiffon dress with the bodice cut all in once piece, front and back. There are no seams on the shoulder of the arm or the sleeve. The only seams are the underarm seam and a center back closing. The ready-made dresses are made like this, but I haven't been able to find a pattern like this. Could you tell me how this can be accomplished?

MRS. L. C. P.



DEAR MRS. L. C. P.:

I am most hesitant to give information about chiffons because it takes a real master with the needle to accomplish a costume room look to chiffons. Often it is a good idea to use a double layer of chiffon, in that way you can avoid facings. To finish a neckline, either use a very narrow bias, or if it is double, don't use inter-facing or a facing. Remember to trim all seams very close to the stitching line.

You will treat the seams as you would organdy, or any fabric that you can see through. Never notch out a seam or clip it. The same effect can be accomplished by trimming seams to ⅛ inch. Also, for a center back closing, you may wish to use tiny loops and covered buttons. Perhaps even leaving the back open except one button at the neck, and then continue the buttons 8 inches or 10 inches below the neckline would be suitable.

In order to avoid a shoulder seam, you must lap the seam-line of the front bodice over the seam-line of the back at the shoulder. You will not be able to have a shaped curve you would usually find on any raglan-type sleeve. It will have to be straight, since you won't have a seam to curve in. The softness of the chiffon makes it possible to do some of these unorthodox things and still have a beautiful effect.

Credit goes to my sister for this great idea for saving columns for future reference. I just had to pass it on to you. She took a medium size, loose-leaf notebook and filled it with legal sized envelopes. She punched holes in the lower edge of the envelopes to match the rings of the notebook. She placed the envelopes in the book with the flaps facing up as you open the book. On each envelope she has marked facings, altering patterns, and gussets. On the envelope she makes notes of exactly what is inside.

She doesn't try to save every column, just the ones she will refer to at some later date. She also has a large index card at the beginning. All in all, it's just about the neatest idea I've seen.

Many of you have written me that you have saved every one of my columns. Chances are that you'll never be able to find the one you are searching for when you need it unless you organize a system for yourselves. Thought this might be a good summer project for you. It will sure pay off when fall comes.

Mrs. William Wiskus, Bancroft, Iowa, is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix pressing board for the following suggestion.

"Here's a slick trick that can make homemade, little girls' dresses look ready-made. Make the collar for your small girl's dress out of a pretty handkerchief. Those with border designs make square collars. Those handkerchiefs with a design in the corner make Peter Pan type collars.

"The collar can be made of a single layer of fabric. Use binding at the neckline to cover raw seams. For real tiny gals, use handkerchiefs with applique designs of the fairy tale type!"

There are so many conflicting ideas on what size pattern to buy that I am always in doubt. When I buy a pattern according to the bust measurement, it is usually way too big. When I buy it according to my ready-made size, it is too small. Help!

MRS. J. S.

DEAR MRS. J. S.

I will give you the information we use in our school which has worked beautifully on about 98 per cent of the gals. Usually you should get a pattern that has a bust measurement 2 inches smaller than your actual measurement. If you have a large frame (not fat,) you may find you need to get one the same size as your bust measurement. You will probably find the waist and hip measurements are too small, especially if you're over 30. This is a simple adjustment to make.

Measure your chest, just above the fullest part of your bust. This measurement is usually 2 inches smaller than the fullest part of pour bust which would correspond to the size I told you to get. If there is more than 2 inches difference between these two measurements, you will have to increase the front only if you have a very large bust and a small back. On the other hand increase the size of the back if you are wide across the back and have a small bust.

Accent On Eye-Catching Fur, Color, Glitter In Fall Styles

ROME (UPI) — The Italian high fashion shows for international buyers and press went into their final phase today with the accent on eye-catching use of color, fur and glitter.

Designers showing on this fifth and next-to-last day of the fall-winter fashion previews were Centinaro, Faraoni, Brugnoli, and Di Lazzaro.

FABIANI, who presented his collection Thursday night, used glitter and fur to great effect by contrasting it with impeccably cut wools. A black wool, lightly belted pyramid coat reversed to silver lame to match its slim two piece dress in embossed lame. Another of Fabiani's carefully controlled pyramid coats reversed from orange wool to mink.

THIS DESIGNER'S silhouette favored the wide skirts for the dress and jacket ensembles that appear to have replaced the suit. Waists were marked by belts but not cinched.

For the woman who cannot make up her mind on the short skirt question, Fabiani provided an ingenious solution — two skirts. In a beige twist ensemble with double breasted jacket and knee-high boots, a wrap-around skirt fell to some five or six inches below the knee. It was then removed to show off a slim dress in the same fabric with a hemline that displayed the knee. An enormous red fox hat topped the outfit.

Lynn Thall To Wed In November

The engagement of Lynn Ellen Thall and Howard Paul Butterstein was announced by Lynn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marston M. Thall of Novato.

Lynn is the sister of Bill, Mark and Terri Thall and the granddaughter of Mrs. L. M. Miles of San Francisco and C. M. Thall of Novato.

She was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and was formerly with the Ice Capades for two years.

Howard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Johnson of Novato. He is the brother of R. G. Stevens of La Habra and Mary Butterstein and Rusty Johnson of Novato. The future bridegroom was graduated from Novato High School and is employed with Schuman Chevrolet in Novato.

A Nov. 26 wedding is planned by the couple.

WILD HORSE VALLEY

Wild Horse Valley offers... a homesite in a parklike setting—a clubhouse for the exclusive use of Wild Horse Valley residents, their guests and club members—swimming and wading pools—
one hundred thirty-eight magnificent acres filled with riding and walking trails, wild life and botanical treasures, all for the exclusive use of Wild Horse Valley residents, their guests and club members—financing plans to make it possible for 97 families to live in a manner they could only have dreamed of before—assurance by deed restriction that this last frontier will forever be held in its present state—as a private park—for the exclusive use of residents and club members.
With land costs rising to astronomical figures—with land development costs reaching impossible highs, it seems very likely that Wild Horse Valley will be not only the first, but the last such development possible in Marin County.

Swim, Supper Party In Kent Woodlands For Judy Owens

By MOLLY MARIN

It was a simple but delightful setting last evening when Mrs. Wakefield Baker honored her granddaughter, Marin debutante Judy Owens, with a combination swim, supper and dance party for 70 guests in the garden and patio of her Kent Woodlands home. Japanese lanterns and hurricane candles illuminated the area decorated with pink, yellow and green tablecloths and garden flower centerpieces. The honoree is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Dickerson of Ross.

SILVER AND WHITE bells and streamers decorated the San Rafael home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Pelto as relatives and friends honored them with a surprise party Saturday evening on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary. Cocktails and a midnight buffet were served the 65 relatives and friends who attended with long distance calls received from parents, sisters and brothers in Virginia, Minn. The couple have lived in the Bay Area since 1936 but were married in Minnesota. They have lived in San Rafael for 15 years. Walfred Pelto of Sleepy Hollow and George Pelto of San Anselmo are the honoree's brothers. The couple's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Russ Ketron, staged the affair just five days after the Peltos returned from a five-week tour of the Scandinavian countries. They met many cousins, aunts and uncles while there and Eleanor Pelto remarked, "I met an uncle I didn't even known existed."

NANCY MOORE, daughter of Belvedere's Mayor John B. Moore and Mrs. Moore, has been the houseguest of her aunt and uncle, Col. and Mrs. Harold E. Snow Jr. in Carmel. She accompanied the Snows to San Luis Obispo when her cousin, Jinks, took her placement exams for fall entry at Cal Poly. The two girls also enjoyed a visit to the Big Sur area and Pfieffer State Park. Nancy is the granddaughter of Mrs. Arnold Deckman of Mill Valley.

CAPT. AND MRS. Wallace Fisher will be living in Marin now that he has been assigned to the 78th United States Air Force Hospital at Hamilton Air Force Base. Mrs. Fisher is the former Eileen Smith, daughter of Mrs. Mildred Smith of Mill Valley. Captain Fisher was previously senior medical officer of the Phoenix Armed Forces Examination and Entrance Station in Phoenix, Ariz. The Fishers have one son, Marc.

A CAMPING trip at Lake Shasta and a week in Oregon was enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Gronberg and their three children, Linda, Carl and Paul. Dick's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gronberg of San Francisco, spent 10 days with them. Dick found a real fine fishing spot and got his limit on trout several days including a 16½-inch trout.

THE MERCURY Class International will bring hundreds of yachtsmen to Marin next weekend. Corinthian Yacht Club will be the headquarters during a week of racing. A dinner party will be held at the yacht club in Tiburon on Aug. 4. Thomas S. Clark is in charge of arrangements at Corinthian; Donald McCrea and Russ Schneidor, race committee members, will assist.

CYNTHIA STUART, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Stuart of Novato, was honored at a bridal shower on Wednesday by Sue Bottles and Sharon Bloom at the home of the Edward Dills of Mill Valley. Cynthia will marry Timothy Kane of Mill Valley on July 30. Attending were Mesdames Robert Graver, John Bloom and Malcolm Stuart, and Misses Sandra Richardson, Norcy Gorrill, Cynthia Hurley and Bette Fraze.

FORMER residents visiting in Mill Valley this week and last have included Mrs. Norman Freeman and the Ray Strongs. Mrs. Freeman, who now lives in Bryn Mawr, Pa., has been visiting her mother in La Jolla and came to Mill Valley last Thursday to say hello to old friends. The Strongs are staying with Mrs. Donald Fowler, who is living in the home of the Louis Wassermans while they are away. The Strongs now live in Santa Barbara. A noted artist, Ray Strong brought his sketching materials with him. His future plans include giving lectures at junior colleges and universities in the fall.

GUESTS of the John H. Hemingways in Mill Valley are her mother and sister, Mr. H. B. Whittlesey and Bee Whittlesey of Twin Falls, Ida. The Hemingways and their daughters, Muffet, Margot and Mariel, will return the visit in August and then go on to Sun Valley.

HOME IN Mill Valley from vacations at Lake Tahoe are the Neil Monroes and daughter, Karen, and the Charles Graffs and their children, Catherine, Margaret and Chad. The Monroes have their own cabin on the South Shore, and the Graffs have a summer home at Glen Village.

ECHOES OF the St. Stephen's House Tour were heard around the luncheon table Thursday when Mrs. James Crittenden entertained committee members who had enjoyed working together on the May Belvedere benefit. Guests included Mesdames John Wiley, Robert Morrison, Dick de Berry, Mark Noble, Christopher Peacock, Willard Pittman, William Myer, Walter Simiand, Jack Wellisch.

PRELIMINARY plans for the Belvedere Ball, sponsored by St. Stephen's Guild, call for a late October date and a complete change of locale—probably St. Francis Yacht Club in San Francisco.

MRS. FRANKLIN Busher of Tiburon honored Michael Ann Hawley with a dessert party and shower the Sunday evening before "Mike's" marriage to John Grbac of Tiburon today in Vallejo. Guests at the shower were the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Mate Grbac, his aunt, Mrs. Agnes Kirchner, his sisters, Mrs. Ray Chambers and Mrs. James McClure, and the Mesdames Edward Parnell, Kelly Wheeler, Nobe Kuwatani, Thomas Murphy and Aldo de Tomasi.

Lucas Valley Church Setting For Canon-De Saussure Rite

The Rev. Dale Nystrom was the officiating minister for the recent wedding of Jan De Saussure of Greenbrae and Ted J. Cannon in the Lucas Valley Community Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. De-Saussure of Greenbrae.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a suit of light blue linen and beige lace.

Mary Egan of Greenbrae, as maid of honor, wore a dress of olive green and light blue crepe.

Hal Canon of San Rafael served his brother as best man.

A brunch followed the ceremony at Dominic's Restaurant in San Rafael.

The bride is the sister of Steve and Jeff De Saussure of Greenbrae. Mrs. Beryl De Saussure of San Francisco is her grandmother.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hal Canon of San Rafael. Mrs. Frank E. Jerow of San Rafael is his grandmother.

Following a wedding trip to Lake Tahoe, the couple will live in San Rafael.

Don't Match, Match, Match Says Italian Makeup Artist

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American woman's mania for "match, match, match" everything in cosmetics and accessories adds up to one big mistake.

So does her desire to conform to fashion. And women out in public in curlers makes one observer of the American scene see red.

The blast at lack of individuality in dress and other criticisms comes from Pablo, the Italian-born makeup expert who is now designing faces for the Elizabeth Arden cosmetics firm.

"Hollywood is ruining American tastes," said Pablo. "Imperfection in Hollywood is all wrong. Everyone has to look like everyone else."

It is much better to be 'you' than a bad copy of someone else."

Italian Look Is Schoolgirl

ROME (UPI) — The sophisticated school girl was the heroine of the Italian high fashion shows today.

The look came from the collection of Patrick de Barentzen. This designer has long been noted for turning the simplest schoolgirl clothes into high fashion. He repeats the theme this season—but with a note of extra sophistication.

The Italian look for fall and winter as displayed by Lancetti Wednesday evening was almost military by day and frankly frivolous in the evening.

Lancetti, noted for his talents as a cutter, provided easy-to-wear little sheath and jacket outfits marked by slightly raised waists.

The favorite color of the collection was violet with green, orange, white and turquoise following.

Masae Iwamoto Is Engaged To Virgil Crossler

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Masae Iwamoto of Tiburon and Virgil Melvin Crossler of San Rafael.

The bride-elect, who is the daughter of the late Prof. and Mrs. Takehisa Iwamoto of Tokyo, Japan, was graduated from College of Marin and is attending San Francisco State College. She is the sister of Mrs. Pabs E. Martin and Mrs. Edward Rowley both of San Francisco and Hisao and Kaneo Iwamoto and Mrs. Tadashi Kurosaka of Tokyo.

The future bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William A. Crossler of Dayton. He was graduated from Dayton High School and is owner of the West End Shell Station in San Rafael.

The wedding will take place on Aug. 20.

Christine Schuman Engaged To Marry

CHRISTINE SCHUMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore R. Schuman of San Rafael are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Christine Janice, to Frederick David Lyford of San Diego.

The bride-elect was graduated from Menlo-Atherton High School and attended Arizona State University. Robert Schuman of San Jose and Harvey Schuman of Novato are her brothers.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Lyford of San Diego, was graduated from California High School in Whittier. He is a senior at Arizona State University where he is a member of the golf team. Mrs. Dennis Spencer of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Mrs. Patti Acosta of Whittier are his sisters.

The wedding will take place on Sept. 10 at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco.

Heavy Downpours Hit In Mountain States

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Showers diminished in scattered sections and more pleasant weather prevailed in most of the nation today.

Temperatures during the early morning ranged in the 60s and 70s in most parts of the country.

Heavy rain fell yesterday and during the night in parts of the South, the Midwest and the Rockies.

A severe wind, rain and hail storm swept the area of Gillette in northeastern Wyoming. Several persons were injured and buildings and crops were damaged. The storm caused a gas line to rupture in the eastern part of the town of 4,500 and broke power lines throughout the area. Homes were evacuated for fear of a gas explosion. Winds were reported at 80 miles an hour. Several funnel clouds were sighted outside the community.

Nearly three inches of rain doused La Junta, Colo., and more than 1.5 inches splashed Mobile, Ala. Lighter amounts were reported in parts of the Midwest. Rain also dampened areas in Florida, Louisiana and Texas.

Early morning readings ranged from 50 at Arcata, Calif., to 93 at Blythe, Calif.

Rare Indian Photos Turn Up In Files

FORT SILL, Okla. (UPI)—A set of 75 photographs depicting Indian life and made from rare glass negatives more than 80 years old have been presented to the Fort Sill Museum.

The wet plate negatives, made by former Fort Sill photographer William S. Soule, were uncovered recently by two California researchers.

Soule was an amateur photographer from Boston who apparently turned professional on his arrival in the west. His first published photograph was of a scalping victim in 1869. From 1869 until 1875 he was official post photographer at Fort Sill, keeping a photographic record of construction of the fort.

The valuable negatives are pieces of glass 8 by 10 inches in size. All are Indians, portraying such historical figures as Santana, Sitting Bear, Kicking Bird and Lone Wolf, all Kiowa chiefs; Little Raven, an Arapaho, and Ten Bears, a Comanche.

Researchers found the negatives in the audio-visual files of the Los Angeles Museum.

DRAMA REVIEW

'Lovely War' Wins Audience's Respect

By GWEN STONE

The Northern California premiere of "Oh, What a Lovely War" became "Wow, what a lively show!" at the Festival Theatre in San Anselmo last night.

Robert Adler, the artistic director, and company of 20 won the war and had no casualties. Using music-hall tactics and a pinch of Brechtian sideplay they achieved the impossible task of poking the message home where it hurts. All the favorits of Festival Theatre are here, including some new ones.

It is said Joan Littlewood created the satiric musical revue because of her feelings of awe and fury at the complacency of civilized man in his attitude toward war. The job was a large one but she based it on research of actual events of World War I. The songs sung in the trenches were actual parodies written by the soldiers during that war.

From the time Robert Cowell as the Pierrot master of ceremonies greets the audience and the musical fun and games begin, you become so engrossed in this provocative spectacle; this admixture of passionate protest and clowning, that you just hold onto your seat and wonder what's coming next.

This original production—replacing the Straw Hat Revue, but by no means diminishing its musical and hilarious status—will play Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. and Sundays at 7:30 p.m. during its summer run.

The Pierrots, male and female, are superb in all the scenes. The musical Pierrots, with direction by Larry Snyder, headed by pianist Richard Meder, had the gargantuan task of tying the musical strings together, and they did it well.

The flexible stage arrangement designed by Tom Borden, lighting by Patric Hickey and costumes designed by Bella Edidin help to make this a brilliant production.

Three scenes and a song which demand special attention are "Make a Man of You," sung by Deidre Green and the girls; the French-speaking general scene with Louis Bennett; Robert Cowell as the drill sergeant in the recruiting scene and the soldiers singing the ding-dong bell song while burying their dead. The scene became a ritualistic ballet with the general (played by Dale Moffitt) standing on a near-by balcony, complete with dunce-cap, silently directing their singing.

Also to remember, the poignant parade of wounded marching by, singing "Pack Up Your Troubles."

In Miss Berryhill's words: "This revue provides a very good time had by all in 1966 over a very bad time had by all between 1914-1918." C'est la guerre—it ain't nice, but "Oh, What a Lovely War" is!

Roger E. Towne Divorce Filed By His Wife

Roger E. Towne, once co-owner of the Towne-Martin Lincoln Mercury dealership in San Rafael, yesterday was sued for divorce by his wife, Mary.

She charges cruelty. The couple wed in La Jolla on June 20, 1964. They had no children.

According to Mrs. Towne's suit in Marin Superior Court, a property settlement agreement was made last July 15 in which Towne also agreed to repay her $3,000 which she contributed to the marriage. The payments will be made at $250 monthly, according to the agreement.

The auto agency, which opened Sept. 18, 1953, was object of a host of civil suits in Marin Superior Court against the firm and alleging fraud and misrepresentation.

Four car salesmen and executives, formerly connected with the firm, were convicted in Marin Superior Court of criminal car sales fraud charges on March 9, 1958.

The Townes reside at 195 Hivista Road, Sausalito. He formerly was married to Jackie Towne.

Judge Clamps Lid On Juvenile Arrest News

UKIAH (AP) — A judge told Mendocino County employees yesterday they will be considered in contempt of court if they tell reporters the names of juveniles charged with crimes.

Judge Robert Winslow said that releasing names of those less than 18 years old is "inconsistent with the philosophy of the juvenile court law which has established elaborate safeguards to avoid attaching the 'delinquent' label to those who get into difficulty."

The Juvenile Court judge said his court order is unusual.

He based it on a U.S. Supreme Court ruling in the case of Dr. Samuel Sheppard as well as on juvenile court law. Dr. Sheppard, convicted of murdering his wife in Ohio, was granted a new trial.

Judge Winslow quoted that decision as saying "The court should have made some effort to control the release of leads, information and gossip to the press by police officers, witnesses and the counsel for both sides."

"If it applies in the case of adults, it applies more so in the case of juveniles," he said.

Judge Winslow's court order was directed to all county officials, including probation officers, juvenile hall employees and police officers operating in the county or any of its political subdivisions.

He noted that "various newspapers in the county are increasingly reporting the names of juveniles arrested for various offenses."

The order effects release of information to representatives of newspapers, radio and television stations.

Larcenous Employees Cost Firms Fortunes

SAN DIEGO—Employee theft and shoplifting losses amounting to an estimated $5 billion annually also are the cause of more than 1500 business failures each year in the U.S.

"Fully one-third of all mercantile failures over a 10-year period are attributable to employee dishonesty" according to Jerry Neilson, president of the San Francisco-based security consultant and investigative firm, Neilson and Green.

Neilson is a director of the Professional Investigators Assn. of California which met in San Diego over the weekend.

Citing the more than $800,000 lost by a major dry goods chain last year, Neilson said, "Company officials won't talk about it in public. It's difficult to explain to stockholders how employees can steal nearly a million dollars a year.

"Theft prevention is big business," Neilson added. "If a firm with a $50 million sales volume can reduce its losses by only one-half a percentage point, it would get the same profit results if sales were increased by an additional $13 million."

The average department store earns a net profit of 23 cents on every $10 in sales. Employee theft and shoplifting losses amount to 16 cents for each $10 in sales, Neilson explained.

For the mathematically minded, Neilson added, money or merchandise stolen represents lost net profit to the business. Based on an average net profit, there must be sales of $4,000 without profit to make up for each $100 stolen.

"If somebody steals a $5 purse, net profit about 10 cents, his means the store has to sell 50 purses at this price without profit just to make up the loss," Neilson said.

The business security consultant predicts an increased theft prevention effort due to the tightening money market. The increased management emphasis is part of the belt-tightening, cost-trimming effort to increase profitable cash flow.

Neilson said accurate loss figures concerning employee theft were unobtainable. This is because many firms do not report their losses. Claims figures do not tell the whole story. Insurance companies pay only when theft of merchandise and money can be proved and where the culprit has been identified or confessed.

Experts say 80 per cent of all losses are due to dishonest employees. These include pilferage, till tapping, embezzlement, misappropriation and fraudulent conversion, he said.

"Too many firms lump all loss figures under the euphemistict terms of inventory depreciation or inventory shrinkage," Neilson said.

"Businesses are becoming more inclined to call 'a thief a thief' and do something about it," he added.

A security checklist based on the "who, what, when, where, why and how" of newswriting is now being used to prevent theft:

"Who is in a position to steal? This covers employees, customers, visitors, shippers and professional thieves.

"What can be stolen? Everything from food and cosmetics to heavy machinery.

Where do thefts occur? Supply areas, warehouses, tool rooms, shipping docks, sales counters, merchandise racks, cashiers cages and out of trucks, cars, etc.

"When do people steal? Professional thieves seek out opportunities. The borderline thief steals whenever there doesn't seem to be any barrier to theft. The amateur thief steals only when the opportunity is overwhelming. This applies to both internal theft and shoplifting.

"Why theft? Experts say management inattention to the problem is one reason. Another is that few companies fully investigate references. And only rarely do businesses appeal to employee loyalty for ideas on how to protect losses.

"How to protect profits? This is the $5 billion question. The answer starts with management recognition that a positive security program is needed to protect against theft, robbery, defalcation, falsified credit references, forged documentation, industrial espionage and phoney expense accounts, and to protect property, material and cash receipts.

"We know that opportunity is the common factor.

"Industrial and mercantile businesses are painfully aware of the profit drain and are now calling for expert help to plug up the holes in their security programs."

Peninsula Man Jumps Off Span

A 43-year-old Palo Alto mechanical engineer yesterday became the 305th known person to plunge to his death from Golden Gate Bridge.

The California Highway Patrol said William Emil Thomas walked across the bridge and at 10:15 a.m. climbed a railing to fall 175 feet to rocks near the northeast anchorage.

According to the Santa Clara County Sheriff's office, his wife, Helene, reported her husband had been receiving psychiatric treatment.

Special Meeting

Marin County Housing Authority Commissioners will hold a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. today, to authorize securing a time extension of the authority's option to purchase Homestead Valley property for elderly housing. The option now expires Aug. 5. The commission will meet at 429 Drake Avenue, Marin City, in the authority office.

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Journalism's Youngest Star Takes Over The Critic's Chair

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Perhaps you have heard of Miss Susan Gail Torri, 10 years old, who is a newspaperwoman in the remote mountain hamlet of Sierraville, Calif. (population: 300).

Miss Torri, who may well be the youngest newspaper reporter in the country, is the Sierraville correspondent of the weekly "Mountain Messenger" in nearby Downieville. And we first heard of her after her work came to the attention of network television's "Today" show, and was followed up by a big news story about her. Sample of her concise, no-minced-words reporting:

"Mrs. Francis Wright, while helping her husband at their filling station, dropped a gasoline nozzle on her toe. She spent the week wearing sandals."

Anyway, it suddenly occurred to us that since so much of television entertainment is aimed at youngsters, perhaps one such young person should have the chance to review it. We immediatly thought of the talented Miss Torri, and called her publisher, R. Peter Ingram. He was most cooperative, and so was Susan, who promptly and quickly produced a column at our request. It follows in full:

"I like almost every show that there is on television. There are very many good shows.

"On Monday nights I watch 'Hullabaloo.' They have singers and singing groups. I like this program because they usually have good songs. I like to dance to the go-go and to all the other songs.

" 'Dr. Kildare' I like very much. There is always some excitement. I also like Zoey who is a nurse. She likes Dr. Kildare, but he doesn't pay any attention to her. I like all the workers in the hospital. It all seems so real. It makes me feel like I'm right there helping.

"I like Andy Williams sometimes. I like to hear him sing. I wish his show would come on earlier so that Mom would let me watch it. The times that I've seen it, I've like it.

"On Tuesday nights I watch 'My Mother the Car'. It's funny. The car is the man's mother and she tells him what to do. And she is always right. I like that.

" 'Please Don't Eat the Daisies' is funny too. I like the big house, the four boys, and all the problems. I think that if one doesn't have a dog, Ladadog will certainly make him feel at home. It sure makes me feel like part of the family. I like that. 'Dr. Kildare' is on half an hour on Tuesday, so I watch the end of the show.

" 'Tuesday Night at the Movies' I watch if there is no school. I like Westerns on that and love stories. They always have good movies, and it gives people a chance to see a movie once a week.

" 'The Virginian' is a Western. I always see that. When Betsy used to be on the program, I liked to hear she and Randy sing. But Betsy isn't on any more; instead Jennifer is. Anyhow, Randy still plays his guitar. I like them to gather up cows and to have robberies. It's long, and it goes into detail. Therefore, they have time for a lot of excitement.

" 'Daniel Boone' is on Thursday night. I like it when he goes out in the woods and talks to the Indians, or when he goes to another fort close by. 'Laredo' is funny, and Chad and Joe are always teling Reese something to make him work or do dangerous things while they go into the saloon. I think it's funny. I sometimes watch 'Thursday Night at the Movies.'

"Friday, 'Camp Runamuck' is on. That's when the fun begins. The leaders try to take care of little boys who get funny feelings when the girls come from across the lake. One guy shakes when he sees a pretty girl, so another guy has to slap him. I think that's funny. I like everything about it. 'Hank' is funny, too. He's a college student, and he has a truck which takes the laundry. People buy sandwiches and coffee and such from him.

" 'I Dream of Jeannie' is on Saturday night. I wish they would give it more time, so it could go into more detail. But I like it anyway. 'Flipper' is very exciting all the time. Flipper is always helping someone. I think it's very exciting. 'Get Smart' is funny. He says something that is real big, and someone else makes him make it smaller and smaller.

"On Sunday nights Walt Disney is on. They always have real good shows. The guy on 'Branded' is always getting into trouble, but it always works out all right. He helps other people. 'Bonanza' is always real good. I like Westerns. They always have a good story.

"The show I don't like is the Sammy Davis Jr. show. I don't like his singing, and he always is doing something silly like smoking on his show and such."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Too Much Sun, Certain Drugs Produce Photodermatitis Woes

VAN DELLEN

Every spring and summer a middle-aged woman develops a brownish discoloration of the skin behind the ears and on the neck. It disappears in the winter. We discovered that she was applying perfume or cologne to these areas which sensitized the skin to the rays of the sun. A localized pigmentation (photodermatitis) ensued over the exact sites at which the perfume was applied. Ultraviolet rays from a sunlamp did the same.

CERTAIN chemicals and plants are capable of doing the same to persons with this type of sensitivity. Others develop pigmentation over exposed areas when taking drugs internally. The most common offenders are specific dyes, barbiturates, sulfonamides, chlorpromazine, quinine, and gold salts. The psoralens produce marked photosensitivity and are used occasionally to stimulate pigment among those who burn before they tan.

Almost everyone except the dark, full-blooded Negro has varying degrees of tolerance to the sun. Blonds and redheads have the least and usually burn or freckle after moderate exposure. Those with an inherent photosensitvity develop small blisters or bumps over the areas after prolonged exposure. The bridge of the nose and cheeks are the most sensitive. Itching also may occur. Some individuals develop herpes (cold sores) on the lips after they sit out in the sun.

WHEN a child is intolerant to ultraviolet he is likely to be very susceptible to sunburn and excessive freckling. Some areas remain pink and scaly after continued exposure. These youngsters should be taught to avoid undue prolonged exposure without limiting their activity or creating frustration. Some authorities believe that these youngsters are future candidates for skin cancers unless this is done.

Those reacting to sunlight should avoid the direct rays or use a commercial sunscreening agent. Some of the most popular contain red petrolatum or para-aminobenzoic acid ester. However, they help but cannot prevent a reaction when the skin is highly photosensitive.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

TIRED FEET

M. C. writes: What would be best for soaking hot, tired feet after walking and standing? The mailman recommends Epsom salts. He walks many miles every day, plays golf, goes bowling four nights a week, and ice skates. Do you think his idea is any good?

REPLY

No, but it will do no harm. Ordinary hot water is just as effective.

CLUES NEEDED

M. O. writes: Can a person know if he has heart trouble?

REPLY

It is suspected when there are symptoms such as shortness of breath, chest pain, irregularity of the heart or fainting spells. Otherwise, he must rely upon physical examination, chest X-rays, and the electrocardiogram.

WANTS CHANGE

M. R. writes: I'm 17 years old and would like my face changed as much as possible. Would it be better to wait until I'm 21?

REPLY

Yes, and longer if need be. By that time you are more likely to be content with what you have.

CATNAPS

V. E. R. writes: Does falling asleep in a chair tend to cause heart trouble?

REPLY

No, if anything, the heart welcomes the additional relaxation.

WASHINGTON — In the not-too-distant future, a government bureaucrat may push a computer button and come up with a complete dossier on every citizen in the United States.

This Orwellian prospect will be the subject of hearings beginning in late June, A House Government Operations subcommittee has announced.

"The computerized man" and its impact on "the fundamental precepts of our society" will be focused upon by the special subcommittee on the invasion of privacy.

The issue was brought to a head by President Lyndon B. Johnson's recent appointment of a Budget Bureau task force to consider the possibility of centralizing all the federal government's personnel records in one computer center.

The President's proposal was made in the interest of efficiency and cost-cutting, said subcommittee chairman Rep. Cornelius E. Gallagher, D-N.J.

"This increased pressure for efficiency will move us toward centralization far beyond what Orwell had in mind," Gallahger said.

"We have to look into the pagodas of bureaucratic surveillance," he said.

The computerized man, Gallagher said, would be relatively easy to assemble. On one punch card, data on virtually every citizen from birth to death, and including school, military, financial, matrimonial, pyschological, and legal records, could be compiled, he said.

"We are about to change the fundamental precepts of our society and our Jewish-Christian heritage of forgiveness," he said.

"Computers don't forget or give," Gallagher said.

He said the subcommittee does not want a witchhunt against government agencies that collect such information. But he said the question needs a thorough airing, and that the subcommittee will consider legislation to implement the constitutional guarantees of individual rights.

Gallagher said he plans to call government agency officals, sociologists, data processors and "concerned citizens" to testify and "create a climate of concern."

The sub-committee is not trying to stop technological advancement, Gallagher said, but wants to prevent corrosion of individual civil liberties and civil rights.

No Hot Dogs, Gas Stations In Remote Mendocino Pass

AS WE ALL KNOW, California is being overrun by people as our population explosion continues.

There was a time not so many years ago when vacation time afforded the opportunity for many of us to retreat to the Sierra and, even without packing-in to some remote spot, find a quiet place where we were unlikely to see another human being for as much as a full day or two.

Now it is getting exceedingly difficult to find a place to park in some of yesteryear's remotest places.

THERE ARE, HOWEVER, still some remote areas not yet overrun by people. And some of them are nearer home than we ordinarilly think.

The Mendocino Pass area is one of these.

If you glance at a road map you will see 12 miles north of Willits on the Redwood Highway a road branching from Longvale (little more than a speck on the map) to Dos Rios and Covelo.

Covelo is remembered by many as one of the first places in California visited by a bank failure since depression days a third of a century ago. Covelo's "Pioneer Bank" closed its door involuntarily several years ago before failure overtook Don Silverthorne's bank across the Bay. Covelo also is notable in that it adjoins Round Valley Indian reservation.

TWENTY-FIVE MILES eastward and upward from Covelo, along a reasonably smooth, mostly unoiled gravel road, you reach Mendocino Pass at 5,006 feet elevation.

Since Covelo is just under 1,400 feet elevation, you climb more than 3,600 feet in the course of the 25-mile drive to the pass, located at the juncture of Mendocino, Glenn and Tehama County boundary lines.

Nearby, almost in the shadow of Anthony Peak, is one of the finest Forest Service campgrounds you will ever find.

Anthony Peak, incidentally, is the highest mountain in the Redwood Empire at 6,963 feet. Nearby, Black Butte in Glenn County reaches up 7,450 feet.

There are 10 Forest Service campgrounds in the Mendocino Pass high country and—excepting the height of deer season—you can count on a choice of campsites whenever you arrive.

THE MENDOCINO PASS route will take you ultimately to Highway 99-W (on the west side of Sacramento Valley) at Willows, Orland or Corning, depending on which downhill route you choose.

The Mendocino Pass Highway Association comprises visionary civic leaders from Ukiah and Willits on the west end and from Willows (the Glenn County seat) on the east end. That they are visionaries is attested by their designation of the torturous route as a "highway." Logging road would be a more apt description for much of it, authough it is negotiable by private automobile in dry weather.

By the shortest route, it is more than 100 miles between the Redwood Highway and Highway 99-W, most of it without a sign of a hot dog stand or gas station. The only vehicles you are likely to encounter are logging trucks, Forest Service trucks, road construction equipment, and a sprinkling of campers and hunters, mostly in rugged four-wheel drive pickups.

If you pass more than one regular passenger car in the most mountainous 50 miles, it will be extraordinary.

WE DON'T ORDINARILY associate mile-high mountain country, Sierra-type wilderness or skiing with the Redwood Empire.

The Redwood Empire Counties do have a number of mile-high mountains. North Trinity Mountain, Humboldt County's highest peak, towers 6,262. Twin Peaks in Del Norte County rise to just under 6,000 feet. Josephine County, Oregon, boasts several peaks over 6,000 feet.

The Humboldt Ski Club skis in its own backyard, so to speak, at Titlow Hill Winter Sports Area about 30 miles East of Arcata on Highway 299 (to Weaverville and Redding).

RANGERS WHO PROWL the snowbound Mendocino National Forest in the wintertime report a very fine natural ski bowl not far from Mendocino Pass. It is, of course, inaccessible in wintertime, except by helicopter.

But road improvement is progressing, and one day in the not too distant future it may be possible to drive from Marin to a new mile-high winter sports area closer than the Sierra and in less time than it takes to reach the Sierra even on today's high speed freeways.

When this happens, resorts will blossom along the Mendocino Pass highway as will hot dog stands and service stations. Traffic will abound. Thousands upon thousands will enjoy it. But it will no longer be a remote area where you can "get away from civilization."

The history of California recreation areas will have repeated itself again.

Bouquets And Brickbats

A BOUQUET to Marin's Air Force recruiting office, operated by S/Sgt. Erhardt E. Bonkowski, for posting the best recruiting record of 29 recruiting offices in the West during the month of June.

A BOUQUET to Sheila Cornett of Novato, who was crowned "Miss Marin" at the Sonoma-Marin District Fair in Petaluma. She will enter the Maid of California contest in Sacramento.

A BOUQUET to Navy Reserve Lt. Gerald N. Burton of San Anselmo for the courage and skill he displayed in landing his flaming plane on a Pennsylvania airfield last week, saving the lives of all nine men aboard.

A BOUQUET to Mrs. Eleanor G. Murray, who has been voted San Rafael's outstanding senior citizen of the year. For 35 years she taught Latin and was dean of girls at San Rafael High School, until her retirement in 1957

BOUQUETS to the cities of Sausalito and San Anselmo, which have had no fatal traffic accidents for 11 and 10 years, respectively. They received safety plaques from the California State Automobile Assn.

BRICKBATS to parents and babysitters who allow little toddlers to wander unattended onto sidewalks and streets.

THREE MINUTES A DAY

By JAMES KELLER

WHETHER YOU TALK OR NOT

Most people talk only 10 or 11 minutes a day, according to a survey made by Temple University Medical Center.

Carefully measured tests revealed that the standard spoken sentence takes only 2½ seconds.

The survey pointed out that people do far more communicating with their eyes and eyebrows, facial expressions, hands and shoulders than they do through the spoken word. Silence also conveys one's feelings.

We all communicate our ideas by words, gestures or without making the slightest sounds.

Be sure, then, that the thoughts or impressions that you convey actually reflect the best in you.

Go one step further. See in each remark you make and in every other form of communication an opportunity to share your good ideas with others.

Show your gratitude to God for whatever blessings He has bestowed on you by being His instrument of truth, goodness and beauty.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Congratulations For Fourth Street

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Public acknowledgment should be given to our City Engineer and to the Department of Public Works for the excellent job accomplished in converting the parking and resurfacing of Fourth Street.

The exceptionally fine planning that preceded the work resulted in practically no inconveniences to the commercial area or to the buying public.

The "new look" is even beyond expectations and the many favorable comments clearly indicate that the public will be quick to adjust to the new system.

Our City Council may point with justifiable pride at this aggressive step in giving downtown San Rafael a modern city's appearance. Shoppers from all areas of Marin will benefit by the ease in traffic flow.

Daughter Stranded By Airline Strike

Editor, Independent-Journal:

Where does a person go for help for what seems like an unjust problem?

I'm sure I'm writing for thousands of people—Just who is expected to carry the burden of expense and inconvenience for the machinists airline strike?

My 18-year-old daughter and her friends are stranded in Honolulu (I'm sure she doesn't mind). She had reservations to fly home on United, July 12. I contacted the Airlines here July 8, the day of the strike and asked what could be done to get her home and back to her part-time job, which she needs to help with college expenses. I was told that the Airlines would contact her to book passage on Pan-Am (the only line flying that route). Well, they waited till the 12th, the day she was due home—to tell her to book passage.

Unless an unforeseen cancellation occurs, she can't come back till Aug. 16—over a month away. She was down to her last $5 and made her sixth reverse-charge call home for more money.

We saved for this trip as a graduation gift for her. With four other children in the family, the added expense is a terrific imposition.

I realize many people will be hurt more than we are by this strike—but it seems the unsuspecting public should be reimbursed legally for this imposition.

Who knows the answer to this problem?

Be Careful About Cutting Land Taxes

Editor, Independent-Journal:

P. J. Rowland's concern with the uneven tax load is justified because Americans believe in fair play. And it is not always fair when one type of property receives assessment advantages not enjoyed by a different kind of investment.

But a hasty leap to a new tax base can introduce evils as damaging as the ones we hopefully wish to replace.

We must not forget the old saying that the power to tax is the power to destroy. The old saying is true if a tax on the production of goods or wealth is enforced.

Goods will become a little more scarce, and a little more expensive as the burden is applied. Sufficient tax pressure on production will destroy the enterprise. In other words, a tax can destroy wealth.

But the old saying is not quite so infallible when the precept is applied to land. Who knows of a piece of land destroyed by a tax? Nobody, of course! Since the land can't be destroyed by a tax, quite different results take place when the tax is applied here.

The price of land drops, because the speculative advantages of land ownership disappear. This means that land becomes more available.

Since man has never devised an enterprise that did not use land, the effect of a land tax—separate from the improvements—can be an increase of available goods and wealth!

Let's examine these interesting ideas with extreme care before advocating changes that may lose what we want most!

Reed Pay Increases Bring Taxpayer Ire

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In the I-J of July 13, there was an article headed in large type, "Reed Teachers Given Budget Windfall Raise." To my way of thinking, after the top-heavy budget was completed, any funds which had not been allocated should have gone back to the Reed District operating fund, which had been originally taken out of the district taxpayers' pockets.

But this was not the case. Instead of giving the benefit of this extra money to the overloaded Reed taxpayers, our big-hearted Reed School Board gave it as an extra raise in salary to the teachers, staff and principals, in ADDITION to the annual step raises which they also receive each year.

All these new raises will have to come out of each year's budgets from now on, as they will be permanent.

This closed corporation does not know the meaning of the word economy. Reed School District is notorious for having one of the highest tax rates in the County. I cannot see where the children in the Reed District are taught any better or are any smarter than other children in Marin County. Regardless of their backgrounds, the school personnel know how to work on the school board for salaries over and above the scales now being paid in the rest of the County.

The Tiburon councilmen are worried about all the for sale signs on the Tiburon property. One of the main reasons for this is that the high school taxes are driving people out of the Tiburon Peninsula area.

During the County Supervisors Board of Equalization hearings on appraisals, the complaining taxpayers were told to go after their school boards for tax relief and, believe me, they surely were handing out good advice.

Fate Of Home Rule Bill Riding On Senator Morse Performance

By BARRY SCHWEID
(James Marlow is ill.)

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse will put his recognized talent as a parliamentary tactician on the line in the Senate in the next few weeks, with the fate of home rule for the District of Columbia riding on the outcome.

The Oregon Democrat's plan is to force a vote on self-representation for Washington's 800,000 citizens by bypassing the House District of Columbia Committee, the burial ground for home rule legislation since World War II.

UNTIL MORSE, one of the most persistent of home rule advocates, stepped into the breach, home rule appeared dead for this session of Congress.

Whether he can force passage may depend on how much support the White House gives him.

Early last September, the prospects for home rule appeared brighter than they had at any time since 1874, the year Congress substituted appointed commissioners for local government.

In response to a personal plea from President Johnson, a majority of House members had, by petition, forced the administration's home rule bill from the committee and brought it to the floor for a vote.

Johnson said the step presaged "victory in the final battle of the American Revolution." Home rule supporters were jubilant: The President's power of persuasion had carried the day again.

By the end of the month the jubilation had turned to despair.

While the administration bill would have given Washington a mayor and council, the House passed a substitute bill providing for a referendum on whether district residents want home rule.

There matters stood when Congress quit for the year and there they stood Sunday when Morse announced his plan at a home rule rally at the Washington Monument.

The fact that about 62 per cent of Washington's residents are Negroes undoubtedly has a lot to do with the failure of hundreds of home rule bills in past years.

THERE HAVE been hints that continued failure may touch off an explosion. For example Marion Barry Jr., Washington head of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, vowed last week: "We aren't going to be nice anymore in demanding changes because we're tired of that mess."

What Morse plans to do is to attach a modified version of the Senate-passed home rule bill to the administration's higher education bill, expected to clear the Senate Labor and Education Committee in a few weeks.

If the Senate approves the amendment, the bill would go to the House Education and Labor Committee, headed by Rep. Adam Clayton Powell Jr., who supports the Morse plan.

So far this year, Johnson has had little to say about home rule.

Home rule advocates are hoping he'll take a more active role.

TO BE EQUAL

No Real Equality With Segregation

By WHITNEY M. YOUNG, JR.

(First of Three Articles)

In 1954 the Supreme Court delivered its historic decision declaring segregated schools unconstitutional. The decision was grounded on the realization that an inferior education handicaps an individual and breeds poverty and feelings of inferiority.

Ten years later, the Congress passed the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which included Title IV, a provision banning racial discrimination in federally-aided programs and which authorizes the government to withhold funds to compel integration.

DESPITE THESE measures, our nation's schools are still segregated. North and South, integration is a dream rather than a reality. U.S. Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II told a School Administrators Conference cosponsored by the National Urban League and Teachers College, Columbia University, that only about 5 per cent of Negro students in the South attend classes with white students. In the North only 15 per cent of Negro students are in integrated classes.

The twelve years which have slipped by since the Supreme Court decision have resulted in few gains in integration and a loss in quality in many school systems. I frankly can't see how quality education can be separated from integration.

IN A DEMOCRACY the schools serve the function of preparing their students for their future roles as responsible citizens, while transmitting to them the cultural heritage of their country. They also equip them with the skills they need to contribute to the nation's economy.

None of these functions of the educational sustem can be met by segregated schools. Educators realize that students get only a partial education if theyare not exposed to different ideas and people. Diversity is as essential to learning as reading primers.

FRANCIS KEPPEL, former Assistant Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, in his new book, "The Necessary Revolution in American Education" shows how important this is. He says: "It may well be that learning to read is no more important to a child than learning how to get along with children who are brighter or less bright than himself, who are richer or poorer than he, who come from a race or religion or national background different from his own. . . . A child who lives in a hothouse may flounder as an adult when he finds around him in his business, his church, his street persons he never met as a child. If the Negro child needs an integrated school to put the lie to his self-image of inferiority and to win the same quality of education available to white children, then the white child needs to avoid the elitist image of himself as superior."

The Negro child is even more damaged than the white child by segregated schools. He is handicapped by rundown schools, fewer facilities, outmoded equipment, and a teaching staff which is often drawn from younger, less experienced teachers. One study showed that three-fourths of the teachers in a ghetto school had temporary teaching licenses. The result of this inferior education is a deterioration of the child's abilities. A study of schoolchildren in a central Harlem school district showed that their median IQ's were lowered between the third grade and the eighth grade. This is not education, it is miseducation. Small wonder that the dropout rates in these schools are so high. In effect, these kids don't drop out, they are pushed out by a system which fails to prepare them for a life of opportunity, but instead prepares them for a life of failure.

Fortunately, many people see this not as a mere matter of concern, but as a national scandal. Next week I will discuss some of the ways suggested to bring both education and quality to our schools.

Westerners Embarrass Saigon

By RICHARD H. GROWALD

SAIGON (UPI) —The shoeshine boy who operates on the corner of Tu Do and Ngo Duc Ke streets clutched a bat as an added come-on for customers.

It was a live, or barely live bat. The youngster, shod only in dirt and wearing caked khaki shorts and a buttonless, tail-flapping shirt, held the bat in his right hand.

"Shoeshine, mister." The three-and-a-half footer commanded as much as asked.

"No," answered the foreigner.

The boy set the shoeshine kit on the pavement with his left hand and then gripped the bat's wings, first stretching them and then closing them like an accordion.

He pushed it up in the foreigner's face.

"Shoeshine, mister," he said. "No," said the foreigner.

The boy pulled the lighted cigarette from his mouth and shoved the filter end into the bat's mouth. Then he returned the cigarette to his own mouth and blew smoke in the bat's face. Then he returned the butt to the bat's mouth. Smoke curled out of its mouth.

The boy plucked the cigarette out and tossed it away. He then opened his mouth and inserted the bat's head.

Other Vietnamese squatting on the sidewalk, giggled as the foreigner's face wrinkled in disgust.

Giggling in the Orient is often a sign of embarrassment or shame.

Saigon is said to have almost two million persons. Its defenders say it used to be such a pretty place—Paris of the East and all that.

The remnants of French colonial rule remain in fussy public buildings like the ornate opera house which has a great white face and a tin roof. There are no operas there anymore.

There is a French sports club with none of that American air conditioning but with many Americans vying for membership.

The restaurants are French stepchildren with menus in French and mainly Algerian wine. There are Alsation dishes on the menu and the pastry has Parisian names but you know when you taste it that it was made in Saigon.

The meal will cost about $4 to $8 if the piasters are honestly bought, half that if the piasters come from the black market.

The headqaiter in the best restaurant speaks French. The bartenders all speak English. The little dress shops and jewelry stores on Tu Do, with their signs in Vietnamese and French, are being evicted to make way for crowded bars with their signs in English.

At Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport, waiting for his replacement to arrive on a jet airliner from Hong Kong, a tall husky gray-haired American engineer complained he had been here 60 months.

"It's too long. You know why? It's because I've finally realized what's wrong. You know what it is? It's the Vietnamese. They're embarrassed. That's it.

Good God, look what we've done to them. Look at this building — why Vietnamese built it themselves. It's theirs, not ours. But look there, look at those U.S. Army MP's guarding that gate."

The American pointed then toward a Vietnamese policeman squatting around a corner.

"Hes' supposed to be at that gate. But the MPs come and kick him out.

"You got to respect the Vietnamese. You know, they really don't want to fight. They think we're a little crazy because we come here to fight. 'Let us fight,'" they say.

"I started thinking about this the other day and so I called for a replacement."

In the Tu Do street section are the bars. The San Francisco Bar. the Melody Bar. The London Bar. The Flowers Bar. The Reno Bar. The Li-Li Bar.

Saigon tea, the colored water concocted for GIs to buy for the bar girls costs from 80 cents to $4. The girls wear pastel ao-dais, the national dress or Paris-inspired Western dress, and many will not go to bed with customers.

U.S. Military Police walk their beats in pairs. So do the GIs. So do the girls.

There are also many interesting items for the souvenir hunter. There are nylon jackets in red, green, blue and black with the backs stitched with the words: "Fighter by day, lover by night, drunkard by choice. Viet Nam 1966."

In Saigon, many Americans take their weekly malaria pills on Sunday because it is easier to remember that day; the Vietnamese are always polite; crippled beggars show off their stumps; flowers are cheap and plentiful; a fan is a luxury, 35mm color film is developed and mounted on slides overnight; strangers smile at one another; maids cost $15 to $20 a month.

CONSTITUTION CHANGES

Legislative Pay Not Only Issue On November Ballot

By EDWIN S. CAPPS
(Last in a series)

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — The extensive revision of California's constitution, to be submitted to the voters in November has been tagged by many as primarily a pay raise bill for the legislature and the label may stick.

But the provision that, under the change, the legislature would be empowered to fix its own salary, is only part of the total package on the legislature. And the revision also would make changes in the executive and judicial branches of government.

The state constitution is the third longest in the world — 10 times as long as the federal constitution. So much of the content of the revision of articles II (separation of powers), Article IV (legislative), Article V (executive), and Article VI (judicial) is streamlining, rearranging and removing dead wood.

There may be those voters who will object to casting a single yes or no vote on such a wholesale revision of the constitution. However, in 1962, the voters approved an amendment to the constitution permitting revision, rather than single amendments. The vote to permit this was 2,901,537 to 1,428,034.

The most substantive changes in the constitutional revision, of course, are in the legislative branch. The measure provides that the legislature shall meet each year in unlimited session, beginning on the Monday after Jan. 1. At present the legislature meets in odd-years in regular session for 120 calendar days, not counting Saturdays and Sundays. This amounts to 166 days.

The legislature presently meets in even years in a 30-day budget session and the governor generally calls a special session, without time limit, to run concurrently with the budget session. At such special sessions, only those subjects specified by the governor may be considered.

Under the proposed revisions, when the legislature adjourned its session each year, it then would return after a 30-day recess. Upon the return, the legislature would be in session for five days to consider bills which the governor had vetoed.

The legislature may overturn a governor's veto by a two-thirds vote of both houses. However, in most sessions, the real bulk of the bills are signed into law or vetoed after the lawmakers have adjourned and they have no opportunity to consider the vetoes.

Another change provides that, if there is a vacancy in a legislative office, the governor must immediately call a special election to fill it. The present constitution provides merely that the governor shall issue a writ of election. In some cases, vacancies have remained unfilled for more than a year.

A change also would be made in the initiative process. At present, signatures of registered voters comprising 8 per cent of all votes cast for governor in the last election must be collected to qualify a measure for the ballot. This requirement presently is 468,259 and is expected to jump to about 550,000 after this fall's election.

Initiatives may amend either the constitution or the statutes. The change proposed is that initiatives which would amend oinly the statutes could be qualified with only 5 per cent of the vote at the last governor election. Initiatives amending the constitution still would be required to have 8 per cent of the vote in signatures to qualify.

The constitution change also would prohibit the naming of any person, individual or corporation in an amendment to the constitution or statutes. In 1964, an unsuccessful initiative measure on the ballot would have created a state lottery and specified the firm which would operate the lottery.

The lengthy revision also would eliminate the present long line of succession to the governorship. It merely would provide that the lieutenant governor would succed the governor, in case he left office or died. The legislature would be empowered to set up such other line of succession as was necessary in the statutes.

Several changes are proposed in the judicial branch of state government. For one thing, it would provide a person could not serve as municipal judge unless he had been admitted to practice in the state for five years and could not become a superior court judge unless he had been admitted to practice for 10 years.

Present law is a flat five-year law practice requirement for any court.

Judges would not be permitted to run for other public office unless they took a leave of absence at the time of filing their candidacy. Election to that office would be considered resignation from the judgeship. (The constitutional revision commission had recommended that judges be required to resign from office in order to become candidates for other offices.)

The revision also would permit a judge to serve one or more superior courts, or to be the judge of courts in one or more superior courts, or to be the judge of courts in one or more counties.

This Week In The World

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

In New York, it was a for-real reprise of "West Side Story."

In Chicago and Cleveland, it was the same scene—bad. National Guardsmen fought the homefolks. Death and destruction prevailed.

So it was this week as the lid blew off the boiling cauldron of racial strife. The long hot summer—mean as ever—arrived.

National Guard troops sought to quell Negro rioting in Chicago and Cleveland. As week's end approached, Chicago was simmering. Cleveland was still sizzling.

A thousand policemen swarmed over Brooklyn's East New York neighborhood as Italian-American and Negro youths clashed in New York's worst racial outburst since the 1964 Harlem riots.

In Chicago, rioting on the predominantly Negro West Side led to a city promise to improve recreational facilities.

But in Cleveland, troops remained confronted with sporadic violence in the battle-scarred Hough sector, where four nights of Negro rioting left three persons dead and many injured.

Chicago: Richard Speck, accused of slaughtering eight nursing students, was reportedly identified by the one nurse who survived. The fact-to-face confrontation took place in Speck's prison hospital room, where the 24-year-old drifter lay suffering from attempted suicide wounds and a possible heart attack. Doctors said he would live to stand trial.

Around The World, Around The Nation:

The Hague: The International Court of Justice ruled that Liberia and Ethiopia were not entitled to a decision on the merits of their complaint against South West Africa's system of racial separation.

Cape Kennedy: Gemini 10 astronauts John Young and Michael Collins safely splashed down in the Atlantic after making two rendezvous and setting a 474 mile record for space altitude. Said Young: "We had a lot of fun."

Berkeley: University of Kansas track star Jim Ryun set a world mile record: 3 minutes, 51.3 seconds.

London: Prime Minister Harold Wilson, striving to bolster England's sagging economy, raised taxes $500 million a year, stiffened installment buying terms and imposed a six-month wage freeze.

Washington: The strike against five major U.S. airlines worsened when the airlines refused to submit a new offer to the machinists' union.

Campers Huddle Close In Yosemite

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (UPI) — Civilization has come to Yosemite, and the park may never recover.

Hordes of vacationers with cars full of camping gear line the highways to the famed attraction. Ninety per cent of them crowd into the 10 square miles of Yosemite Valley, a green gem of meadows and forests surrounded by majestic peaks and spectacular waterfalls.

Yosemite Park is the size of Rhode Island. Park officials insist there is plenty of room elsewhere in the wilds. But campers are determined to take out a spot in the tiny valley. They sometimes wait for hours or days to find a camping place near famed Glacier Point or Yosemite Falls.

During this year's Independence Day weekend, a record 54,700 persons entered the park. Tents were squeezed under every available tree, blocking cars of other campers. Those with enough space hung out "carport" signs to save room for their autos. By dawn Saturday every camping space was taken.

In the valley are nine grocery and general stores, seven service stations, a laundry, a barber shop, three swimming pools, a stable, several taverns and hotel accommodations for 4,500 guests.

The National Park Service also operates its own hydroelectric plant, sewage treatment facilities, incinerators and fire and police departments.

"This whole damn' valley will be black-topped soon," said former Ranger John Hansen, now the park's assistant postmaster. "People today come here to be entertained—they expect popcorn stands and ferris wheels."

Yosemite is not the only national park to face such a problem, but the combination of its popularity and the geography that leads people to stay in the small valley make its problems acute. More than 1.8 million visitors will visit the park this year, officials estimate.

The crush of vacationers has brought to once-remote Yosemite all the problems of a city of 40,000 to 50,000 persons. There is a rising crime rate, a sewage disposal problem—and even smog, from the thousands of campfires buring at dawn and dusk every day.

The 97-man ranger force, the sole enforcement agency in the park, is more a police department than a forestry bureau. Last year there were 253 felony arrests, 1,689 juvenile arrests and 320 auto accidents.

Six persons were killed in the park—two by drowning, one in a car fire and three from falls. Already this year there have been two drownings and one fatal auto accident.

Nearly 500 patients with broken bones are treated annually at the park's 16-bed hospital.

What can be done about the ever-increasing crowds? The park service has cut the camping limit from 14 days to seven, and is considering limiting it even more. Currently the park's official overnight capacity is 20,634, but on holidays three times that many squeeze in.

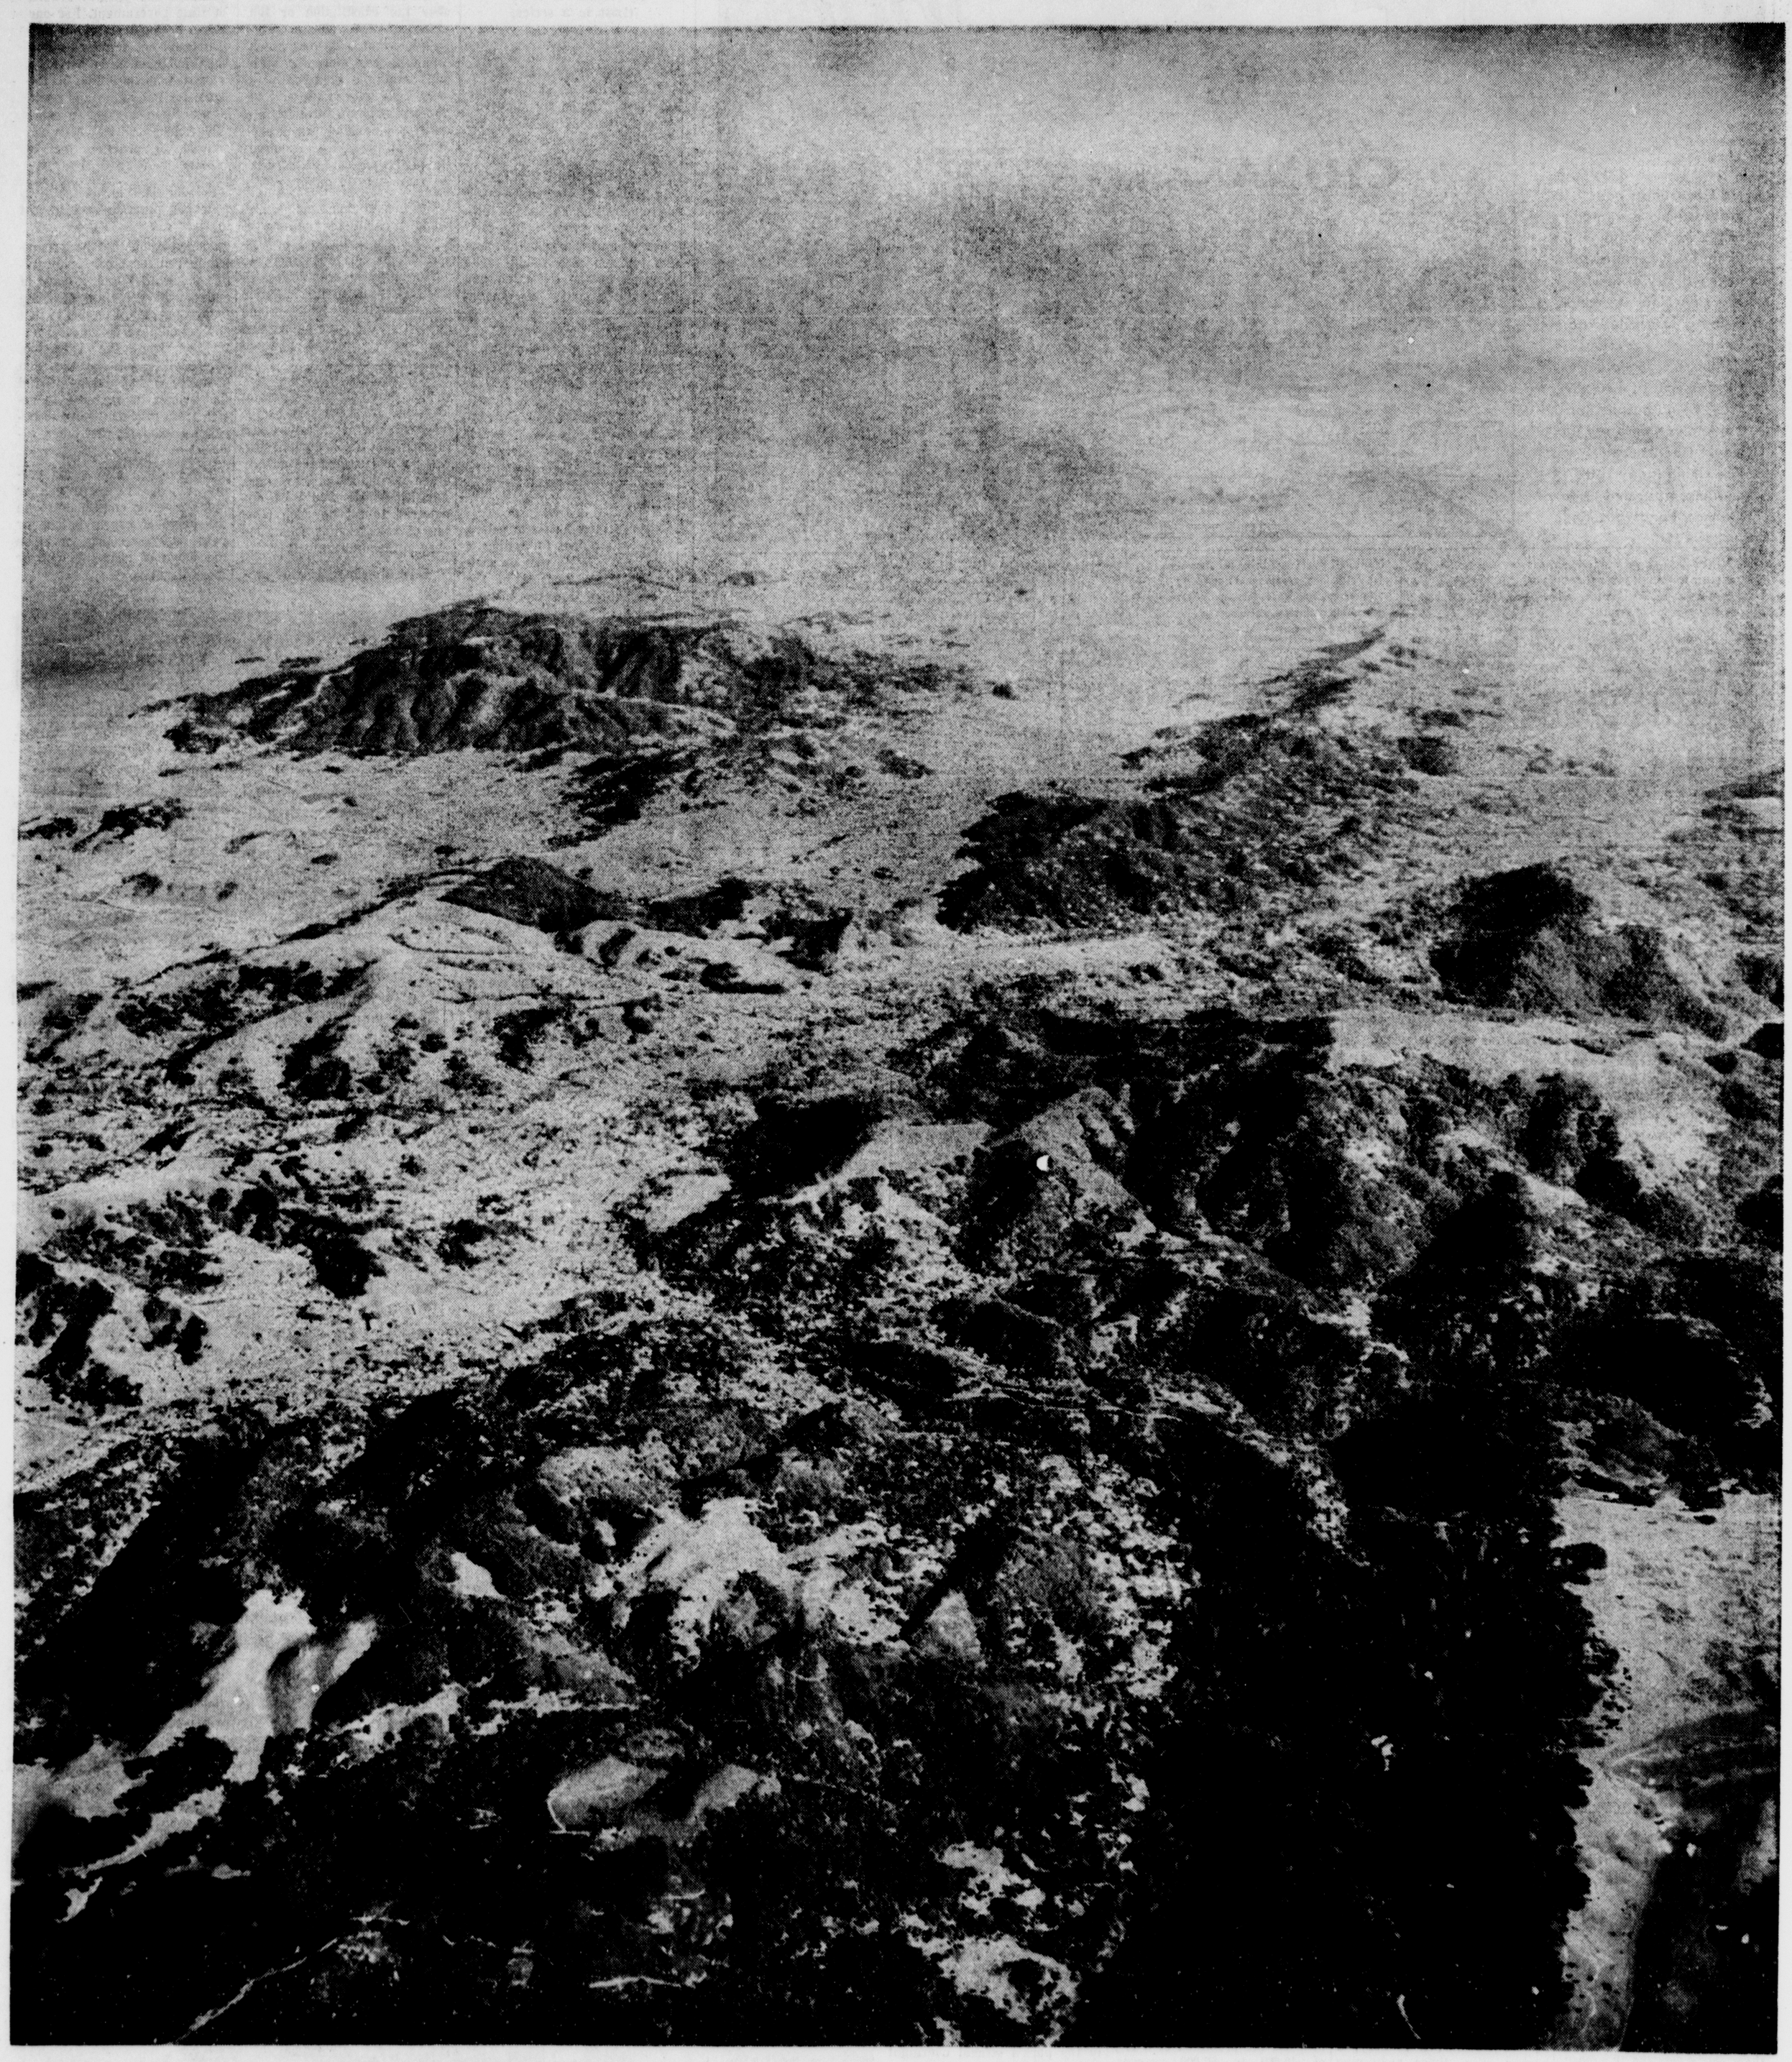
There have been suggestions to prohibit cars in the valley, but these naturally have met with vocal opposition from weekend campers.

Strangely, the crowding does not seem to bother the campers themselves.

"I think our analysis of the crowding has been wrong in the past," says Park Supt. John Davis. "We have assumed people want open space, but now we are finding out the majority do not.

"They have on objection to crowding."

WHERE IS EVERBODY?—While the 10 square miles of the floor of Yosemite National Park are crowded with campers every vacation time, vast reaches of the sprawling Sierra recreation land go unvisited and unknown, National Park Service officials complain. (UPI Telephoto)



Between The Mountains And The Calm Sea

Homes in more than four Marin County communities jostle side by side like so many dots on a contour map in this aerial photograph taken by Aero Photographers, Inc. of Sausalito. In the sweeping expanse from the bay to the wooded hills, at bottom, are the cities of San Rafael, San Anselmo, and Fairfax. At bottom right can be seen the greens and bunkers of the Meadow Club Golf Club. Out beyond San Pedro Point, far past the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge, Mount Diablo towers on the Contra Costa County horizon above the mist of the East Bay.

Ol' Sam Warms Hearts Of Golfdom's Senior Citizens

By JOE MOOSHIL

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Swinging Sammy Snead is tickling the hearts of old-timers the world over with his youthful early footing in the PGA's Golden Anniversary Championship.

No longer The Slammer by his own admission, the 54-year-old West Virginian left behind him a field packed with youngsters who weren't born when Snead won his first golf championship.

Snead shot a 36-35—71 yesterday for a 139 total and was the only one under partat the halfway mark of the tournament the 7,180-yard, par 35-35—70 over the 7-180-yard, par 35-35—70 Firestone Country Cloub course.

Al Geiberger and Don January were one shot behind at 140.

Limping along with a hip injury, Snead went to the practice tee after yesterday's round to work on his theory that "the time to practice is when you're playing well."

Tommy Aaron, who was born the year Snead won his first tournament — the Oakland Open in 1937 — walked past Snead, who kept threading perfect shots down the practice fairway.

"No sense practicing next to him," said Aaron. "It only makes you look bad."

"You'd look like a diamond "See that shot, that was a seven iron. You'd only need a nine to get that far."

How much has Snead lost on his shots off the tee as the years have piled up? "Twenty five yards on all the long shots," he said. "If you need two long shots to get to a hole, you're starting off with a 50-yard disadvantage. That's a lot of yardage and you have to make up for it with accuracy and putting.

Putting, however, is not one of Snead's strengths these days.

"Age works on your nerves and putting is all nerves. I've thought about taking pills for the nerves but they take away your coordination and you can't play golf without coordination," he said.

Snead, with only the wrinkles around his piercing eyes showing any sign of his age, still has the fluid, beautiful swing which has earned him more than 100 championships.

"Yep, the swing's the same," said Snead, "but you lose the elasticity in your body as you grow older. That's the whole difference, along with nerves, of Wasn't Snead too tired after a Snead kept banging away at the practice tee, telling onlookers exactly what he would do with each shot and then doing it.

Wasn't Snead tired after a demanding round of championship golf to continue practicing in the hot sun?

"Oh, it takes something out of you," said Snead, "but if I had to I could go out there and play another 18 holes."

Would the legs hold out?

"Son, legs could be the secret," said Snead. "Over the years I did an awful lot of walking up and down those mountain sides while I was hunting and fishing. I guess, maybe, it's paying off now. Yes sir, rain or shine, snow or sleet Old Sam would be on those mountain sides."

Strong legs, beautiful swing and ability are important but what really keeps Snead going is the competitive desire to win.

Snead refused to predict the outcome of the tournament, or his chances of winning his fourth PGA and first in 15 years.

"Any man who says he can say how he'll play is a liar," said Snead. "The two rounds I've had have no bearing on how I'll play the last two."

Going into those final two rounds Snead also was trailed by Julius Boros at 141. Grouped at 143 were Gary Player, Doug Sanders, Jacky Cupit, Aaron, and Billy Farrell.

Jack Nicklaus, the Masters and British Open champion, was tied with those at 146. This group also included U.S. Open champion Billy Casper. Arnold Palmer was nine shots away with 148.

Perry's Slider Whiffs 15 Phils In 4-1 Win—

THE BELT, OH, WHERE'S THE BELT?

Comedienne Phillis Diller, the coach for the Hollywood All-Stars, makes it half way to mound to give pitcher instructions. Miss Diller, wearing the large uniform of Dodger Don Drysdale, obviously forgot to include the belt when she dressed for the game with the Sports Writers which preceeded the Dodger-Mets game yesterday. Time was called while she made repair.

Giants Gain On Pirates

By RON BERGMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I knew if I made good pitches, I had a chance for a no-hitter," said Gaylord Perry of the San Francisco Giants. "But you need a lot of luck to get one of those."

So Gaylord settled for his second two-hitter and 14th victory of the season as the Giants downed the Philadelphia Phils, 4-1, last night.

He also settled for 15 strikeouts, only one short of Christy Mathewson's club record set in 1904 and more than any other Giant pitcher since the team moved west eight years ago.

Catcher Clay Dalrymple got the first hit off Perry by lining a high change-up to right field for a single leading off the eighth inning. A single later in the inning by Cookie Rojas spoiled the shutout and also ended the evening's scoring.

Perry struck out the three Philadelphia batters in the ninth and got a standing ovation from the 23,426 Candlestick Park fans.

Of the 144 pitches Perry threw, he estimated about 70 were his new hard slider, the delivery he credits with his 14-2 success this year as compared to his unimpressive 8-12 last year.

Although it won't help baffled National League hitters to see it any better, the hard slider is gripped with the thumb crooked under the baseball and the index and middle fingers crossing the seams. It's thrown hard with wrist slightly turned toward the body although there is not the twist of the hand used for the ordinary slider.

"It looks like the fast ball," said Philadelphia's Johnny Callison. "But as you're swinging, it breaks sharply about two feet from the plate. . . A tough pitch to hit."

Pitching coach Larry Jansen, who taught Perry the hard slider during spring training, said: "It's an amazing thing. When I threw the pitch, it tailed off away and sometimes down. But Perry's rises—I guess because he throws it so hard."

Catcher Tom Haller said more pitchers don't use it "because you need a big hand. Baseballs are all the same size, but some hands are bigger than others."

The leading victims were Richie Allen, who struck out four times, and Bill White, who whiffed three times. Perry struck out every Phillie starter at least once with the exception of the pitcher Larry Jackson.

Jackson carried a string of five straight victories and two consecutive shutouts into the game and lost both streaks quickly.

Tito Fuentes lined his first pitch past third base for a double and scored as Willie Mays' pop fly fell between three watching fielders for a single. Willie McCovey then hit his 19th homer over the right field fence.

McCovey doubled Mays home in the third after the Giants' center fielder had hit his second of three singles.

McCovey was forced from the game in the sixth when a previously injured shoulder stiffened in the wind.

Ollie Brown, recalled from Phoenix earlier in the day, started in right field and got one hit.

More interesting than Brown's return after three weeks in the Pacific Coast League was Manager Herman Franks' sending Tito Fuentes back at shortstop and Hal Lanier back at second. They had switched positions May 4 in an experiment that Franks apparently thinks didn't work.

Leach Is Top Golf Qualifier

Ray Leach of Novato led the field of North Bay qualifiers at Marin Country Club yesterday for berths in the Northern California Junior Amateur Golf Championships next month.

The 16-year-old Leach carded a two-over par 74, six strokes ahead of runner-up Don Anderson.

The first five qualifiers at Marin yesterday advance to the Northern California championships Aug. 15-19 at Lake Merced where San Rafael's Don Hawken, exempt from qualifying, will atempt to defend the title he won last year.

Other North Bay qualifiers yesterday were Bob Paterson and Michael Ahern, each with an 82, and Greg McCarthy, 83.

Sausalito Vs. Novato In Finals

The Sausalito Seals were to clash with the Novato Ddgers in today's finals of the Marin County Little League Team Champion Tournament on Wagner Field in Larkspur.

The Seals advanced to today's finals on the strength of an 8-5 triumph over Hamilton-Loma Verde Giants yesterday on the Strawberry field with pitcher George McKee striking out 6 and walking 3 en route to the victory. The game was highlighted by shortstop Lawrence Dora's grand slam homer, the key blow coming in the fifth inning.

Novato Dodgers, meanwhile handled Locke Brothers of Gallinas Valley 5-0, last evening in Tiburon.

First baseman Mark Whitburn smacked a homer and a double to drive in three runs while winning pitcher, Steve Burden, who last Wednesday starred by tagging two triples and a single in a 5-4 eighth inning triumph, started a one-run sixth inning rally with a double, and gave up just three hits to the Locke Brothers team.

Non-Struck Airlines Keeping Major Leagues In Business

IF THE airline strike continues will major league baseball teams be forced to suspend their schedules? Not if non-struck lines continue to operate.

Warren Giles just completed a check of travel plans of all National League teams. Traveling secretaries of all clubs reported to the league president they were in pretty good shape for transportation on non-struck lines.

However, even if the strike does not spread to those lines still operating, the non-struck carriers may reach a saturation point of pilot time. Pilots are permitted to fly only a maximum of 85 hours a month.

GILES WAS concerned about travel plans of the Giants on their next road trip. He needn't have concerned himself because the club's traffic director, like all of baseball's traveling secretaries, is an expert when it comes to transportation.

"We're in good shape for the 15-day trip coming up after our present eight-game home stand," said Frank Bergonzi. "The trip starts in Atlanta. We're booked in there on Delta. And we go Delta to New York, the next stop.

"From New York we go to Chicago, thence Cincinnati. Out of New York I couldn't get space on one plane for the entire team so we'll split up on two flights."

BERGONZI BROUGHT the Giants home from their last trip in roundabout fashion—from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia to Baltimore to Dallas to San Francisco Airport—but he got them home shortly after 8 o'clock Tuesday night.

While Bergonzi was routing the Giants circuitously out of Pittsburgh to San Francisco, Bob Price, traveling secretary of the Pirates, also was busy.

THE PIRATES left Pittsburgh Tuesday afternoon at 1 o'clock by Greyhound bus for Cleveland where they caught an American flight that got them into Los Angeles for their two-game series with the Dodgers at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

After their Thursday night game with the Dodgers, the Pirates were due in Houston for a series with the Astros. A Continental plane, after making three stops, landed the Pirates in Houston yesterday at 6 a.m.

FOLLOWING THEIR Sunday game with the Astros, the Pirates fly Braniff to Dallas, thence to San Francisco, arriving at 10:30 p.m. To get back home after a three-game set with the Giants, the Pirates fly from San Francisco to Los Angeles to catch an American flight to Cleveland.

A Greyhound bus will take the Pirates from Cleveland to Pittsburgh where they will arrive at 10:30 a.m. next Thursday.

Upset In Junior Net Semis

An upset in the 16 age group and the advance of two brothers of San Rafael's tennis-minded Klyce family in both singles and doubles high-lighted yesterday's boys' semi-finals in the Marin County Junior Tennis Tournament at Albert Park, San Rafael.

Top-seeded Tony Lugo of San Rafael was victim of the day's major upset when he bowed to Bruce Trapp of Mill Valley in a three-hour marathon. The score was 3-6, 6-1, 11-9.

Trapp advanced to today's finals against Tom Klyce who downed Jim Youtz 6-2, 6-0 in yesterday's other semi-final in the 16 age group.

The other Klyce entry — Bob — downed Andy Giddings in the 14 age bracket and was to meet Carter Ingram for the title today. The top-seeded Ingram disposed of Jerry Suyderhoud 6-0, 6-2 yesterday.

The Klyce brothers teamed up in the 16 age doubles for another victory.

Yesterday's semi-finals results in the tournament cosponsored by the Independent-Journal and San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department:

Boys 10 Singles — Paul Kushner d. Eric Chilton, 6-2, 6-1; Peter Molinari d. Kevin Galivan, 6-1, 6-0.

Boys 12 Singles —Bill Kinser d. Mike Gomez, 7-5, 1-6, 6-1; Bill Logan d. Collin Reeve, 6-2, 6-4

Boys 14 Singles — Bob Klyce, d. Andy Giddings, 6-0, 6-4; Carter Ingram d. Jerry Suyderhoud 6-0, 6-2.

Boys 16 Singles — Tom Klyce d. Jim Youtz, 6-2, 6-0; Bruce Trapp d. Tony Lugo 3-6, 6-1, 11-9.

Boys 18 Singles — Andy Wilson d. Tony Lugo, 6-3, 6-0; Ben Ostland d. Barry Brink, def.

Boys 14 Doubles (Quarterfinals) — Morgan-Ingram d. Kalemba-Yates, 6-3, 6-4; Hendrickson-Martenelli d. DuBain-Logan 3-6, 6-2, 6-0; Horiuchi-Hand d. Kinser-Richardson, 6-3, 6-1; Kinslow-Braun d. Litmen-Walker, 5-7, 6-3, 6-3.

(Semi-finals) — Morgan Ingram d. Hendrickson-Martinelli, 6-0, 6-0; Kinslow-Braun d. Horiuchi-Hand, 6-2, 6-1.

Boys 16 Doubles — Klyce-Klyce d. Youtz-Marlowe 6-1, 6-1; Randolph-Ortman d. Leininger-Shock, 4-6, 10-8, 8-6.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Streaking Mets Top L.A.; Bucs Stopped By Astros

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Mets have quit messing around with Ron Swoboda, and now he's messing around with everyone else.

Swoboda, who complained last month that the Mets were restricting his effectiveness by playing him irregularly, hit a two-run homer that sealed the Mets' latest victory.

In New York's two previous games, both with San Francisco, Swoboda hit a 10th-inning homer that gave the Mets a 3-2 victory and rapped three hits and drove in three runs in their 14-3 triumph.

The 22-year-old slugger has been playing every day recently, which is what he felt he should have been doing the entire season.

"They've been messing around with me," Swoboda complained about six weeks ago. "They messed around with me at the end of last season, and they've been doing it again. If you have to sit around and not play for three days, you might as well quit.

"It's the young guys who are going to make this ball club. But how's a young player supposed to learn when he's in and out. I've only batted against a couple of righties. You can't learn that way. If I have to be platooned, I'll look for something else to do."

The Giants and Dodgers wouldn't mind that at all.

While the Mets remained one-half game out of eighth and moved to within one game of seventh, the Giants climbed to within two percentage points of first place in the National League by defeating Philadelphia, 4-1 behind Gaylord Perry, who pitched a two-hitter and struck out 15.

Elsewhere in the N.L., Houston defeated Pittsburgh 5-2, Cincinnati whipped Atlanta 8-2 and St. Louis knocked off Chicago 9-4.

Swoboda's homer, off Claude Osteen, came in the eighth inning. The Mets also scored in the third on Ron Hunt's single. Bob Friend blanked the Dodgers on eight hits.

Houston's Larry Dierker gave up home runs to Bob Bailey and Willie Stargell, but the Astros already had built a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Bailey's error, doubles by Rusty Staub, Lee Maye and Bob Aspromonte and Ron Brand's single accounted for the unearned runs.

Cincinnati exploded for six runs in the sixth inning, three on Leo Cardenas' double and two on Pete Rose's homer. That wiped out Atlanta's 2-1 lead. Frank Bolling scored both of the Braves' runs, the first on a first-inning homer.

Joe Hoerner's three-run homer climaxed a four-run, eighth-inning rally that carried St. Louis past Chicago. The blast by the relief pitcher helped the Cardinals get over the .500 mark for the first time this season. Dick Ellsworth suffered his 15th setback against four victories.

M.V. Bows To Santa Rosans

The Mill Valley Merchants were defeated by Santa Rosa semi-pro baseballers last night at Santa Rosa, 11-6.

Second baseman Bobby Brown led the Santa Rosa assault with three hits and four RBI. First sacker Fred Mack doubled twice, driving in three runs, and catcher Ray Vaiconese had a double, two singles and two runs batted in for the Merchants.

Losing hurler Keith Fraser hurt his own cause by walking eight Santa Rosa batters in 3⅓ innings, allowing the home team to score four times in the fourth.

Chrysler To Quit Stock Car Racing

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., which virtually swept the boards in stock car racing this year, is bowing out for 1967.

B. M. Rodger, Chrysler's special car manager, said the change was made to "encourage the return of stock car racing to a more independent status."

Chrysler reportedly poured about $3 million into its stock car racing program in the past year.

Chrysler said its drivers, including Richard Petty, Paul Goldsmith, Norm Nelson, Jim Hurtubise, Sam McQuagg and Dave Pearson, will finish out their 1966 contracts.

Ford withdrew earlier in a dispute over use of its overhead camshaft engine. Ford declined comment yesterday on Chrysler's action, saying it will meet and decide next week what to do about 1967.

General Motors Corp., and American Motors Corp., have kept out of factory-sponsored racing, although some of their dealers have entered cars.

Chrysler said it will continue to make its engines and technical knowledge available to "all qualified racing participants" at a reasonable cost.

However, some Southern drivers expressed concern about how Chrysler will make its racing parts available.

Petty asked, "How will they get the parts to us?"

He added, however, "I believe this will make racing wide open again."

NASCAR President Bill France said Chrysler's statement showed a "fine approach" that will "benefit stock car racing."

CHAMP TELLS HIS PLANS

Clay Off For Europe; Will Quit Kentucky Syndicate

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay left for Europe today and a couple of world heavyweight championship bouts — fights he says will be the last he'll fight under the sponsorship of a Louisville, Ky., syndicate.

"The sponsoring group has been good to me," Cassius said. "They fix it so nobody can say I'm associated with gangsters, and I'm not clean. I'm clean anyway, but the truth is I'll be through with the group when the contract expires in October.

They don't give me the money I need. I want $20,000 to open an office to take care of autographs and my mail. They don't give me no tax write-off. I'm not a dumb person."

Clay's affairs have been handled by a Louisville syndicate ever since he turned pro in 1960. Under terms of the contract, the group gave him a $10,000 bonus, a salary of $4,000 a year and all expenses, and a 50-50 split of all purses.

Angelo Dundee will remain with him as his manager, Clay said. Jimmy Brown will be with him, but can't manage; he's ready to fight Ernie Terrel; his draft status is still up in the air; and Brian London might be tough, were some other observations Clay offered.

He is scheduled for a title fight with London Aug. 6 at Earl's Court in England, and against left-hander Karl Mildenberger in Frankfurt, Germany Sept. 10.

"Jimmy Brown will be with me, but he can't be my manager because he's got 10 per cent of Main Bout," Clay said. "Angelo Dundee is my trainer and manager. I'll be with Angelo as long as I'm near a ring."

Independent-Journal Sports

Brown, the Cleveland Browns star fullback who recently announced his retirement from pro football, is in England making a movie. There had been considerable speculation that he might become Clay's manager.

Brown, however, is a stockholder in Main Bout Inc., a group that has the ancillary rights to all of Clay's fights. Bob Aron, an attorney for the group, explained that it would be illegal for the stockholders to be identified with the champion's management.

Clay said the question of his draft status was up to the Justice Department and the draft board lawyers. He has been given permission to go to England for the London fight, but must return to the United States by Aug. 9.

"The London fight will be tough. He's a tough fellow, and he don't cut easy," Clay said.

"Mildenberger will be hard to fight because he's a southpaw. I lost two fights in the amateurs to southpaws. Amos Johnson was one. He was a southpaw then. Jerry Hampton was the other."

And as for Terell, who holds the World Boxing Assn. version of the world title:

"After Mildenberger I'll fight Terrell in New York, Chicago or any place they'll let me," Clay said. "Just let him get sense and be the challenger."

MEET PANCAKE PALMER

The Superstitious Baltimore Pitcher

BALTIMORE (AP) — Move over Mudcat and Catfish. The American League pitching fraternity has added the name of Jim (Pancake) Palmer to its list of colorful nicknames.

The 20-year-old right-hander has won seven of his last eight decisions. Significantly, the only time he didn't figuratively flatten the opposition was when he failed to eat pancakes for breakfast.

"I don't know whether that has any bearing on it," Palmer said, "but I don't want to find out."

Palmer ate his pancakes yesterday and then hurled a six-hitter as the league-leading Orioles beat Chicago 3-1 and maintained their 11½-game lead over the runner-up Detroit Tigers.

Palmer permitted only four hits after yielding a first-inning run. A two-run homer by Brooks Robinson and a squeeze bunt by Paul Blair helped Palmer to his 11th victory in 15 decisions — tops on the Baltimore staff.

It was the third victory in a row for Palmer since he lost to Kansas City on June 28.

"We arrived in Kansas City early in the morning after a flight from Los Angeles," Palmer said. "I stayed in bed for extra sleep, and then I didn't have time to eat before getting the bus for the ball park."

Palmer's wife Susan is aware of the pancake kick. She prepares them at home and reminds Jim by telephone to eat his pancakes on the road.

In Boston last month, Palmer could eat only half his order because blueberries had been added and the pancakes were filling. That didn't affect the charm. Baltimore scored 16 runs that day for Palmer.

Once, when Oriole Manager Hank Bauer was undecided about his starting pitcher Palmer ate pancakes two days running before getting his turn on the mound. He won.

Palmer goes through other routines to ward off evil spirits which cause pitchers to lose.

The Oriole hurler places three pieces of bubble gum in his hip pocket when he pitches, making certain he doesn't mix the two brands available in the locker room.

Just before leaving the clubhouse to warm up, Palmer and relief pitcher Stu Miller touch their rightforefingers together.

"That started when Stu was on a winning streak," Palmer said. "I figured some of his luck would rub off."

Early in the year, Palmer's pet superstition was catching the ball from coach Gene Woodling with his barehand as they passed each other between innings.

"I broe him of that," Woodling said. "What would he do if I didn't show up?"

But so far, Woodling hasn't been able to do anything about the pancakes.

Marin Little Leaguers Start On Tournament Schedule Next Week

The District 3 (Marin County) Little League All-Star Baseball Tournament opener is slated for next Tuesday with five opening round games scheduled.

In the first round games, the stars from Hamilton Loma Verde League go against Marinwood, at Hamilton Air Force Base; Novato, 1965 State Champion, clashes with San Rafael National, at Novato; San Geronimo Valley tangles with Gallinas Valley, at the San Geronimo field; Mill Valley American all-stars tussle with Twin Cities, at Wagner Field in Larkspur; and Mill Valley National will try to upend Strawberry, at Strawberry.

Wednesday's quarter-final action will pit the winner of the Marinwood - Hamilton Loma Verde game against San Rafael American, at the San Quentin Little League diamond; Tiburon Peninsula Little League goes against Sausalito (both teams draw first-day byes), at Tiburon; the winner of the San Rafael National-Novato game will battle the San Geronimo Valley-Gallinas Valley victor, at Novato; and the winner of the Mill Valley, American - Twin Cities contest clashes with Mill Valley National-Strawberry winner at Larkspur.

Semi-finals are scheduled Friday at Larkspur and Strawberry.

All games are scheduled to start at 6 p.m. Finals will be played next Saturday at Novato.

Manager Of Tigers Has Lung Cancer

DETROIT (UPI) —Bob Swift, twice an interim manager for the Detroit Tigers was ruled out for the season himself yesterday. Doctors discovered he had a cancerous tumor in his lung.

Doctors at Ford Hospital in Detroit said yesterday Swift, 51, would undergo treatment as soon as possible on the tumor. He was taken to the hospital July 14 when he was stricken with a gastric attack.

Doctors said he was not fully recovered from the gastic ailment and they would not begin the treatments on Swift's lungs until the gastric condition has healed.

Swift replaced Manager Charlie Dressen for 22 days in May, 1965 and again May 16 this season when the Tiger manager suffered heart attacks. Dressen also has been ruled out for the rest of the season.

Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell said in Cleveland, where the Tigers are playing a weekend series, that Frank Skaff, who took over for Swift after the All-Star break, would handle the Tigers indefinitely.

Skaff said in Cleveland: "It's very distressing and sad to hear of Bob's illness." Skaff and Swift are close friends and former teammates on the old Philadelphia Athletics.

"I hope the condition is treated successfully. All our hopes and prayers go with him," Skaff said.

15 Pool Records Broken In Dual Swimming Meet

S.F. Girl Sets World Swim Mark

LOS ALTOS HILLS (AP)—A mark that tops the world record in the women's 200-meter individual medley has been set by Lynn Vidali of San Francisco in the Far Western Senior AAU Swimming Championships at Foothill College.

Lynn, a 14-year-old high school sophomore, yesterday clipped nine-tenths of a second off the record of 2:29.9 set at Foothill in 1964 by Donna de Varona, of Santa Clara.

Meet officials announced the time would be submitted for world record recognition. The distance was accepted as a world standard only last summer by the International Swimming Federation.

The strawberry blonde Miss Vidali was elated over her time. "I'm very happy about it," she said. "I've always wanted to break a record held by Donna de Varona."

During yesterday's competition, Mark Spitz, swimming for the Santa Clara Swim Club, upset the world record holder Luis Nicolao of Argentia in the 100-meter butterfly.

Spitz, a 16-year-old high school junior, won the event in 58.4, while Nicolao, a Stanford University sophomore, came in second with a 59.0.

The three-day meet ends tomorrow.

French Laundry Softballers Romp

Fairfax French Laundry, a Class C San Rafael softball team composed of Marin Catholic High School seniors, pushed High Schol seniors, pushed across nine big runs in the fourth inning and went on to rout the Griesy Radiators squad 14-3, behind Jim Dismuke's four-hit performance, Thursday at Albert Park.

French Laundry and the Independent-Journal Best Sellers are currently tied for first place in the Class C league.

Races At Vallejo

With fences and cars repaired and ready, the Bay Cities Racing Assn. hardtop driving contingent goes again tonight at Vallejo Speedway with time trials starting at 7:30 p.m. and heat racing at 8:30 c'clock.

Swim Program Signup Monday

San Rafael Recreation Department will hold registration for the third session of "Youth Learn to Swim Program" at the San Rafael High School pool on Monday from 9 to 10 a.m. Youth swimming and life saving courses will be offered for the two week course beginning Tuesday.

Registration for the fourth and final Learn to Swim program at Terra Linda High School pool is set for Monday, August 8, from 9 to 10 a.m.

Recreational swimming hours at the San Rafael High School pool until Sunday, Aug. 21, are: Tuesday, 1 p.m. to 8 p.m., Wednesday through Sundays, 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Busy Week Of Aces At Marin Links

Three holes-in-one were reported this week at the Marin Country Club in Novato, setting a record number of the rare shots recorded at the club.

Mrs. R. E. Ellis shot a hole-in-one on the second hole during the Relay Tournament held at the club Thursday using a three-wood for the 150-yard drive.

Last Monday, Mrs. J. A. Gibbs had an ace on the same hole with a five-wood and Wednesday, Phil Koeber scored a hole-in-one on the club's 175-yard seventh hole using a three-wood.

Witnesses for Mrs. Ellis' shot were Mrs. J. A. Sullivan, Mrs. P. McGrath, and Mrs. Kai Thomsen.

A trophy with the hole-in-one ball mounted on top was presented to each of the golfers by the club.

San Rafael Man Is Top Putter

Gordon Walker of San Rafael won first place in the Arnold Palmer Hole-in-One Tournament at the Arnold Palmer miniature putting course in San Rafael, scoring 17 holes-in-one out of 54 holes played.

Clayton Boyce and Kurck Kalemba tied for second place in the contest. In a sudden death playoff in which both zeroed on the first hole, Kalemba made a hole-in-one on the second hole to win second place prize.

Walker will receive an Arnold Palmer "Personal Putter" and Golf Carry-All for his placing in the local contest and he is eligible for a national drawing for an all-expense-paid week for two in Scotland.

Destruction Derby On Petaluma Oval

Hardtop races and a destruction derby highlight the competitive field at the Petaluma Fairgrounds tonight.

Following the hardtop races, a destruction derby will be held posting $125 for the winner of the smash-up race with $75 purse for the second place driver and $25 for third place finisher.

Marin Linksters Top Santa Rosa

The Marin Country Club junior golf team defeated the Santa Rosa golf team 19½-4½ Wednesday with Joe Perron as low medalist with a 76.

Individual scores were:

Joe Perron, 3-1; Doug Gray, ½-2½; Greg Davenport, 1½-1½; Mike Ahern, 2½-½; Dick Leseur, 3-0; Nick Gray, 0-0; Jeff Leseur, 3-0; Paul Culver, 3-0.

Today is Saturday, July 23, the 204th day of 1966 with 161 to follow.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter; the morning stars are Mars, Venus and Saturn, there are no evening stars.

Archbishop of Baltimore, James Cardinal Gibbons, was born on this day in 1834.

On this day in history:

In 1886, New York tavern keeper Steve Brodie claimed he had jumped off the Brooklyn Bridge into the East River.

In 1945, Henry Petain, former French chief of state, went on trial for treason in Paris.

In 1947, President Truman made an unexpected visit to the Senate and sat in the seat he occupied as a member.

In 1961, an American plane carrying 38 passengers was hijacked to Cuba.

A thought for the day — French novelist and playwright Alexander Dumas the Elder said: "All human wisdom is summed up in two words . . . wait and hope."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey, Western District headquarters. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

The column of heights gives the elevation in feet of each tide above or below the plane of Coast Survey chart soundings. The depths are always additive to the chart depths unless preceded by a minus sign (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depth given in the chart. Light-face type indicates a.m. times; bold-face type indicates p.m. times.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Best Defense You Can Devise Often Is Plenty Good Enough

Don't assume that declarer is a perfect player.

Just put up the best possible defense, and you'll find that declarer will often fail to find the line of play that works.

Opening lead — ◇ 7

West opened with the seven of diamonds, and South won with the ten.

South led a heart to dummy's king and returned a club in the hope of getting four club tricks.

East scotched this plan by stepping up with the queen of clubs.

South had to win to stop East from returning a diamond.

South continued with the jack of clubs, and West carefully refused the trick.

Sure of eight tricks, South tried for game by finessing with dummy's jack of hearts.

This failed, and South eventually went down one.

OTHER PLAY WORKS

South would make the contract if East played low on the first round of clubs.

South finesses with the jack. West holds off (his best play), and South leads the eight of clubs from his hand to make sure of four club tricks.

South could make the contract even after East put in the queen of clubs.

He continues with the jack of clubs, holding the trick, and then takes the ace of diamonds and the top spades.

Declarer puts East in with the third spade.

East can take three spade tricks but must then lead hearts, giving dummy a trick, with the jack of hearts.

No declarer in his right mind would make this play because it would fail if West could get in with a spade.

The heart finesse is a far better attempt (assuming South cannot see his opponents' cards), and the normal declarer will make normal plays for his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold:

♠ Q 9
♡ 9 4 2
♢ K J 9 7 4
♣ K 7 6

What do you say?

Answer: Bid one notrump.

The hand is not good enough for a response of two diamonds.

If partner opened with one club, however, you would bid one diamond.

A response at the level of one does not promise strength.

Controversy Brews: Census Church Query

By ERWIN KNOLL
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Officials of the U.S. Census Bureau are bracing for another round of controversy over a touchy question of national policy: Should the government ask its citizens what their religion is?

The question is being raised now in advance of the 1970 decennial census, for which extensive preparations are already in train.

For well over a decade, the census bureau has been under pressure from various church spokesmen to include a question on religion in the periodic surveys.

These spokesmen argue that a thorough nationwade tabulation of church affiliation would provide valuable information to religious bodies, charitable organizations, social scientists and the government itself.

Other religious leaders, however, are raising their voices against the proposal, contending that it would violate the First Amendment doctrine of separation of church and state. They claim it would also constitute an unwarranted intrusion by government into individual beliefs. Leading civil liberties organizations share this view.

"We're far from the point of making a decision," says A. Ross Eckler, the director of the census bureau. As it does every decade, the bureau is now sounding out public opinion on the kind of items it should add or delete in preparation for its nationwide population survey. No clear consensus is emerging on the question of church affiliation.

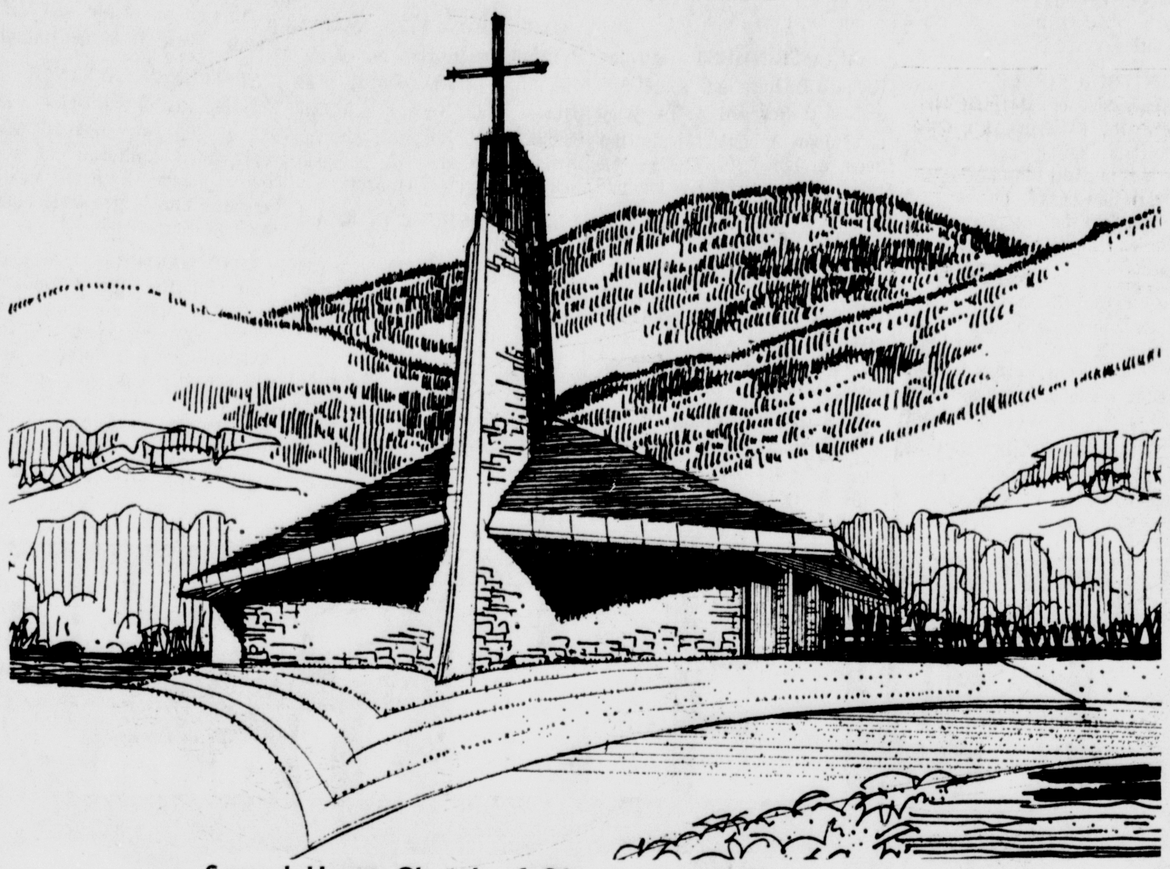
The problem has come up before. Ten years ago, in one of the sample studies it regularly carries out in the years between decennial censuses, the bureau asked residents of four Wisconsin counties, "What is your religion?" The question encountered only three refusals to answer and few protests.

In 1957, the question on religion was asked in a broader sampling of 35,000 households. Again, there were few complaints, and the bureau decided tentatively to include the question in its 1960 census.

The decision drew strong protests, however, from civil liberties groups and some religious organizations—particularly Jewish groups.

Unlike the sample surveys, in which participation is voluntary, the decennial census requires the cooperation of citizens. Failure to answer questions is punishable by law.

Because of the protests, plans to ask the religious question in 1960 were dropped. But now the issue is alive again for 1970.



Sacred Heart Church of Olema, now under construction

New Catholic Church For Olema Site

Construction has started on the Sacred Heart Catholic Church in Olema.

Architect Dennis Beatty of San Francisco said he tried to take advantage of the scenery, the Bear Valley area of the Point Reyes National Seashore, and recommendations of the Second Vatican Council.

The church will be in the form of a tapered square, which, according to Beatty, will bring the congregation closer to the Sacrifice of the Mass. The Council recommended that the liturgy be planned on the notion of dialogue.

The altar will be at the wider end of the square, and a plank roof will rise toward the sanctuary, where it will be penetrated by the spire. A glass clerestory will separate the roof from the side walls.

The entrance and baptistry of the church will face the wooded hills of Bear Valley.

Seating capacity of the 4,500-square-foot church will be 300, with ultimate capacity of 450. Contractor is E. H. Chapman of Santa Rosa.

Theologian Sees Sexual Crisis

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) —A Chicago theologian says there is a crisis in sexual relationships in the United States and Canada that indicates "a fundamental crisis in our culture."

Dr. Gibson Winter, professor of ethics and society of the University of Chicago Divinity School, told the North American Conference on Church and Family Life that Christian leaders should reassess the nature and meaning of sex, marriage and family life in "a personal age of sexuality." Inherited notions of chastity and threats of disease, pregnancy or censure no longer suffice to establish a morality of sexual relationships," he said.

No Conflict With God In Man-Created Life

NEW YORK (UPI)—A prominent Jewish theologian who contends that discovery of life on other planets would be compatible with Judaic beliefs, says creation of life by biochemists also would support rather than deny the Jewish concept of God.

"If man will discover the secrets whereby living matter is produced from inanimate stuff," says Rabbi Norman Lamm, "he will not be challenging God, but quite the contrary, fulfilling in unparallelled manner his function of imitating God in the assertion and exercises of his creative genius." Rabbi Lamm made his comments in receiving a doctorate from Yeshiva University.

Negro Catholics

NEW YORK (UPI) —There are 700,000 Negro Catholics in the United States, says the Catholic Digest.

Walther League Meeting Reset

CHICAGO (UPI) —The International Walther League, youth society of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, has postponed its biennial convention from 1967 to 1968. The convention has been rescheduled for Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., from Aug. 19 to 23, 1968.

An announcement mailed to the league's 5,000 societies in the United States and Canada said reasons for the postponement were: 1968 is the 75th anniversay year of the organization and should be observed with a convention; a 1967 meeting would conflict with the Missouri Synod's biennial convention, scheduled for New York City; and Walther League members will be involved in the observance of the 450th anniversary of the Reformation and the Missouri Synod's $40 million Thankoffering, both slated for 1967.

Assemblies Of God Set Five Meetings

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Five planning meetings for five 1967 Assemblies of God regional conventions have been scheduled for early fall. Organizational meetings will be held at convention sites, including Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 16; Rochester, N.Y., Oct. 19; Portland, Ore., Nov. 5; Springfield, Mo., Sept. 27 and Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 6.

Race Relations Lutheran Film Made In Omaha

NEW YORK (NLC) — A new motion picture on race relations, commissioned by the Lutheran Churches of the United States, has just been completed.

Entitled "A Time for Burning," it is described by its sponsors as "the most honest portrayal of the Christian Church ever to appear on the screen."

Filmed in Omaha, the one-hour dramatic documentary reveals various communities within the Nebraska city, both Negro and white, reacting to contemporary social pressures and changes.

The scenes in the film were neither scripted nor staged. No professional actors were employed. All the incidents were photographed as they actually occurred, with the knowledge and consent of the participants.

"A Time for Burning" was officially approved and accepted in June by the executive committee of Lutheran Film Associates, the production agency representing the three major U. S. Lutheran branches and the National Lutheran Council.

The setting for most of the movie's action was Augustana Lutheran Church in Omaha, a congregation of the Nebraska Synod of the Lutheran Church of America.

During the course of the four-month filming period, the pastor, the Rev. William Youngdahl, resigned. Other Omaha churches cooperating were two with predominantly Negro membership: Calvin Memorial Presbyterian Church and Hope Lutheran Church.

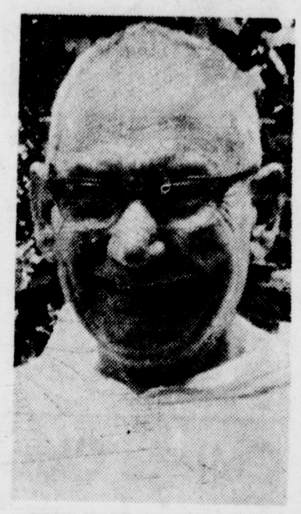
The technique utilized by producer-director-cameraman William C. Jersey of Quest Publications of New York to depict the real happenings in Omaha on film is frequently described by the French words for "film truth," cinema verite. It includes the presence of the portable camera together with the sound recorder as a "participant" in the action as it happens.

A preface on the film states that it is "dedicated to the people of Omaha, Nebraska, who openly shared their doubts, their fears, and their convictions."

In addition to those church members and pastors appearing in the film through their participation in the activities of their congregations, the Omaha scenes include the mayor of the city, A. V. Sorenson, and a barber, Ernie Chambers, who is an unofficial spokesman for some of the Negro community.

Marin Man Wins Spellman Medal

Very Rev. Paul K. Meagher, who has been a teacher at the Dominican College in San Rafael since 1940, has been named recipient of the 1966 Cardinal Spellman Award.



REV. PAUL K. MEAGHER
Wins Cardinal Spellman Award

The award is given each year to one of the 1,200 members of the Catholic Theological Society for outstanding achievement in the field of theology. He has spent the past two years in Washington, D.C. on the editorial staff of the New Catholic Encyclopedia.

On the encyclopedia project, he has been in charge of editorial work on moral, ascetico-mystical, homiletical and pastoral topics. He has continued to teach fulltime in the summers at San Rafael.

New York's Francis Cardinal Spellman instituted the award in 1947. Meagher will be presented the medal at a ceremony in New York in late October.

Previous winners have included Rev. John Courtney Murray, who wrote the schema on religious liberty for the Second Vatican Council; Francis J. Connell, dean of the school of theology of the Catholic University of America, and biblical scholar Barnabub Ahern.

Meagher, 59, took the vows of the Dominican Order in 1926 and was ordained in 1931. In 1946 he received the degree of master of sacred theology.

He was co-author with Gerald Vann of the book, "The Temptations of Christ," published in 1958, and was an editor of the new translation of the "Summa Theologica" of St. Thomas Aquinas into English.

He is a member of the editorial board of the Thomist, a theological magazine.

Roman Reunion Is Advocated

NEW YORK (UPI) — Protestants should strive for a return to their "ecclesiastical homeland"—the Roman Catholic Church, says Dr. Carl E. Braaten, a professor of the Lutheran School of Theology at Chicago.

Writing in Una Sancta, an independent liturgical and ecumenical publication edited by Lutherans, Dr. Braaten rejects the notion that the hope of reunion with Rome is utopian and says "we do not have to wait until doomsday." Such a reunion, he said, "is predicated on the knowledge that the sixteenth century schism was an historical event, and as such is susceptible of being superseded in the stream of history itself."

Lutheran Hour Reaching Russia

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —Proof that the Lutheran Hour radio program gets behind the Iron Curtain was had in the receipt at the program's headquarters here of a letter from a young African student at Moscow University asking that a Russian Bible and hymnbook ("to help me in my group worship") be sent him in care of the Cameroun Embassy.

The Rev. D. J. Glock, assistant director of broadcasting for the program, said literature would be sent to the student from the Lutheran Hour's branch office in London. The Lutheran Hour, broadcast in 41 languages to an estimated worldwide audience of 31 million persons each week, is beamed to the Soviet Union via Radio Luxembourg and from Germany over the "Europe No. 1" station.

College Class Sees Library At School

Seventy-five San Jose State College library science students who visited the San Rafael High School library yesterday learned that the library was designed primarily by a San Jose graduate student, the school's retiring librarian, Mrs. Gladys K. Gearhart.

The students, 30 of whom are attending a National Defense Education Act institute at the college, visited the libraries at Davidson Junior High and the high school.

Mrs. Gearhart, who is retiring after 12 years as a district librarian at the end of the summer, designed the library after a one-year sabbatical tour of libraries across the nation and in Europe.

Her study was part of her program for a master's degree from San Jose State.

John E. Burk, who will take her place in the San Rafael High School library, served as guide for yesterday's tour.

Mrs. Gearhart pointed out the various library rooms, including separate sections for card catalogues and checking out books, a typing room and a stereo sound room, several conference rooms and a faculty work room, all separated by removable glass partitions.

Six Marin Students Make Dean's List

Six students from Marin at University of California's Riverside campus have been named to the dean's honor list for last spring.

They are Wendy G. Becker, William D. Fraser, Daniel Friedman and Diane E. Welsh, all of Mill Valley; Susan L. Gaustad and Peter L. Montgomery, both of San Rafael.

Last week's article described the symptoms that would be observed if your signal strength for FM reception was not adequate. Generally, this is due to an improper antenna system.

What makes a good antenna? Like a violin, an antenna has to be tuned. But unlike a violin, whereby a string is tuned to one particular tone or frequency, an antenna has to be tuned to an entire band of frequencies. This is quite complex. The FM frequency band is from 88 to 108 megacycles. To achieve tuning that will cover this broad frequency range requires exacting methods of engineering. An expensive antenna is generally tuned to one mid-range frequency but falls badly out of tune as you go in either direction from the tuned frequency.

Another very important feature of a good antenna is the method of electrical as well as mechanical contacts that are made by the elements. Since an antenna is mounted out of doors and exposed to all sorts of weather, these electrical contacts, and there are many on one antenna, must retain precision electrical contact without corrosion or other forms of weathering.

The Finco antennas have a unique process to insure freedom from weathering conditions. Anodizing, which is commonly used for antennas to protect from the weather, is not the final answer. The anodizing is a form of insulator, thus, to insure good circuitry, the anodizing must be scratched off or sanded or removed from the electrical points of contact between the elements. This exposes these very vital points to weathering. The Finco antenna uses a process called Corodizing. Corodizing, however, is an electronic conductor; therefore, it need not be removed at vital points of contact. Thus, with a Finco antenna with the exclusive corodizing process, the entire antenna is surfaced and protected.

The FM antenna that we recommend here in Marin County is the Finco Model FM-4G. This is the highly advertised, famous, top performance antenna. The antenna uses a specially engineered twin drive element with precise matching stubs to achieve the correct tuning throughout the entire frequency range of 88 to 108 megacycles. The twin drive element means that two elements of different lengths provide the broad band tuning. Visit our showrooms to discuss your antenna problems. More later.

TUNING HIS SPINET harpsichord is Fae McNally, who is a piano tuner and technician as well as a musician. McNally says that the wise harpsichord owner learns to tune his own instrument, since they fall out of tune so easily.

Comeback Of An Instrument

The Harpsichord Enjoys A Renewal Of Popularity

By DON KEOWN

There is a worldwide upsurge of interest among musicians and music fans in the harpsichord.

In Marin County, one of those most involved with that trend is Fae C. McNally, 36-year-old Inverness resident.

McNally, born in San Rafael, started studying piano at the age of 6. He took up the harpsichord while working for Peter Wolford Piano Workshop in San Francisco. Now a piano tuner and technician for Sherman Clay in San Rafael, he has continued his interest in both instruments, and also plays the organ.

HE WILL BE heard on two of them at next weekend's Inverness Music Festival at St. Columba's Church and Amphitheater in Inverness.

Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, there will be an outdoor recital featuring McNally on the piano, contralto Reba Mason and a male chorus conducted by Darrell Parker.

That evening, at 8 o'clock, indoors, McNally will join with Nancy L. Bennet for a program of music for two harpsichordists. Baritone Donald Stone will also be heard that evening.

ADDITIONAL programs featuring the festival chorus are scheduled for Sunday at 3 and 8 p.m.

McNally says his introduction to the harpsichord took place about seven years ago. He had played the piano professionally for years, "but I had always been interested in the Baroque period of music and, since the piano wasn't even invented until very late in that period and the music was written originally either for harpsichord or clavichord, naturally my interest easily was bent in that direction."

His acquisition of a Sperhake spinet, made in Passau, West Germany, came through the Wolford Workshop for which he was then working.

"IT IS A beautiful, gorgeously-made instrument of African pear wood," he says, "and most practical. The legs unscrew, and it weighs only about 40 or 50 pounds. It can be thrown into the back of my Volkswagen and transported for appearances."

The harpsichord was picked up for McNally brand new in Germany and brought to this country.

Then McNally acquired a second harpsichord, this one a standard-sized and more elaborate instrument that had been built by Wolford.

"THE SMALLER spinet is probably my favorite," he says. "But they are different, and each is valuable in its own way. The larger one has the greater range, and therefore, is the better solo instrument. It has two jacks or mechanisms."

McNally says he finds the harpsichord, the piano and the organ equally interesting. "Each is adapted to particular styles of music," he says.

Despite the presence of the two harpsichords in his West Marin home, he still plays his Austrian-made grand piano the most.

THE INCREASED attention being paid the harpsichord, he says, can be traced to the realization by all informed conductors around the world that the instrument, with its plucking rather than striking of the strings, is superior to the piano for continuo parts.

"I find it the best suited instrument for ensemble playing," he adds. "The musician is allowed a great deal of freedom, and the accompanist on the harpsichord can improvise considerably. It doesn't boom out like a piano. There is a delicacy to the sound."

Thus, McNally adds, the harpsichord is not a good solo instrument in an ensemble. He compares it to the guitar in a jazz band or group—"it provides harmony and rhythm without being the prominent sound."

McNALLY SAYS he is unable to differentiate between piano, organ and harpsichord as to difficulty in playing.

But he points out that the harpsichord has no sustaining pedal, so that the tone lasts only during the duration of the time the finger is on the note and disappears immediately when taken off.

"Thus you must have an extremely well controlled legato touch, like with the organ," he says.

KEYS OF THE harpsichord are about an eighth of an inch narrower than those of the piano, "so the shift from one instrument to the other isn't easy. Every pianist just can't sit down and play the harpsichord. Each has its own characteristics. You don't, for instance, need the control of weight on the harpsichord that you do on the piano. There is just one sound per note — no gradations."

McNally has made a number of earlier appearances with Miss Bennet, with whom he will be playing next Saturday.

"There is a tremendous amount of music written for more than one harpsichord — for as many as four," he says.

Dominican faculty, Marcus Gordon of the San Francisco Conservatory of Music and the world-renowned Wanda Krasoff.

He was for two years pianist and bass drummer with the Sixth Army Band at San Francisco's Presidio, and has accompanied such stars as Vaughn Monroe, Jaye P. Morgan and Dennis Day.

Several times he has toured the Orient as a pianist for the American President Lines.

HE HAS served as musical director for the Festival Theater, Marin Ballet, a Hadda Brooks tour and a series of summer concerts on the Dickson Ranch at Woodacre.

He is organist for the San Geronimo Valley Presbyterian Church.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Omar McNally, reside at 1407 Grand Avenue in San Rafael.

One of his proudest accomplishments has nothing to do with music. For three consecutive summers he collected fossils in Wyoming with Dr. Malcolm C. McKenna for the American Museum of Natural History. One of his finds was a six-tooth lower jaw from the upper cretaceous.

ON THE subject of the harpsichord, McNally has this bit of advice for prospective owners of an instrument:

"Be sure you learn how to tune your own harpsichord."

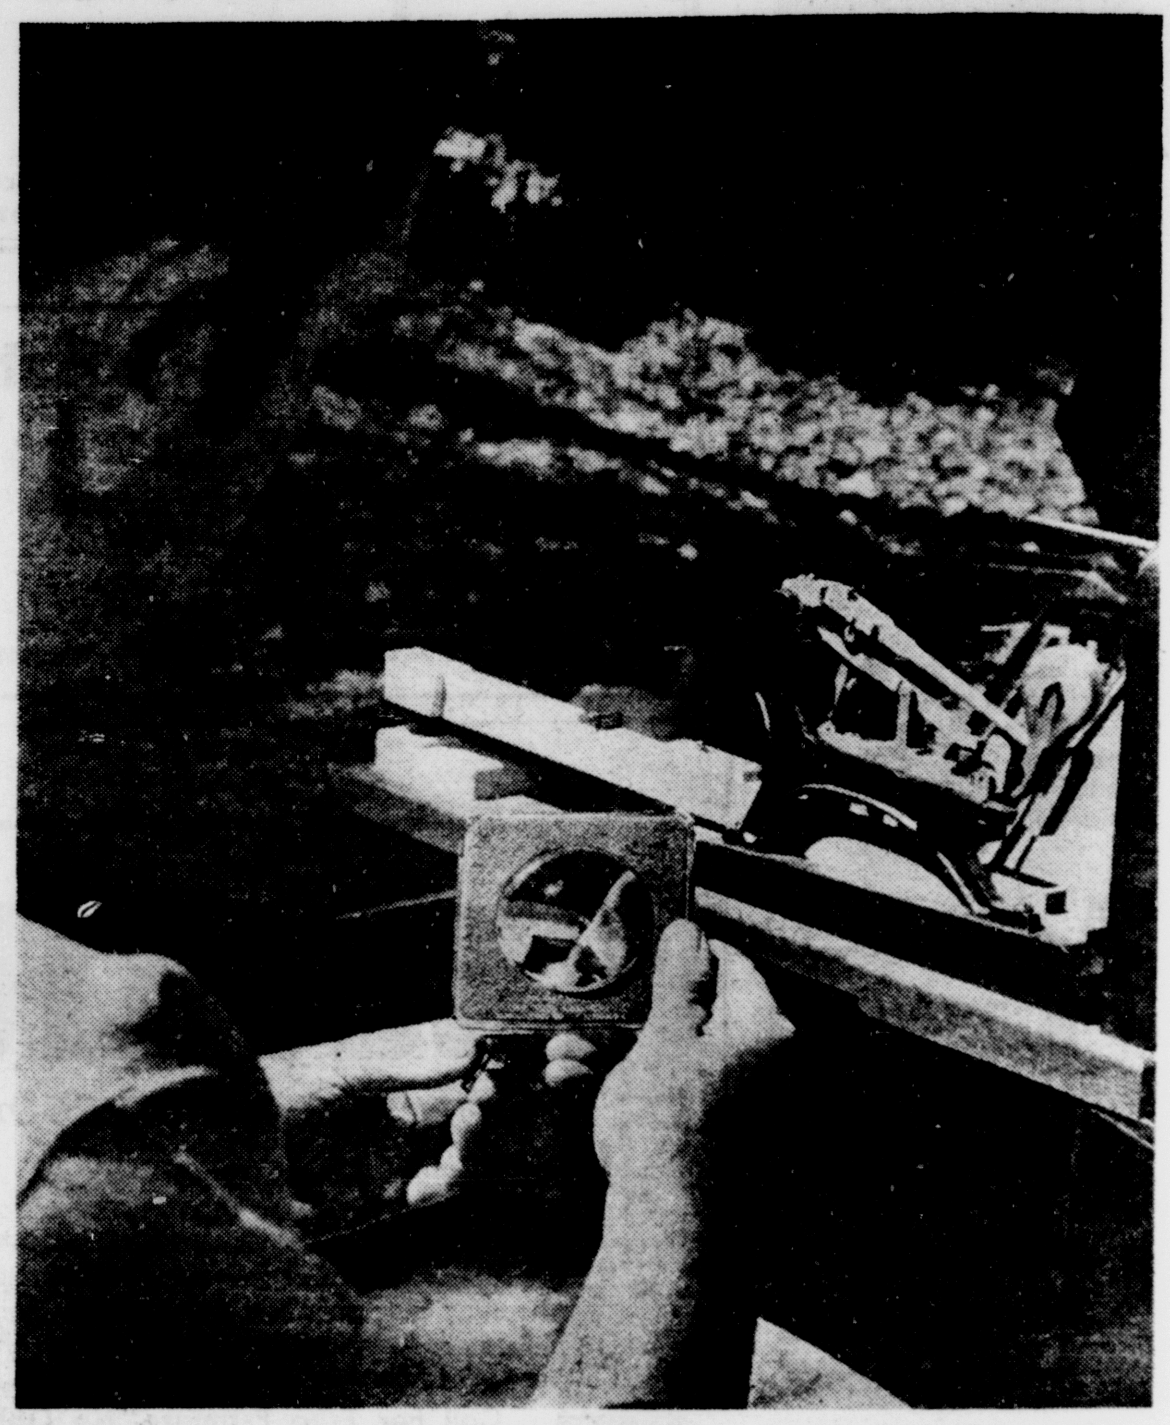
The trait, he admits, is great for his own profession as a tuner.

"But it can rob the owner of much of his enjoyment and a great deal of his money."



STUDYING the jack of his harpsichord with the help of a magnifying glass is Fae McNally. You can compare the harpsichord mechanism with that of the very different piano.

Sometime soon, the Jones boys' father will ask himself if he has enough life insurance.

(And how much is enough, anyway?)

It's a question that often comes up when new responsibilities come along. You've probably asked it yourself.

A quick answer is a minimum of four to five times annual income.

A better one is it all depends. On the size of the family, as well as income. On the financial responsibilities still ahead. On how far other assets will go towards meeting them.

Chances are you've already decided that your other resources can't do the job alone. Especially if you have a family to support. Kids to put through college. A mortgage to pay off. Retirement ideas that call for more income than social security or your company pension will provide.

That's why you own life insurance. It gives you an important advantage over all other types of thrift: the full amount is guaranteed from the start. It's unique that way.

But remember that family circumstances change. Needs never stand still. Enough life insurance today may be too much—or too little—tomorrow. To keep your protection up-to-date, review your policies regularly with your life insurance agent. He's trained to help you.

Humor In Art: The Appeal Is Universal

The Kind Of Paintings That You Long Remember

By LAURA DEVENDORF

The ideas you get at midnight have a special quality.

They are never less than majestic. They are so good in fact, that one tends to overlook the problems that might be involved in pursuing them. At midnight, the problems simply don't exist.

Then comes the morning and if you're smart you'll forget the whole thing. We weren't, we didn't and admittedly we're glad because our particular midnight inspiration began an absorbing venture into one of the most oddly complex of all art subjects, humor in art, explored through discussion with three Marin artists currently engaged in painting it.

IT ALL STARTED very late one night musing over a painting by Alton Raible called "Susannah and The Elders." So what's funny about that? Well, nothing, except Susannah was a bird, splashing coyly to the delight of two baggy-eyed fat-beaked old lechers who were leering at her through the bushes. It was preposterous!

It broke us up and soon we were free associating to all the humorous work we'd ever seen.

There was one by Andrea Hendrick called "The Decorator," a rotund little creature so caught up in her mix-and-matched life that she stands smugly unaware of her absurdity, dressed as she is to match her Brentwood chair. There was another, a fiendish study of two camera-slung lady tourists, "Mae and June at The Forum" by Barbara Stonecipher, and several more.

OF ALL THE fine paintings we'd seen, it was startling how vividly the humorous ones were remembered. What tremendous staying power humor really has! Its appeal is universal; yet there have been so few artists painting in that vein.

Suddenly we were wondering about the few who do. What fun it would be to talk to them and write about it. It's the kind of thing that grabs and won't let go. We were hooked and could hardly wait to get to the phone next morning and get committed to the project.

Next morning we did. We made our first call and . . . wait a minute! The first contact, a person of wit both on and off canvas, was afraid to have the image of a humorist!

INCREDIBLE? Not really. True, this case was the extreme, but though everyone gravitates to humorous work, the public buys it and juries award it prizes, we met a frequent defensiveness on the humor-painters' parts when it came to being identified with it. Being a humorist isn't all as "ha-ha" as you might think and the enlightening discussions with Alton Raible, Andrea Hendrick and Barbara Stonecipher help explain the phenomenon.

You might say these three are typical of humor advocates. All are dedicated painters with solid art backgrounds.

For the past six years, Raible has taught at the College of Marin. Before that he spent 12 years teaching at Oakland's College of Arts and Crafts from which he earned his Bachelor of Arts and Master of Fine Arts degrees.

ANDREA HENDRICK studied art at Syracuse University, George Washington University and the Corcoran, Washington, D.C., with additional studies in Germany and Mexico, while Barbara Stonecipher studied at John Herron Art School, Indianapolis, Cranbrook Academy of Arts, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and the San Francisco Art Institute and was arts and crafts advisor for U.S. Army Europe in Germany.

All three have won numerous awards. In addition, all three paint other ways than humorously. But while their reasons for including it vary, each finds humor a valid art form and one which is necessary to their painting expression. Even so, not one is a bit sure the public gets their point.

"You have to put up with remarks like, 'Oh isn't that cute.'" says Raible whose humanistic birds, at first glance, are just plain incredibly funny. "But it depends on the person viewing it. If they're deep, they'll see more. If they're shallow, they'll only see the cuteness."

THE PEOPLE who have his birds in their homes attest to that.

"Most people," explains Mrs. John Degenhardt, referring to "Diplomatic Dispute" where two downright angry birds glare beak-to-beak behind another smirking sappily through it all, "when they see this have trouble getting past the initial humor. But when they hear the title it jars them. They're struck by how true it is, the arguments, the middle man. It's universal."

Which is Raible's point indeed.

IT IS ALSO an unusual one and his term for it is allegorical satire. "There's a tradition, though small, of satire in painting but none of it is allegorical."

Even his didn't start out that way. It began 12 years ago with, of all things, a cake decorator and fabric design. While doing silk screen, a bird shape emerged on the fabric that caught his eye. With this in mind he incorporated a long-time fascination for those cake icing tubes, fashioned one of his own and squeezed out his first bird painting. It was an instant success.

Encouraged, he expanded his ideas and techniques until allegorical satire evolved, a series of bird-based paintings which present the gamut of human mannerisms, emotions and thoughts. His subjects were everywhere, "Lawyers and Judges," "Organization Men," "The Obedient Wife," and the "Uneasy Balance" between the id, ego and super ego.

THE SERIES met with critical and popular success through several shows at Gump's in San Francisco and their reception was understandable. In their outrageous bird-like way these statements are instantly identifiable with human experience. And, they are devastating!

Who, for example, could resist the delicious message in one called, "Taxes," wherein a bleary-eyed, disheveled, half-plucked bird stands in a pile of his own feathers, the rest of which protrude from the beaks of the gleeful collectors that surround him?

Even Raible couldn't. "I even chuckled while I was doing them. I was having a ball!"

THEN, AT THE height of it he quit. "I suddenly had the feeling I'd done them all before. I didn't chuckle any more and that was it."

What was responsible? Raible is, first of all, an artist. He wanted new subjects and richer surfaces and "to attack the birds this way would take all the fun out of it." In his case, painter opposed humorist. For him the fun was gone.

The condition was only temporary. After a three-year hiatus he is doing birds again, this time as illustrations for his children's nonsense book, "and again, having a ball."

ONCE RAISED, however, the question of painter versus humorist persists. Is there a danger in getting caught up in the idea rather than attacking it as a serious work of art? Andrea Hendrick thinks there definitely is.

"You can get too caught up in it and feel sometimes it doesn't work or hold up as a painting.

"However," she adds, "I'm primarily a message painter and as such, the thing in the back of your mind is all that really matters. The initial reason for the painting must come through and the form follows. But being a serious artist means that basic painting qualities and painting integrity are also involved."

IT DOES PRESENT a problem and for her there's still another. The messages in her work cover everything current from civil rights to politics to the Playboy Club. This adds yet another danger—the one inherent in portraying what is topical.

"If it's based on human characteristics it might be more valid to future generations than just reporting an incident would be." And the trick, she grins, is "to capture timeless character faults."

When she does, she does it with stinging accuracy as in her classic study of "The Politician." He is smiling winningly, but the only thing you see is the "ME" button on his lapel. Or the friendly "Landlady" grinning toothily and hanging on to her hat as she careens away on her bicycle. Or "The Salesmen," a group of washed-out, grey-flanneled men around a crisp, bright merchandise display which is the real hero of the piece. The entire scene is surrounded with actual IBM cards.

"THE SALESMEN," is just one of her series on the "IBM Family Of Man."

"These are not judgments," she states, "but a fact of life. Our buying habits, the direction of our decisions is determined by our current computerized living where individual or minority opinions don't count."

All this sounds deadly serious for someone who gets such wickedly humorous results.

"I've never been able to tell jokes, even repeat them," Mrs. Hendrick explains, "and I can't write. So for me it comes out in paint. If human beings are involved it's bound to have humor. It's a way of looking at things. They may be sad or tragic but also very funny and the fact that people can look at it that way is healthy."

On these points she is in agreement with Barbara Stonecipher who explored it even further. To do so she quotes the Oxford University Dictionary definition of humor: "Less purely intellectual than wit and closely allied to pathos."

And she illustrates her point, "There's a black and white side to each human being. Even when I think I'm doing a very funny portrait it comes out with an element of sadness. It's not real humor without it. Or if I think the subject is pathetic it comes out funny."

HER WORK always has this double edge as in "Anniversary," which depicts a weathered old couple as she imagined they might look after being married 85 years. They are grippingly sad yet you can't ignore the comic irony in how much they look alike.

"People aren't all that tragic," she explains. "If they were, it would be unrelieved misery, an El Greco, and I have great faith in the human race. Besides people fascinate me. I'd be bored doing an ordinary portrait of someone because I want to say so much more about them. I just want somebody to see them as I do. It's like writing a story; I want to communicate."

And indeed she does whether showing people themselves or the things people make sadly ludicrous because they invented them.

MISS STONECIPHER loves the element of the ridiculous. But though her satire sounds like fun to do, actually, it's a lot harder.

"You can't separate humor from all of art," she asserts. "It must be well done and the statement is even more powerful if the work is stronger technically. There's a lot of sloppy craftsmanship today and a lot of abominations done in the name of art. It takes much more talent to do humor because, though distortion is great you can't do it if you can't draw first."

The difficulty of painting humor may be part of why so few artists attempt it, but in Miss larger reason: "Artists take themselves so seriously. They have to have a sense of humor about themselves to e x p o s e themselves to the point of attempting humor. They can laugh at it but they won't put it on their own canvas because they want that to be a masterpiece. Maybe they think it will be taken as a cartoon or that it isn't legit. Yet if it's good it can be."

"And how sad," she adds, "when humor is so much a part of life. People long for it yet there's a stigma because artists want their work to be taken seriously."

OBVIOUSLY, FROM all this, those who stick with humor are a hardy lot. Historically, too, humor is pretty minor. The only names even mentioned in these discussions were Daumier, Picasso, Hogarth, Levine, Steinberg and Grosz and even if you could name a dozen more it would still make a bonafide humor-painter about as common as a whooping crane.

After learning more about it we have a nagging suspicion of who's to blame. That's right . . . we are. We see their work and love it. We collectively "flip" on recognizing some outrageous human foible portrayed in biting jest. But we, as viewers, have the unforgivable tendency to gobble up the fun without realizing that to convey such insight required talent, skill and, above all, work.

That doesn't mean we must scowl and sway knowingly before these canvases in order to make the humorists happy. If we did, we'd probably end up in one of them as a study of pseudo art sophisticate. But we can't blame them if being blandly ignored as no more than "cute" or "funny" sometimes rankles, makes them defensive or precludes their attempting it at all.

If we don't want humorists in art to become extinct we should lobby for a law, brief but important, Section 1 of which is enjoy . . . Section 2 of which is understand . . . and Section 3 of which is appreciate.

"UP IN THE CLOUDS? COME DOWN TO EARTH!"

It is claimed we base 95% of our buying decisions on emotion. When we are shopping for something beautiful what makes us feel that it is beautiful? Philosophers have long pondered the true nature of aesthetics. Whether it is a song, a poem, a picture, or clothing, the way we feel about it depends on a great many complex stimuli.

Simplicity, unity, completeness, order, beauty, expressiveness, interest are the stimuli that results in high aesthetic values.

The way you feel depends on how you react to stimuli that can be arranged in good and bad pairs, such as: order-disorder; completeness-incompleteness; variety-monotony. For example: raw silk fabrics have many slubs and nubs that may be called defects, but silk is never monotonous. The charm and natural richness of silk depends on irregularities or imperfections present in a fiber.

In addition to the aesthetic consideration of fabrics and fashion there are practical considerations, too, states the National Institute of Drycleaning. For instance, "will a garment dryclean satisfactorily?" "What special care must I give the garment?" "Will I be satisfied with its performance in wear and care?" If you have a doubt in your mind, your professional dryceaner is in a good position to advise you on fabric selection and care.

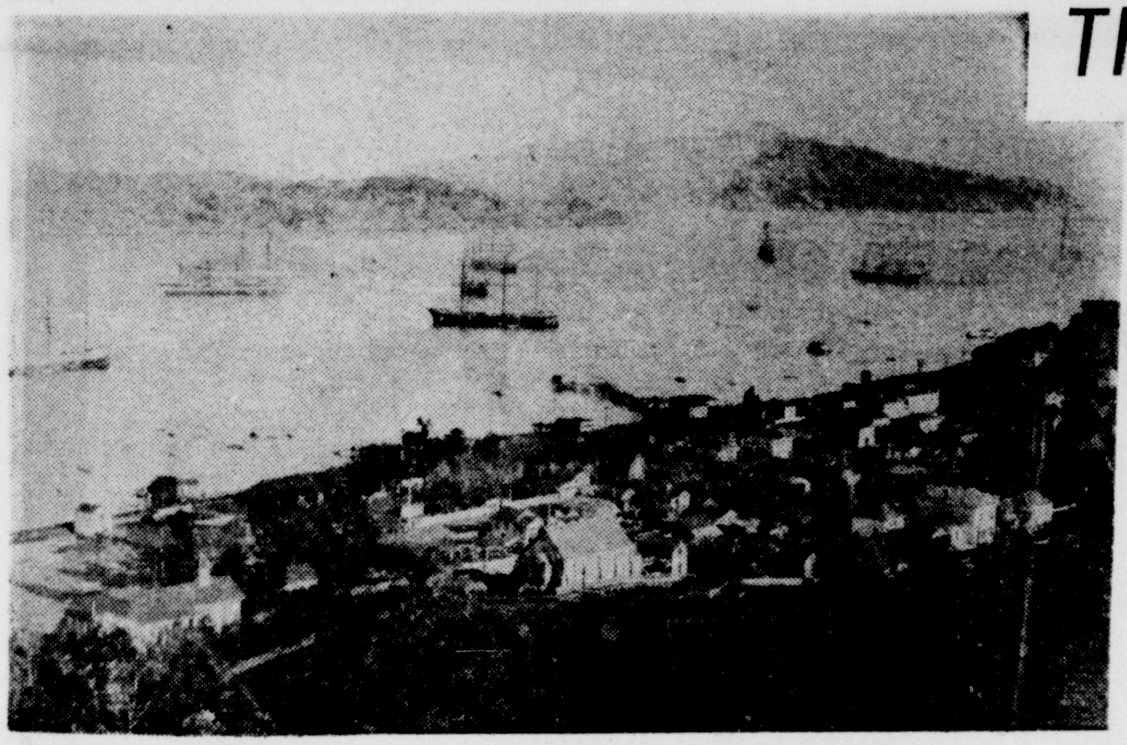
THE SAUSALITO STORY

How Marin's City On The Bay Got Its Start And Flourished

By FLORENCE DONNELLY
Independent-Journal Historian



THE STILL YOUNG but fast-growing Sausalito of 1900 looked like this, with sailing ships offshore and an increasing number of buildings along the shoreline. (Photo courtesy of Marin County Historical Society Museum)

The story of the little willow that became a city had its beginnings in 1775.

It was then that Juan deAyala, commander of the small ship San Carlos, explored the waters of San Francisco Bay and charted Sausalito's shoreline.

Small willow trees grew near the springs on the hillside, and thus the location came to be knows as "Little Willow," or in Spanish, "Saucelito." The name was spelled variously, but from Saucelito evolved the name Sausalito.

WHEN CAPTAIN deAyala explored the bay he called the small cove near what became the Fort Baker military reservation Ensenada del Carmelita (creek of little Carmel).

Several decades passed before there were any buildings on the land. Juan (John) Reed built a small cabin there in 1832. Capt. William A. Richardson, granted the Saucelito Rancho in 1836, then constructed a hacienda. The Richardson story was told fully in an earlier Marin Magazine.

After the captain's death, his land passed into other hands, with Samuel R. Throckmorton getting the major portion.

During Richardson's lifetime and afterward, the springs in the hills provided water for ships which dropped anchor in the bay and for Yerba Buena (San Francisco), where water was scarce and brackish.

THE WATER was piped from the springs in Saucelito to the shore, then taken in casks to the ships or to Yerba Buena. Vendors then disposed of the pure water to the people in Yerba Buena.

The water wharf in Saucelito was really a trestle, supporting the pipes and a large water tank.

When the whaling vessels came to anchor in the cove deAyala had visited and first named, it came to be called Whalers Bay. Years later it was known as Horseshoe Cove.

Each winter a number of whaling vessels, after hunting the huge mammals in the north Pacific, put down anchor in the cove. Here was a sheltered port with a supply of fresh water, wild game and wood close at hand.

THE WHALING business reached its height in 1855 when 650 ships were reported engaged in the industry in the Pacific and employing about 13,000 seamen.

Along the bayshore a small village grew. The population included seamen turned landlubbers to stay with their wives and children, and fishermen.

Soon the property fronting on San Francisco Bay and Pacific Ocean became valuable. The Journal of April 12, 1864, published under the headline: "Lime Point," this information:

"THE SECRETARY of War has finally decided to purchase Lime Point for the National Government to be used for the purpose of fortification. The parties owning the property are willing to sell for $125,000. The transfer will be made as soon as the title is satisfactorily ascertained by the United States District Attorney in San Francisco.

"The War Department has decided to erect, when possession is obtained, some of the most complete fortifications in the whole country. This purchase will add materially to the interest of our country."

In 1868 Throckmorton sold more than 200 acres to the Saucelito Land and Ferry Co. for $550,000.

"THE MARIN County History of 1880" said of Saucelito . . . "till the year 1868 there was not much of a town at that place but during the last named year an enterprise was set on foot which was destined to cause new life to spring into the old wreck of a town and to draw attention of people seeking a quiet rural home in a lovely place, it being just the location they desired.

"This was the organization of the Saucelito Land and Ferry Company. They purchased acreage on the south side of Richardson's Bay . . . and divided it into lots and country seats, laying out broad avenues and streets. The company at once established a ferry line between this place and San Francisco and put the steamer Princess in the trade."

According to this history, the first building in the new town (to distinguish it from the village known as Old Saucelito) was the Saucelito Hotel.

EVIDENTLY people in other parts of Marin were envious of the progress of the town beside the bay as the following was printed in the Journal Feb. 6, 1869:

"New Saucelito. This delightful place brought into existence by the Saucelito Land and Ferry Company presents a woebegone appearance after storms. A portion of the embankment made at the heel of the wharf is washed away and the solitary house which composes the town is a monument of folly to the persons who thought Saucelito would be 'the grand city.'"

In the same tenor was this item in the Journal of May 1, 1869:

"THE MAP OF the embryo city of New Saucelito was filed in the recorder's office. The stockholders predict a brilliant future for that point when the Humboldt Bay Railroad is completed. New Saucelito is a big thing—on paper."

Despite the unfavorable publicity, the development company achieved its purpose.

Lots were sold fronting the newly laid streets. Many of these were named for incorporators of the company. Among these were Easterby (for A. G.), Currey (for Judge John Currey of the State Supreme Court), Woodward (for William A. Woodward), Platt (for pioneer dairyman of the area, H. B., who was also owner of Platt's Hall in San Francisco where the first auction for the Saucelito lots was held), Bee (for Frank A.), and Girard (for Leonce).

GEORGE AVENUE was named for Robert George, long-time secretary of the company. Alban Wray, another secretary of the company, was also honored with a street name.

Saucelito has done more than many communities in preserving the names of the pioneers who worked for the advancement of the town.

However, two streets in the city commemorate vessels of widely different design which navigated the bay in different eras of Marin history. One is San Carlos, the name of the packet in which the waters of the bay were charted, and the other is Princess, for the little sidewheeler ferryboat which was put into operation in May of 1868.

THE INCORPORATORS of the company realized that buyers of their land, most of whom had offices or businesses in San Francisco, must have quick and inexpensive transportation. So when a person bought a lot, he was given a pass on the ferry. Others who crossed the bay by boat had to pay a fare.

The boat left from the wharf at the foot of Princess Street and landed in San Francisco at Meiggs Wharf at the foot of Powell Street.

The topography of Saucelito varied as much as its residents. Those who lived on the hills were usually of moderate or wealthy means. They kept to themselves and most of them looked with disdain on the inhabitants of the shore. The latter, in turn, had no use for the "hill crowd" and there has been, through the years, intermittent dissension between the two factions.

AS TRANSPORTATION increased so did the population of the city on the bay. In addition to the Princess, the Land and Ferry Company operated the yacht, Diana, for bay excursions and on the regular run when the Princess was undergoing repairs.

Capt. Charles H. Harrison (for whom another Sausalito street is named) was in charge of the operation of the ferry.

In 1875, the North Pacific railroad had its southern terminal in Saucelito and took over the operation of ferryboats. That company put several ferries into operation, the Petaluma being among the first. Later this boat was renamed the Tamalpais. Better known were the San Rafael and her sister boat, the Saucelito.

THE FERRIES ran on a regular schedule which had not always been true when the Saucelito Land and Ferry Co. was in charge of the operation.

A trip on board the ferries was a pleasant one. There was no hurry. Business men grouped together to talk of their affairs. College students pored over their books or chatted about life at school. Those who had skipped breakfast would have service in the restaurant on the lower deck. The bar was also open on the return runs at night.

The railroad, with its terminal and yards, and the crews and mechanics of the ferries brought prosperity to "New Saucelito." Many of the railroad and ferry men lived in the town on the bay.

SEVERAL HOTELS were built, with the Saucelito one of the first. Another was a two-story building built by James Green near the ferry landing and destroyed by fire. Stores were built along the bayshore. The Pacific Yacht Club and the San Francisco Yacht Club both had good-sized buildings and substantial wharves.

The Marin County History of 1880 reported there were three saloons, three hotels (probably

THIS WAS SAUSALITO'S downtown district at the turn of the century, with both the waterfront and its ferryboat facilities and the railroad yards and their trains giving impetus to the community's growth. Photos of north and south Sausalito at bottom of the pages were also taken in about 1900.

each of these had a bar), four stores, two blacksmith and wagon shops, one shoe shop, a livery stable, a harness shop, a bakery, meat market and a lumber yard.

In the hills west of the town were manganese mines, and the Saucelito Melting Works was established in 1878 by Henry H. Eames for the reduction of all kinds of ore and quartz.

THE POST OFFICE was established in the town in 1870. There was also a telegraph office.

The town name, which had been spelled variously, became Sausalito officially, and the town was incorporated on Sept. 4, 1893.

People of different nationalities and cultural backgrounds became residents. It was an especially popular resort for artists, writers and the yachting set.

It was also a rendezvous for gamblers. The poolrooms were long an affront to the residents.

Poolrooms have an innocent sound but those in Sausalito were a shield for all sorts of illegal activities. Prostitutes and underworld figures moved in. Horse betting was carried on. This was against the law, but the officers of the time made a habit of ignoring the activity. Bribery was commonplace.

THE MARIN Journal in the the same issue of Aug. 17, 1899, quoted from an editorial which had appeared in the San Francisco Post. It read:

"Up to date the poolroom operators, who have taken possession of the town of Sausalito, appear to have had things their own way. The various efforts to dislodge them by legal means have proved futile. Politically they have practically enjoyed control of the 'works' from the very start. The town trustees have resisted all efforts to disperse them and the local justice of the peace has manifested a decided reluctance to do his duty.

"The gamblers seem to have political control of Sausalito. The other day a petition was filed with the board of trustees, asking that the town be disincorporated, which had it been granted, would have thrown Sausalito into the hands of the supervisors of Marin County, who are said to be hostile to the gamblers.

"BUT AN investigation of the petition showed that it did not bear a sufficient number of names to compel consideration so the trustees joyfully placed it on file.

"This petition was signed by nearly all the respectable people of Sausalito. . . . The combination of poolroom operators, saloonkeepers and politicians has been too strong. But they have still one resort left. The petitioners may sell out their holdings and remove from Sausalito. This would convert the town into a western Monte Carlo and taboo it in the eyes of decent people throughout the country."

Not long before her death, I talked to 86-year-old Miss Fannie Shoobert, whose family home was in Sausalito for many years. She told me how she and other civic-minded citizens, many of these women, banded together to clean up Sausalito's waterfront.

"YOU HAVE TO get around and stir things up," she declared, and added, "We got rid of the poolrooms."

Miss Shoobert liked to think of Sausalito as "the stairway town," the name which Nathaniel Hawthorne's son gave it in an article he wrote while living in

EARLIER IN ITS HISTORY, in 1871, the Sausalito waterfront looked like this. This early-day photograph also shows the flume bringing water down the hillside and the reservoir on the shoreline where the precious liquid was stored. The Saucelito Land and Ferry Co. was already running ferryboat service between Sausalito and San Francisco, using the ferryboat Princess and the launch Diana for the trips. Train service had not yet begun. (Photo courtesy of the Marin County Historical Society Museum)

THE SMALL VILLAGE that first grew up at the foot of the hill along the shore of San Francisco Bay came to be known as Old Town, as distinguished from New Town that developed later.

Sausalito, And How It Grew

the hillside community. She said that the residents on the hill at one time were mostly of British descent as a popular British consul general in San Francisco had bought a large parcel of property in Sausalito and divided it into lots.

Miss Shoobert also explained how the term "banana belt" came into popularity to describe one portion of Sausalito which has an especially mild climate. The Shoobert home was on Harrison Avenue and nearby was the nursery of George B. Jones, father of the late George S. Jones, longtime Marin County clerk. The nursery covered several acres, and the owner planted banana trees on his land that thrived.

IN 1888 THE John Mason Distillery began operations in Sausalito. It was the only distillery producing grain spirits west of the Mississippi River, it is said. Train passengers were greeted by an offensive odor that spewed from the marsh near the plant. This was believed to come from the mash which had been piped from the distillery.

Recently the 14-acre property was sold to a company which announced it plans a commercial development.

Along with the ark-dwellers on the bayshore came a widely different population. Many such as Mr. and Mrs. Adolph B. Spreckels, were wealthy. Following their marriage in 1908, the Spreckels lived in a large house where a smart apartment house now stands.

THE 1906 EARTHQUAKE and fire in San Francisco resulted in a large increase in population in Sausalito as it did in other communities around the bay. Artists sketched the spectacular views and writers gained inspiration as they worked in studios overlooking the bay.

On Feb. 5, 1935, Sausalito became a sixth class city. With the completion of the Golden Gate Bridge, more and more people moved to the picturesque community.

On Dec. 7, 1941, Pearl Harbor was bombed by the Japanese and immediately the United States was at war.

Ships and tankers to supply our forces and our allies overseas with fuel and other sinews of war were needed. Our government took steps at once that founded a gigantic defense operation in Sausalito. This was the Marinship — "born" March 28, 1942.

DYNAMITE BLASTS ripped Sausalito hills to start the construction. Into the tideland mud, 30,000 pilings were sunk and the building of shops and the installation of machinery began.

By the end of the first year, 12 ships were delivered, a feat unequaled by any other first-year yard in history.

Building the ships were 15,000 men and women. The women worked side by side with the men as they painted, laid pipe and welded. Many had never previously handled anything heavier than a gavel at a Parent-Teacher Assn. meeting; with sons and husbands in service and fired by patriotism, they wanted to do all they could to win the war.

THE HUGE shipyard cost 17 million dollars. Houses were constructed at Marin City for the workers and their families. Dormitories were built for the men who had no families with them.

"Liberty" ships and powerful "Mission" class tankers were launched at Marinship. They were named for railroads, rivers, U. S. Navy and California pioneers and California missions.

The Sausalito Chamber of Commerce says in its brochure:

"We aren't a bit stuffy about our civic virtues . . . we're determined to remain a 'village' for pleasant living . . . Sausalito has characters of all kinds who get into civic hassles which make life undull for all of us."

THE BOOKLET goes on: "Sausalito's hotels have an unhurried, stubborn, comfortable Old World attitude . . . It has been said that Sausalito is where true boat-lovers go when they go to heaven. We're modest about being the greatest boat harbor in northern California. We have everything from tiny Toros to ocean-going schooners . . . just about every craft known to man . . . The 'forest' of our masts and rigging adorns our waterfront for two miles."

The city along the Golden Gate has many advantages besides location and climate to offer its residents — good police and fire departments, service organizations, churches of many denominations, schools with high scholastic standards and yachting and sailing clubs.

Practically every city in the county boasts of its spectacular views, but Sausalito justifiably takes special pride in its vistas. And to quote the Sausalito Chamber of Commerece: "Sausalito has acquired some of the West's most quaint Victorian facades clinging to our crazy hillsides . . . The modern rubs elbows pleasantly . . . with our old fishermen's homes, our houseboats and other relics of the past . . . "

SAUSALITO HAS quaint shops, too, and on weekends thousands of visitors come to shop and to stare at some of the mop-haired denizens, who stroll along the narrow streets and display their wares in the "arty" shops.

It is impossible to do adequate justice to Sausalito. I can only liken it to a beautiful woman, in her infancy an innocent, in youth a hoyden, and now, in maturity sophisticated and tantilizing.

MARIN POETS' CORNER

IPHIGENIA

Scurfy Calchas
Trapped me in my bath,
Alone, the palace silent as a grotto,
Veined goat-eyes lusting
He advanced, paunchy but light,
On soundless cat-feet moving.

Naked and shaken, I stood voicelessly,
The snatched thin bodkin's point
Touching beneath my virgin breast,
Defying him . . .
My handmaid stumbled
Behind the arras, and he vanished.

I knew, then,
His priestly cunning would abide its time
(The curse of Atrius still lives.)

Tricked by a cruel ruse, today I die
In Aulis' sunshine, by the hand
Of the gulled brute who shared me
With your unstained youth . . .

Avenge me, mother.

NOAH GREENBERG Conducting the New York Pro Musica; AN ANTHOLOGY OF THEIR GREATEST WORKS — Everest Stereo 3145/7:

The late Noah Greenberg probably did more than any other musical figure in popularizing early music in this country.

Saddened by his recent death, and finding on their hands seven Esoteric label discs conducted by Greenberg, the Everest Group has put together another bargain-priced multi-record collection of great interest.

Although the originals are old, the sound in the new pressings seems to be genuine stereo. Vocal music predominates; the usual wind instruments and percussion of some of their recent Decca releases is not to be found here.

Record 1 is devoted to three sonatas of Handel and one of his short cantatas. Record 2 is works of Thomas Morley. Record 3 presents a very well balanced and enjoyable concert of works by several composers, both instrumental and vocal, and titled Festino; Record 4 is "Songs of Henry Purcell"; Record 5 a medieval Christmas carol collection; Record 6 a light-hearted set of "Children's Songs of Shakespeare's Time"; and the final disc features the "Ode on the Death of Mr. Henry Purcell" by John Blow.

Since the set contains no notes and is somewhat less fun musically than their recent releases, I would hesitate to recommend it as an introduction to the wonders of the Pro Musica; but for those already owning some select Greenberg discs, this is a fine way to expand the collection in one swell foop.

HANDEL: 15 Sonatas, Opus 1, for Violin with Harpsichord — Henri Temianka, violin, and Malcom Hamilton, harpsichord —Everest Stereo 3143/3:

Following the very flexible attitude toward instrumentation in the Baroque, Handel composed these works for the flute, oboe or violin.

Certain ones seem to fit better on one instrument than another. And some of the 15 have been recorded using all three, at various times. This is the first release of all 15 on one instrument.

Most of the sonatas have four movements in the order slow-fast-slow-fast. Also following Baroque practice, Handel steals a lot of material from himself. Many familiar Handelian themes will come to light to even the casual listener.

The works have the usual strong stamp of Handel's style.

Violin fanciers will want to have this set, but having heard about half of these sonatas played on the flute, I will continue to prefer that choice of instrument. Perhaps the solution is to get a flutist, oboist and violinist assembled to make the complete set, each playing only the sonatas which sound best for his particular instrument.

THE BOOK PAGES: Despot Or Democrat?

CHARLES DE GAULLE
A glory-seeker?

By DON KEOWN

Charles de Gaulle—democrat or despot? Has his career been heroic, tyrannical or simply ridiculous? Or something of all these?

The answers provided by French journalist Robert Mengin in his "No Laurels for De Gaulle" are anything but laudatory to the general.

The years to which the book applies directly are those of World War II following the downfall of France, with De Gaulle engaged in setting up a Free French government in London. Mengin, too, was in London at the time, and in a position to follow the events closely — and with misgivings.

The impact of those critical developments during the years 1940 to 1943 are still being felt throughout the world today.

Mengin tries hard to maintain the stance and tone of the objective observer as he comments upon De Gaulle's rapid ascent to power as a symbol of that which was yet unconquered in Frenchmen and in France. But Mengin is no neutral as far as De Gaulle is concerned. Almost from the outset, he considered De Gaulle an autocrat and glory-seeker. And that distrust was to deepen.

There are snatches of praise for De Gaulle — generally for his intelligence and dedication to purpose. But the accolades are few and faint in comparison to the condemnation and charges that Mengin heaps upon the general's erect figure.

Mengin feels De Gaulle was guilty of a naked grab for power. That he accepted credit for exploits that were not his doing, that he used and deserted those who worked for him, that he was never a democrat at heart, and that he acted always with his own political future foremost in mind.

The accusations are supported persuasively. Mengin was a press attache at the French embassy in London at the time his country collapsed. His efforts to play a more active role for Free France (later renamed Fighting France) were thwarted by his refusal to swear an oath of personal allegiance to Charles de Gaulle. He had to content himself with working in propaganda for the British until conditions changed and he could join the French navy as an officer without taking the oath. Then he served with great distinction.

Never did Mengin lose his distrust of De Gaulle, and it clearly lingers to this day.

The journalist unquestionably was in a favorable position to observe and record astutely the events that saw De Gaulle climb from the status of a comparatively unknown and junior general officer to spokesman for and symbol of a people and their cause.

His book makes interesting reading, not only for its revelations of the De Gaulle character, but also for what it tells us about those other men—Churchill, Roosevelt, et al—who had the trying experience of working with the proud, intensely patriotic, stiff-necked Frenchman, and for the behind-the-scenes information it provides on many incidents that have remained cloudy and confused.

As for De Gaulle, himself, perhaps the truest picture of that complicated personality can be attained by reading both Mengin's book and the sharply contrasting memoirs of the general himself. There must have been more depth to Charles de Gaulle than one can detect by reading Mengin's book alone, just as there is more to De Gaulle today than the stubborn supernationalist who so tries the patience of France's former friends. With all his faults, De Gaulle is one man who continues to strive positively for an easing of the Cold War. And in Algeria, he demonstrated a surprising flexibility and ability to face facts that his detractors have not always shown under similar circumstances.

With all its anti-Gaullist overtones, "No Laurels for De Gaulle" must be regarded as an important and a fascinating book.

NO LAURELS FOR DE GAULLE by Robert Mengin, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 402 pages, $6.95.

A PICTORIAL HISTORY OF JAZZ by Orrin Keepnews and Bill Grauer Jr., Crown, 297 pages, $5.95.

"A PICTORIAL History of Jazz" by Orrin Keepnews and Bill Grauer Jr. first appeared in 1955, and quite properly was hailed as a classic in its field.

It offered an exhaustive photographic record of how America's own music was born, of how it grew and matured.

Now Keepnews (Grauer died in 1963) has revised the book, bringing it up to date.

Owners of the earlier version will probably continue to be satisfied with that volume. The most important figures are there. But those who do not own copies have an opportunity to acquire them with the added bonus of the revisions and additions Keepnews has made.

What they will receive for their $5.95 (a very modest price for a book of this scope, size and quality) is a remarkable collection of 725 illustrations showing the events, persons and places of historic importance in the history of jazz, from Storyland down to the present. These photos have been expertly arranged, skillfully reproduced, informatively introduced and captioned in such a manner as to make extensive text unnecessary.

Louis Armstrong, King Oliver, Jelly Roll Morton, Bessie Smith, Lizzie Miles, Muggsy Spanier, Bix Beiderbecke, Paul Whiteman, Fats Waller, Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Benny Goodman, the Dorseys, Cab Calloway, Billie Holiday, Ella Fitzgerald, Sidney Bechet, Kid Ory, Earl Hines, Lester Young, Dizzy Gillespie, Thelonius Monk, Woody Herman, Shelly Manne, Stan Getz, Miles Davis, Charlie Mingus, Ornette Coleman—they're all there, with many more, intelligently appraised as to their roles in the great jazz story.

THE THIRD novel by Malcolm Braly, "It's Cold Out There," has been published by Fawcett as a 50-cent Gold Medal paperback original. Again Braly writes of the problems of the convict and ex-convict.

THE WEEK of from Oct. 30 through Nov. 5 has been designated as 1966 National Children's Book Week.

Sleuths & Suspense

HIS WEIGHT IN GOLD by Maurice Procter, Harper & Row, $4.50, 215 pages. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

This book is worth its weight in American money.

Set in Britain, the story is an off-beat mystery. You know who the crooks are, and what the crime is from the beginning, but you don't know how they all are going to wind up. And in that Procter tugs the reader along in a properly suspenseful manner.

Rafe Tyrrel, a sometimes actor, falls in with thieves and they stage a big mail robbery. It goes off like clockwork and everybody takes a powder until the heat's off. Tyrrel alone knows where the loot is stashed but before he can go to the hiding place for the big divvy-up he's arrested and put in prison. Two different lines of crooks work to spring him, neither side knowing what the other is doing. And finally it's done. Tyrrel goes where the money is, but . . .

Procter weaves a fine story and keeps the action going at a brisk pace.

For The Juniors—

Some new books for the juniors:

"Andy Buckram's Tin Man" (Viking, $3.50) by Carol Ryrie Brink, with black and white illustrations by W. T. Mars, is a modern fairy tale for the older, 9 to 12, child. Andy builds four tin men, and a series of fantastic adventures begin as a thunderstorm floods the countryside and electrifies the boy's creations. Ultimately, Andy finds himself afloat in a leaky boat and headed, with his four robots, each portrayed with a special character and personality, for a deserted island.

"Sometimes Magic" (Platt & Munk, $2.95) is a collection of stories for teen-age girls by such outstanding women writers as Dorothy Parker, Jane Austen and Edna St. Vincent Millay. The "magic" is a compound of the romance and laughter, the triumphs and the despair that come to a young girl as she moves from the happy insulation of childhood to the self-awareness of womanhood. Each writer in a different way gives a rich evocation of a young girl's emotions and experiences at this significant time in her life.

"For Conspicuous Gallantry" (Hammond, $3.50) by Donald E. Cooke, with illustrations by Jack Woodson, is a collection of stories of heroes representing a cross-section of the more than 3,000 persons who have earned the Medal of Honor. There are maps showing the location of the action which earned for the heroes their country's highest award for courage.

Hal Evarts unravels a mystery that takes his teen-age heroes to the dazzling summit of an unclimbed peak in his "The Talking Mountain" (Scribner's, $3.95). This adventure novel will enthrall young readers, especially those who have looked yearningly at a mountain and await the day when they will be able to take up its challenge.

"From Fair to Fair" (Walck, $5.95) is a collection by popular folk-singer Jean Ritchie of tunes of the British Isles. Included are 16 traditional songs of England, Scotland and Ireland, with a thread of a story —wandering minstrel Jock rambling from fair to fair — introducing each piece of music. For each song and story there is an appropriate photograph by George Pickow. The piano arrangements will be appreciated by devotees, and children will enjoy the games that go with many of the songs.

San Francisco sportswriter Dick Friendlich has written another of his sports novels, this one a fast-moving football yarn for boys up to 14 that he has entitled "Touchdown Maker" (Doubleday, $3.50). Humiliated when he is blamed for his team's loss of the state championship, Russ Harkness vows to give up football. How he matures provides an exciting climax for the story.

The fascinating story of one of the 20th Century's great personages, "Eleanor Roosevelt: First Lady of the World" (Garrard, $1.98) by Charles P. Graves is inspiring, as one would expect. It is part of the Discovery Books series of biographies, and highly recommended for grades two through five. Another volume in that series at the same price is "John James Audubon: Bird Artist" by James Sterling Ayars. It has excellent illustrations by George J. Parrish, supplemented by Audubon prints, and should find ready acceptance among young Marinites.

"The Three Sorrowful Tales of Erin" (Walck, $3.75) by F. M. Pilkington offers some of the most beautiful and haunting stories from the treasury of Irish legends. Stories are peopled by heroes and kings, druids and beautiful maidens from the long, long ago. Three tales, "The Fate of the Children of Tuireann," 'The Fate of the Children of Lir," and "Deirdre and the Sons of Uisne" will appeal to the older reader.

Short Stories Whet The Appetite For Joanne Greenberg's Novels

SUMMERING by Joanne Greenberg, Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 208 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Pat Perry.

Reviews Of New Reading

This is a versatile collection of short stories that does a remarkable thing—it makes you just long to dash out and get the author's two previously published full-length novels.

The range of subjects is wide. There is a tense psychological study of a woman in prison, a macabre folk tale from an old Polish village and a time machine story of a modern Jew's accidental return to the Crucifixion.

Frankly, most of the stories' plots are fairly slight. They're too short for the reader to become involved, and this is what whets your appetite for a full length novel. Mrs. Greenberg has written a historical novel about the Jewish sect in 12th Century England, and a modern piece, "The Monday Voices," both reported excellent. And if these are written in the same masterly fashion, they are pleasures to be anticipated.

She is what I call "a total writer," a person with more than her fair share of the six senses. She sees and smells and hears and feels more deeply than others, and gets this sensitivity across to the reader.

One of the best stories is about a timid librarian in a town of the American South who joins a civil rights protest and is thrown into jail with a hate-filled Negro woman. It's different. It makes you think.

The book's title is from the last and longest story—also the best. An extremely touching tale of a young city girl's summer visit to the hill country where she establishes a delicate rapport with a shy hill girl, it's written with great beauty and meaning.

JOANNE GREENBERG is the author of "Summering," a collection of her short stories published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston Inc. Previously she had written two novels.

Award Dinner

THE LAST GENTLEMAN by Walker Percy, Farrar, Straus and Giroux Inc. 409 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

Walker Percy, whose "The Moviegoer" won the 1962 National Book Award, again has an inquisitive Southern youth as the protagonist of his second novel as he draws him through situations of dilemma in both frenetic city and Southern small town living.

The youth, Bill Barrett, becomes involved with the Vought family, whose daughter and the illness of their youngest son keep him in a series of bafflements and reactions that have serio-comic overtones throughout the book.

While the story has its amusing moments, it generally is less successful than "The Moviegoer" in its character's attempt to bystep the stereotyped life patterns for something more real, and in its sheer comic inventions.

Slick Writing

THE SEASONS HEREAFTER by Elisabeth Ogilvie, McGraw-Hill, 308 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

In this novel, Vanessa, a ward of the state of Maine, gains her independence by marrying a lobster-fisherman, even though they have little in common intellectually.

Circumstances force them to move to an island owned and operated by a family named Bennett. Vanessa's adjustment to life as a fisherman's wife in a close-knit island society provides the story.

The author shows deep understanding of the personality produced by the state-as-a-parent, and if you like the slick "woman's magazine" style of writing, you will find this better than the average woman's novel.

Personally, I find the way this lady handles an affair, sex and four-letter words oddly more distasteful than the direct, brutal attack of Baldwin, or the clinical-satirical style of Mary McCarthy.

For Keyes Fans

I, THE KING, by Frances Parkinson Keyes, McGraw-Hill, 351 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.

I imagine there is a coterie of Keyes fans ready to snatch up her latest historical novel about Philip IV of Spain "and the women who most influenced his life."

She has produced a phenomenal number of books, so one supposes there must be a dependable following for her. However, this one was just not my cup of tea.

It doesn't have the authentic fascination of a scholarly piece of non-fiction history, and it certainly lacks any believable characters.

There is page after page of wooden figures sitting around asking each other loaded questions — the answers read like a verbatum copy from a second-rate history book. The mechanism of the writer's craft is always painfully evident — however, not painful enough to ward off sleep.

Reading Bargain

INCREDIBLE TALES by Saki, Laurel-Leaf Library, 191 pages, 50 cents, paperback. Reviewed by Laurel Shapiro.

Here gathered together are 31 tales by the master story-teller H. H. Munro, who signed his witty little stories as Saki. As his enthusiasts all know, Saki had a macabre turn, and his brief, tightly constructed episodes often reveal a touch of the supernatural. He had a weakness, too, for lonely children (possibly because he was reared by two cruel old aunts) who often figure in sadistic little pieces. But always Saki made a point of being amusing, and one would be hard put to invest 50 cents for entertainment better than for this little anthology.

The Glamor Treatment For A Gunslinger Doesn't Take

JOHN SELMAN, TEXAS GUNFIGHTER by Leon Claire Metz, Hastings House Publishers, 205 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

The six-guns of the old-time western gunslingers missed fire quite often; biographies of those gunmen are almost surefire on the book market.

John Selman was not, however, a gunslinger easily glamorized. And Leon Claire Metz, a young West Virginian, is not the writer to glamorize him.

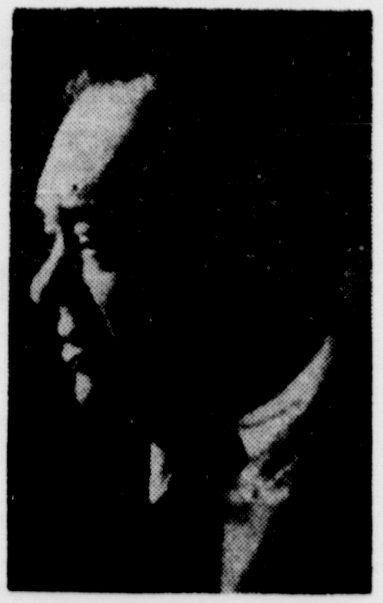
Selman was one of the many hard cases on the frontier who worked both sides of the law — and sometimes both at once. He lives in history for a single exploit: The killing of famed badman John Wesley Hardin.

Metz has done considerable research into the life of this rather obscure and undesirable character for his "John Selman, Texas Gunfighter." But when he came to writing it, he was not quite up to the job.

The jacket says this is Metz's first book, "but he has others 'in the works'." Let's hope they are better ones. This is a misfire.

A Well-Rounded Selection Of Work By New Writers

MODERN OCCASIONS, New Fiction, Poetry, Drama and Criticism by 21 writers, selected and edited by Philip Rahv, Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 369 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Lee Cadwallader.



PHILIP RAHV
Selector and editor

The selections in this volume have never been published in English before. Their editor is professor of English at Brandeis University and founding editor of Partisan Review, with a number of well received critical studies to his credit.

The contributions—15 American, three British, one Canadian, one German, and one Dutch—are not generally as experimental in form as in content. Therefore, the reader need not be an avid follower of any "in" group to understand them.

Whether one accepts these works as potentially important is at the moment a personal matter. "Finegan's Wake" is still hailed in some esoteric circles as "important," but one rarely meets anyone today who has a thorough understanding of it, and this volume shows little influence from its experimental forms.

The staying power is not as pertinent as the value derived from being aware of what is being done today. For that purpose this volume presents a well rounded selection.

A BRICK BARBECUE in your backyard, always a source of pleasure, can be appreciated all the more if it is one you have built yourself in a solid, substantial manner.

Build A Brick Fireplace, For Backyard Barbecues

If you long for an outdoor barbecue without the trouble of driving to the nearest sometimes congested picnicking grounds, try building yourself a brick fireplace in your own backyard.

There's an Easi-Bild pattern available to help you with the project.

THEN YOU'LL be ready to "dine out" whenever the mood strikes you.

Everyone, young and old, likes a picnic. When hot dogs, hamburgers, steaks or chops are cooked out of doors, the disposition as well as the digestive system benefits. The fireplace helps provide the chef with just the right place to practice his culinary magic.

Simplified directions assume you have never built a barbecue and explain every step in language everyone can understand. Illustrations show exact location of all bricks in each course, while directions explain how to mix concrete.

BRICKLAYING offers many benefits. It not only provides an economical way of building a fireplace, but also a cure for nervous tension. Taut nerves relax as the mind and body adjust to the steady rhythm of bending over, lifting, applying mortar and placing brick.

BRIGHT IDEAS

Use Beauty To Cover 'Eyesores'

By JOE JONES

Life seems to be getting more and more complicated with brackets, angle irons, air-conditioning units, pipes, electric outlets, etc., all of which add anything but beauty to your decor.

Here is a great way to hide them and at the same time bring a little warmth into your home. Cover them with artificial flowers, ivy, and other vines.

THE TOWN IS filled with man-made flora which often puts nature to shame.

Illustrated here is a simple application of artificial ivy covering a very ugly, heavy angle iron, used to support the beautiful wrought iron kerosene lamp. The ivy seems to grow from the top of the lamp and down, completely covering the offensive hardware.

Little clusters can cover electric outlets and even the electric extension cords.

MAKE YOUR air-conditioning units floral displays for the winter. Cover those pipes or unattractive electric ceiling fixtures with flowers and greenery. Intertwine the chains holding your dining room fixture with gay colorful flowers and you will establish a festive air throughout the long, cold winter. Fasten them with transparent tape. Not expensive, find them in department stores, supermarkets, five-and-tens, and some florists.

Make yourself a summer greenhouse and the fun part is that you don't have to water.

Choose Plants That Invite The Birds Into Your Yard

Some people, when they hear birds in the garden, think only of driving them away.

Others will do anything to attract feathered friends.

If you side with the latter, you'll be interested in what the California Assn. of Nurserymen has to say about planting to attract birds.

FIRST IT SHOULD be noted that while some birds eat berries and will strip the pyracantha, these are few and far between. Most birds eat either bugs or seeds and in either case are very beneficial for the gardener.

Think of birds devouring weed seeds or caterpillars and you can't help but to think of them as friends.

Such being the case, let's look at the recommendations.

First, birds like some sort of refuge from marauding cats, a place to feel safe when they build their nests. The above-mentioned pyracantha often provides such a sanctuary because it becomes, with age, a thorny fortress which cats avoid.

THE BERRIES MAY attract some birds also, but not until they are past their prime and ripe enough for the birds to enjoy. By this time the gardener has usually had all the pleasure he could ask for from one shrub.

Quinces are another bird refuge, for not even the meanest cat likes to probe their midst in search of game. Plant a hedge row of them and you'll not only have birds, you'll have the twin bonus of lovely spring flowers and summer-fall fruit to preserve.

Carissa, or Natal Plum, is another thorny and highly useful shrub for both birds and humans. Its waxy white flowers and edible fruit are best grown in Southern California but can be tried here as well.

FOR HUMMINGBIRD lovers, plant flowers that offer them the nectar they need: Fuchsias, honeysuckle, hibiscus, trumpet vine, coral bells, or shrimp plant.

You could simply rig the garden with a hummingbird feeder or sugared water, but why not plant a natural feeder which you can enjoy along with the birds?

THE STRAWBERRY TREE is so called because of its highly decorative fruit. It is, however, a plant that can be enjoyed for many seasons, especially in the fall and winter. Its handsome, evergreen foliage makes an excellent and dense screen. The stems and trunk are reddish, like its relative, the madrone. During autumn and winter there is a continuous crop of urn-like flowers that mingle with the warty, strawberry-like fruits which follow the flowers almost immediately. The scientific name is Arbutus unedo.

Some Show-Offs That Shine In The Summer Sun

Some plants, like some people, perform best under a summer sun.

In weather that would wilt a plastic flower, they blossom forth with spring freshness, sopping up the sun and asking for more. Call them "summer showoffs," if you will, and you won't be wrong.

One of the showiest in this group is the Crape Myrtle. When in full bloom, this striking shrub-tree almost radiates color, sporting a full head of crinkled, "crape" like blooms in various shades. Nor is that the end of it. Earlier in the year Crape Myrtle give another show when the new foliage breaks with bronzy hues; and as the season progresses, the bark often splits to reveal a red undercoat.

IT IS THE mass of summer blooms which makes Crape Myrtle really worth growing, however, These can be soft pink as with the variety "Shell Pink," white as with the variety "Snow White" and "Glendora White;" red or lavender-pink, as with the terrific new variety, "Majestic Orchid."

There is an entire new family of dwarf Crape Mytles, too, with the same color range, and a size that fits smaller gardens easily. Plant them in full sun. They perform best where the sun is hottest, which is why you see them more inland than here near the coast.

The Eucalyptus family gives us several flowering specimens, but the showiest for summer is the Scarlet Flowering Gum. Nurserymen say this is an August bloomer, but experience shows us just as many of their red-topped beauties in July.

THIS IS ONE eucalyptus that makes a fine street planting, for it is more compact and less prone to litter than some of its high, wide and handsome cousins. Certainly there is no more vivid red to be found than in its fluffy flowers; though it must be confessed that not all of the "Scarlet" Flowering Gums produce red flowers. Pink flowered specimens are also to be found—and even sought out, for theirs is a fine show, also.

The Silk Tree, often called Mimosa by gardeners who learned their plant nomenclature in the East before coming West, is one tree we'd like to see more often. Its fern-like foliage and silky-pink flowers seem much too fragile to withstand summer sun, but the opposite is true. Perhaps the clean, fresh look can be attributed to the fact that Silk Trees are deciduous, which gives them a new lease on life each year.

Silk Trees are naturally spreading in habit and form a canopy that's easily wider than the tree is high. This habit can be accentuated with judicious use of the pruning shears: You simply top the tree and keep it topped. The spreading will take care of itself.

THE JACARANDA is a fairly common sight in Southern California, but according to the California Assn. of Nurserymen, is adaptable to a much wider climatic area than some think. Its magnificent head of blue flowers is showiest in early summer, but the blooms may linger for weeks, even months —to summer's end.

Many people mispronounce this unusual tree, calling it "Hackaranda." It is native to Brazil and called by them the Zhakaranda. The "J" is intended to be heard and should be softly slurred, something like the "J" of the French Jacques. However you pronounce it, you'll not regret growing it!

There are other summer show-offs. Briefly, they are: The silk oak, a sky-scraping evergreen with fern-like foilage and clusters of yellow-orange flowers in early summer; the coral tree, a small deciduous spreading tree-shrub with large summer clusters of flame-red flowers; and the escallonias, both red and pink, which are often pruned to tree shape to make them more adaptable to small gardens.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

A checklist for gardeners of Marin for the coming week:

✔ Disbud dahlias and chrysanthemums if your aim is for large, show-type flowers. Pinch off the side buds and channel all growing energy into the terminal buds.

✔ Prepare a trench now with a rich mixture of manure and other fertilizer for planting the winter-flowering sweet peas next month.

✔ Tuberous Begonias are more or less subject to mildew depending on where they are grown. Control is quite easy with one of the special begonia sprays available at your nursery.

✔ Azaleas and camellias with yellowing leaves may well be suffering from iron chlorisis. Use one of the special compounds available at nurseries for greening them up.

✔ Keep spent buds picked and follow a regular spraying schedule to promote healthier and longer bloomings of roses.

✔ Keep mowers sharpened. It will simplify your lawn chores and give you a better-looking yard.

✔ Fuchsias appreciate frequent overhead sprinkling. Once a day is not too often during spells of warm weather.

Builder, Spare That Tree From Damage

Construction Too Often Causes Needless Losses

In new housing developments the lots that command the highest prices are those on which there are one or more large trees.

The reasoning is sound — the purchaser does not have to wait years to have the physical comforts and landscape beauty mature trees give to a home.

UNFORTUNATELY, sometimes the builder and workmen give little consideration to preventing tree damage during construction activities. As a result, within a few months the new home owner may find that his prized trees are showing definite signs of poor health.

During building construction various forms of damage to trees may occur. These include mechanical injury to the trunk or branches, compaction of the soil over the roots, earth "fills" and "cuts" in lawn grading operations, and trenching for installation of underground utilities.

When subjected to pressure or impact, tree bark separates easily from the sapwood; often great sections of bark are torn from the trunk or branches broken by carelessly driven trucks and other heavy equipment. The same equipment passing back and forth close to the tree and over the root spread area may so compact the soil surface that it interferes with the normal interchange of atmospheric and soil gases.

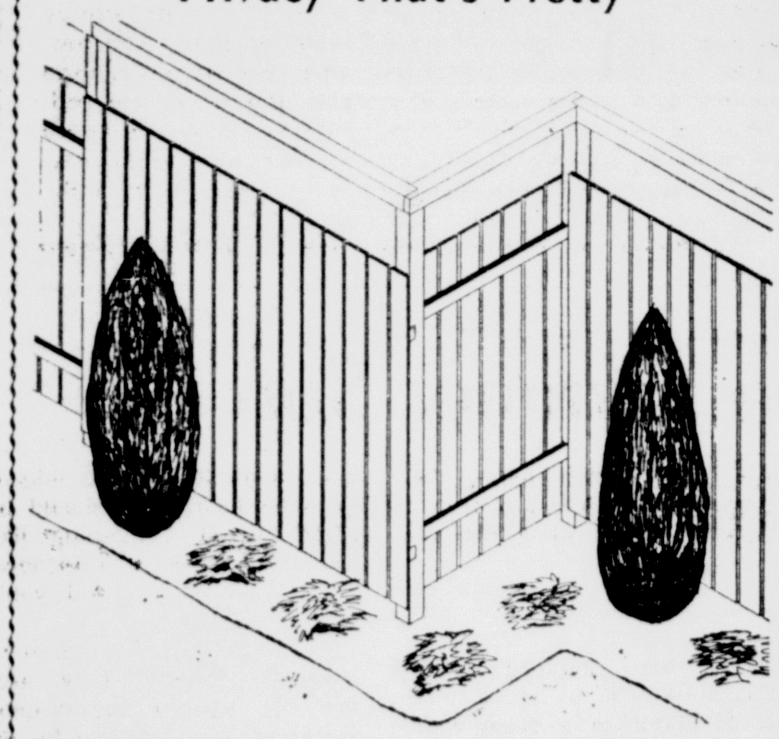
IN GRADING around new houses, it is common practice to spread the subsoil from basement excavation over the lawn area and cover it with a shallow layer of topsoil.

Subsoil generally is composed largely of clay, and when it is placed above the roots of trees it acts in a manner similar to that of compacted soil. It seals in the toxic gases formed in the decay of organic matter in the lower soil levels, and prevents penetration of water and air essential to proper functioning of the roots. Affected trees usually show signs of deterioration within a year after the "fill" is placed.

Occasionally in grading, the earth is cut away from trees and they are left standing on a small "island" of soil. Such earth cuts cannot be made without severing many of the side roots and, thus, damaging the tree. Often, too, roots are severed in trenching for water pipes and other underground utilities.

Most tree damage caused in house construction and grading can be repaired if treatment is not too long delayed. In view of the value of established trees, it is advisable for the purchaser of a new home to employ a competent arborist to inspect, and treat as needed, all trees on the property.

Privacy That's Pretty



AN OPEN FRAME pattern gives a graceful look to this tall privacy fence. To build it, simply extend the red cedar posts a foot or more above the upper edge of the boards, then top with a four-by-four-inch cap. In alternate sections of fence, nail cedar boards at the back, exposing two-by-four rails. Zigzag fence line, where possible. Then use niches for shrubs.

Planning a Pool?

Anthony builds more pools than the fifteen largest single pool builders combined!*

Why do more people choose Anthony? Why do more people recommend Anthony? They like the service. They like the exclusive accessories Anthony makes; such as better diving boards, heaters, automatic cleaners, and many other things.

They like the proof of security Anthony offers, with an annually audited financial report that tells them about Anthony's $2.9-million net worth and $1-million-plus cash in the bank. They know by this that they have freedom from worries.

They believe Phil Anthony's slogan, "If you haven't received service from Anthony, you haven't asked for it."

Why take a chance? Call the best and the biggest for your pool. The price is right.

*In 1965 in all of Southern California, where more pools are built, building permits show that Anthony built more pools than the next fifteen largest single pool builders combined. (By single pool builders we refer to those who are not a group of franchised builders.) Anthony also built more pools than all franchised builders combined.

An Actor Turns To Soap Opera On TV

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Actors must be, or why should non-actbe an artistic breed apart. They must be, or why would nonacting journalists constantly ask them why they took this part or that.

And actors, rising gracefully to a silly question, faithfully play the game—the story "excited" them, the part had great "potential." No one ever mentions the crass necessity of a job and income, although the high proportion of swimming pools and foreign sports cars to successful actors indicates that somebody thinks about jobs and incomes.

IT WAS refreshing indeed when, asked what led him back to soap opera, Macdonald Carey replied frankly: "There just aren't enough pictures being made in Hollywood. In fact, I've been going to Europe at least once a year for the past 10 to make movies. I had two plays — and they both closed before we could get to Broadway. And with all the tours I've been on — eight plays and four musicals — I estimate that out of 24 years of my marriage, I've been at home about 12 altogether."

Carey now stars in NBC's serial, "Days of Our Lives," a creation of the queen of the daytime dramas, Irna Phillips.

A respected, established stage, screen and television actor, Carey seems to have traveled in a big circle. Twenty-eight years ago he played a young doctor in NBC's radio soaper, "Woman in White." Now he is a doctor again — and a grandfather — in the series that started last November.

Carey confessed that settling down to a regular acting job close to home — NBC studios are a 10 minute drive from his Beverly Hills home — did not turn out to be as simple as he anticipated.

"IT TOOK ME a month to settle down to the business of learning a new part each day," he said. "Even now there are some horrible moments, but the mind is getting greased and it is easier to work. Actually, the discipline is very good for the actor."

Carey said he has been impressed by the quality of the writing in the series, and by the interesting themes being developed.

"I like to think it is a little different, too, because we have an agreement not play any of our parts as though we were sorry for ourselves," he said. "In fact, we even try to put a little humor into the show."

DONNA BUTTERWORTH and Scott Brady make up a Marine Corps family with Donna as a 9-year-old "Little Leatherneck" and Scott as her D.I. father on "Summer Fun" Friday at 8 p.m. on Channel 7.

ROBERT LOGGIA, who will play the title role of "T.H.E. Cat," the new half-hour mystery-adventure series on Friday nights, relaxes at poolside with his pet Siamese cat. The series premieres Sept. 16 at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 3 and 4.

F TROOPER

TV Cavalryman Sees Long Ride

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"There's no stopping us now. We're good for five years at least. Maybe 10."

This was the unabashed prediction by Forrest Tucker for the television series in which he stars, "F Troop." Judging from the performance by the ABC series in its first season, he could be right.

"OF COURSE I'm right," says Tucker, a big, cheery, overwhelming man. "When I first read the script of the pilot film, I told my wife it was going to be a hit. I told everybody that, including Jack Warner. And it was a hit—against all odds.

"In the first place, they pitted us against Red Skelton and NBC's Tuesday night movies. You should get clobbered in a spot like that, but we survived. Also, they put us on at 9 o'clock, which knocked out a lot of our kid audience. But we still got plenty of them.

"The worst thing was that we were in black-and-white against two color shows. Want to know which two series at Warner Brothers were in color? "The FBI' and 'Hank'—two modern shows.

"'F TROOP' had uniforms, Indians, wigwams, trees, mountains everything that cried out for color. But we had to go in black-and-white. Whoever made that decision has got to be stupid."

Like nearly all programs on the three networks, "F Troop" goes in color next season.

"And our time spot makes more sense," Tucker added. "We're opposite 'Daniel Boone' and a new show that nobody knows anything about, 'Jericho.' And we're on earlier in the evening, to catch the kids. We can't fail."

He qualified that. "Maybe the show will only go three years—if some heart isn't put into it. We've done all right with the knockabout comedy, and we could for another year. But sooner or later the audience will want more believability in the characters. They'll have to become more human."
